Impressions...

Well, imagine that! Summer finally did come to us here in northern Minnesota. Did you miss it? It was hard not to miss. We who have complained about the cool summer were hard put to survive the ONE day of summer this year.

I dare say that most of us complained this past Saturday as temperatures hovered in the high 80's and the humidity was unpleasant. We who spend many days of a typical summer with temperatures much higher than the 80's coupled with humidity were heard complaining about the heat and humidity this past weekend. We forget that this is not a typical summer. We have forgotten, for a summer, what heat is.

Last summer, in July, we had heat—and humidity—for days. Our family was so uncomfortable last summer, that we purchased a decent sized window air conditioner. This summer, that air conditioner is still in its winter storage place in the back of a closet. Unless the summer decides to get warm for many days, I think that for this summer in the closet is where our air conditioner will stay. Fans are more than adequate to meet the cooling needs of us this summer.

The first summer we lived in Northern Minnesota, the summer of 1988, as we were moving into our home, unpacking boxes and shoving furniture around, the temperature hovered around 100°. This summer is far removed from that hot summer. As we remember other summers and the wilting we humans could do during the hot spells, we realize that this summer has been unusual.

The grass has remained green this summer. We have received moisture. This moisture, coupled with the cooler temperature, has caused our lawns to grow, and grow again. Rarely have we needed to water our yards. Just when we think that maybe we should add some water to our yards, along comes another wet day. The exercise obtained in mowing our yards a few more times than normal is good for us!!

This cool summer has been good for some of our farmers' crops, but not so good for those that need a bit of heat to grow. I imagine that one day of heat did not really help those crops in need of warmth to add too much to their growth. My flower beds mirror the farmers' crops. The plants I expected to be filling my flower beds by this time last month are still looking as if they are just beginning their summer growth. They too need a bit of heat to activate their growth.

But, in spite of the heat factor this summer, summer is nearly over. Warmth does not necessarily determine what is summer. The calendar tells us that in less than a month, the children among us will be back in school. Time is flying.

Don't let summer deceive you this year. The calendar says that summer is soon over in spite of the lack of heat, yet there still is time for you to plan some activity with your family this summer. You might not be able to spend hours basking in the sun this summer, but you can spend time enjoying one another. Plan some family time.

The experts in weather have said that this summer's unusual coolness is due in part to a volcano in the Philippine Islands. That causes me to stop and reflect on how important we all are to the world around us. Natural events happening in another part of this world have affected our activities here in northern Minnesota this summer. The immensity of that cause and effect is humbling. How, I wonder, is what we do here in our small part of the world having impact on the world as a whole? One small impact we have on the world is perhaps the time we bother to spend with our children, the world's next generation.

This summer, as heat has been removed from us, perhaps we are reminded as we vacation with our families that the impact we make on each other is more far-reaching than we can imagine. Happy Summer!!

Dear Friends,
When someone we love is terminally ill, death is anticipated. We spend months even years, waiting for the inevitable. Because we witness our loved one's constant pain, we may even pray for their release. When death comes, we are the first to admit that it is a blessing, yet the finality of this 'expected death' leaves us devastated. It is a moment we are never totally prepared to accept. Circumstances do not lessen the depth of sorrow.
Respectfully,
Belmont Funeral Home

Volunteers contribute to school successes

number of volunteers and the hours volunteered are more difficult to document.

Ihle was praised for her work on the volunteer program by the school board.

Serious talks with the city about closing part of Knight avenue will not take place. Superintendent Robert Duncan said the closing of part of the street was only an option being explored for the safety of students. However, it became known publically and got to be a very emotional issue in the neighborhood. As a result, a public meeting scheduled to discuss the topic has been cancelled. Discussion about the location of ammonia plants near Washington elementary school have also been toned down.

Superintendent Duncan reported that the facilities task force project is moving along real smoothly. Several meetings have been held and many more will be held in the future. Duncan explained, however, that it is not the responsibility of the school district to promote a "yes" vote. It cannot. A citizens groups is promoting the "yes" vote.

What does the future hold for technical education in the school district? That's a subject that Superintendent Duncan addressed at the school board meeting. Duncan explained that the whole technical education program will be reviewed in 1993-1994. Duncan believes that technical education courses are career exploration courses. He asked the board rhetorically whether students should spend two hours a day in the course for a year just to decide that this is their chosen career. Duncan said an important obligation for the school district is to provide an opportunity to students to explore careers and there are many different options. In his opinion, however, it is the responsibility of the school to prepare students for post-secondary training.

Prison escapee caught in TRF

Once. Twice. three times? After his capture by Red Lake county authorities in July, David Ray Simanovski, 22, escaped from the Northwest Regional Correctional Center on Thursday by scaling a recreation yard fence. By Friday night Simanovski was back in custody after being caught by Thief River Falls police and Pennington County Sheriff's department officials.

Simanovski, who according to Polk county officials was known to be violent, had originally escaped from a prison in the state of Washington where he was being held on burglary charges in June.

On July 2 Red Lake county officials arrested Simanovski in Red Lake Falls on a warrant for failure to appear for driving while intoxicated charges.

On Thursday, Simanovski, escaped from the Northwest Regional Correctional Center by scaling a [illegible] fence which was topped with [illegible] of barbed wire and [illegible] wire.

According to a press release from the law enforcement center in Thief River Falls, "police received a report from a local citizen at 8:28 p.m. Friday that escaped prisoner David Simanovski was in a residential garage in Thief River Falls. Officers from the Thief River Falls police department and Pennington county sheriff's office responded.

"Simanovski was found lying on the floor of a pickup parked inside a residential garage. Simanovski said he would kill himself if officials came closer. Through negotiation he finally gave up at about 9:45 p.m. and was taken into custody. He was then placed into the custody of Polk county authorities and transferred to the Northwest Regional Correctional Center in Crookston."

Rhinitis triggers asthma

While asthma is generally known as a lung disease, in certain patients with this condition the road to better breathing may lead through the nose. In a study just published by the American Lung Association, a team of French physicians present evidence that rhinitis, more commonly known as runny nose, may trigger asthma by making a person's airways hyperreactive.

"What this report shows is that doctors who are only treating the lower airways in asthma should think again," says Dr. Jeffrey Wagener, a scientific advisor to the Lung Association. "You have to remember to look at the nose as well."

The study appears in the July "American Review of Respiratory Disease," an official journal of the American Thoracic Society, the Lung Association's medical section.

Some 10.3 million Americans suffer from asthma; many if not most also have rhinitis, sinusitis, or other chronic upper respiratory disorders. While this overlap has long been noted, physicians have been uncertain whether upper and lower airway disease is linked or coincidental.

"It's a question many people have thought about, but it hasn't been addressed intensively," says Dr. Wagener. "In patients with both rhinitis and asthma, the tendency has been to think, "We won't worry about the rhinitis because nobody dies from rhinitis. We'll just worry about the asthma.'"

The French study was led by Dr. Michel Aubier of Bichat Hospital in Paris. It involved a group of patients with allergic rhinitis and hyperreactive airways, or airways that tend to tighten far more readily than normal. The patients underwent tests to determine exactly how reactive their airways were. They then received alternating courses of a corticosteroid drug inhaled directly into the lung or an inhaled placebo, along with a nasal spray corticosteroid or a spray placebo. The study was double-blinded, meaning that neither the patients nor the investigators knew when the real drugs were being given.

The results were dramatic. In each patient, the airways became less reactive after treatment with the nasal corticosteroids. Surprisingly, the corticosteroids, which are anti-inflammatory drugs, had no significant effect when inhaled directly into the airway in the same dose.

The researchers hypothesize that airway hyperreactivity in these patients was being caused by a postnasal drip of inflammation-producing cells and chemicals into the lung. That theory would explain why drugs that block the inflammatory process weren't effective when delivered to the lung, but were quite effective when delivered to the nose.

"There's been a lot of attention given lately to the link between sinusitis and asthma," says Dr. Wagener. "Now it looks as though there's a link between asthma and allergic rhinitis as well."

The good news is that the problem, if recognized, is usually easy to treat, as nasal corticosteroids and other drugs can be identifying and avoiding allergens. For more information, contact the American Lung Association of Minnesota at 1-800-642-5864.

. . . Expect the Unexpected

I bet there aren't many of us who haven't been forced to try to negotiate around downtown streets. Isn't it fun?

The only things I can say about trying to drive through town are "Go Slow" and "Expect the Unexpected."

First of all, expect to take much more time getting around town now. It took our secretary 45 minutes to get the mail the other day, instead of her usual 15 minutes.

She said it wasn't so bad trying to figure out how to get through Main on the east/west streets. I mean, she could choose either first and third, or second and fourth, or whatever, but she knew there was some place to cross Main within a three block area.

She chose to cross on third street. This was not a good idea! It seems that third street was jammed with cars from LaBree avenue back to Knight, all of them dutifully stopping at the brand new stop signs. The problem with the new stop signs on the Main street intersection was that no one knew when or how fast to go again, or even what they were stopping and looking for, so they just sat there, looking at each other.

Now, after several weeks, most of us still seem to be having trouble with all of these stop signs.

On Main street, where the work is, people stop, look right and left, see large machines and miles of sand on either side but no cars, and proceed on their way. But they go slowly, so slowly, in order to watch the machines do their jobs and see what progress is being made on the work, and that means traffic is clogged for blocks.

Further along the way, on LaBree avenue, where there are four-way stop signs, there are no large machines. Instead of machines there are lots and lots of cars, most of which have converged on the intersection thinking that they were going to beat the clog on Main. Not so. There are so many cars sneaking off to LaBree that the avenue is just as clogged as Main.

The problem on Labree is that some people do not know when they should jump in and proceed. They peek from one side to the other and across the way, seeing all the unfamiliar traffic and all the funny little faces peering through windshields at them, some smiling, some scowling, and they freeze right where they are. They let several sets of cars go through the intersection before they get up the nerve to go on through.

The trick to it is, just count the cars: one, two, three, and when you get to four, go. Don't worry, the other cars will stop, I think. After all, remember that the other drivers are all just as frightened and intimidated as you are. Maybe it would be a good idea to go very slowly, however, since we are never sure that the drivers in the other cars can count to four, especially those who are scowling.

I had a bad experience on highway one the other day. Someone came driving from the west, probably someone unfamiliar with the area, and zoomed right through the stop sign I was facing, planning to turn south. Lucky for me I had decided I would wait until that car could go ahead of me or I would have been smacked. I was really glad I remembered my driving manners that time, and also that I was expecting the unexpected.

One of the worst experiences I have had, and one that everyone should be aware of so they don't get a nasty surprise, happened one evening on Main and first street. I was proceeding along first headed east, going very slowly, and stopped at the stop sign in front of the Law Enforcement Center. I checked right and left, saw big parked machines, because it was evening, after all, and they were done for the day. I chuckled to myself, thinking how automatic it was to look right and left at a stop sign, even when it isn't needed.

As I moved my foot on to the accelerator and started to proceed, what should appear but a car, from my right, driving slowly down Main street through the sand and the machines, right in front of my eyes! I immediately stomped on my brake and stopped, watching, mouth agape, as the car drove around the machines and right through the intersection in front of me and proceeded onward, bumping down the bump and through the sand and machines on the other side of first street, heading toward second street.

The white-haired little lady driving the car smiled at me as she passed. I smiled back.

Do you suppose she just kept on going, dropping lower and lower each block until she reached the end? I wonder how she got out of the hole at the end, and I wonder if she just kept right on smiling through it all. She was going slow, though, and I'm sure she was definitely expecting the unexpected by the time she got done.

The MDPC board also elected five directors to serve on the Dairy county of Minnesota board: Stan Diers of Howard Lake in Wright county, Jackie Engquist of Cambridge in Isanti county; Doris Henderson of Houston in Winona county, Robert Briebel of New Ulm in Brown county, and Bruce Larson of Claremont in Dodge county.

MN Health Care commission

Minnesota Health Care Commission held its first meeting recently to begin their work to slow the rate of growth of health care spending in the state.

"Minnesota currently spends between $13 and $14 billion a year for health care, and the rate of growth in health care spending is significant," Commissioner Marlene Marschall said. "It is therefore very important that we find ways to control the rapidly rising cost of health care. This is the commission's primary goal."

The Minnesota Health Care Commission, which was created under the MinnesotaCare legislation (formerly HealthRight) passed by the state legislature last spring, is charged with making recommendations to the Commissioner of Health regarding statewide and regional limits on the rate of growth of health care spending, and to help Minnesota communities, providers, group purchasers, employers, employees, and consumers improve the affordability, quality, and accessibility of health care.

Hawkinson files for district judge

John Hawkinson, Grand Rapids attorney, has filed for the position of Ninth Judicial District Judge being vacated by retiring Judge William Spooner in Grand Rapids. It is one of four judicial seats up for election in the district which includes 17 counties in northwestern Minnesota.

Hawkinson, 44, has been practicing law in Grand Rapids since he graduated from William Mitchell College of Law in 1975. Married for 22 years, he and his wife Gina have three children.

Local teachers in special workshop

Leadership team from Franklin Middle School and the Alternative Learning Center in Thief River Falls underwent a week of training July 26-31 in Grand Rapids on how to make its school more effective. The objective of the session was to help good schools become even better.

The Minnesota Educational Effectiveness Program (MEEP) was developed in response to legislation first enacted in 1983 calling for a state plan for school improvement using current research on learning, instruction, organization and change. The training of the leadership team is one component of the program.

Current educational research and literature provide a basis for decision making in MEEP. "This research [illegible] that effective schools [illegible] clear and high expectations of students," said Mesenburg, supervisor for the Educational Effectiveness Process at the department of education. These schools encourage leadership, goal setting and staff development within each school building and teachers having a strong role in designing programs. Staff cooperation, family involvement, flexible grouping, curriculum articulation and a variety of instructional models are some of the concepts that are emphasized. School personnel study these characteristics of effective schools and learn to use the information to assess present practice in the building and make plans for [illegible].

Attending the workshop were leadership teams from 15 to 20 schools beginning training or retraining for the 1992-93 school year. Each team included central office staff, building principal and teachers. Some teams also included school board members, parents and support staff. The following people represented Franklin Middle School: Kathi Carlson, Carol Ihle, Bob Jury, Julie Dietrichen, Fran Finco, Gloria Bjorkman, and alternative Learning Center representatives Wayne Johanneson, Sharon Baron, Pete Solem, Audrey Burda, Jim Goldesberry and Bob Duncan.

"Staff from the Minnesota department of education and the Educational Cooperative Service Units assist participants in using processes which lead to improvement in the schools learning environment," said Carol Evert, Education Effectiveness specialist.

After the workshop, the leadership team works with the rest of the school staff to assess the school's strengths, identify needs, and develop an individualized improvement plan.

The program was piloted by 26 Minnesota schools during the 1984-85 school year. Approximately 100 new schools have become involved in the program each succeeding year through an application process. At the present time 740 schools are involved from across the state.

HOME PROTECTION WHILE VACATIONING

If you're leaving home for vacation, don't leave your home inviting for burglars. That pile of newspapers on the front step, empty garbage cans and a dark house every night are signs to a burglar that your home is an easy target. Creating a lived-in image for an empty house is the key to keeping your home secure.

- Housesitters are a good way to take care of your home while you are away.
- Ask a neighbor to occasionally park their car in your driveway or put garbage in your trash can.
- Timers also deter burglars. Timed switches plug into wall outlets and can be programmed to turn out lights in one room while simultaneously turning on another in a different room, or turning on a radio for a few hours.

The prudent person takes measures today to protect against a loss tomorrow. Insurance provides one with a sense of security and peace of mind. Prison escapee caught in TRF

Once. Twice, three times? After his capture by Red Lake county authorities in July, David Ray Simonovski, 22, escaped from the Northwest Regional Correctional Center on Thursday by scaling a recreation yard fence. By Friday night Simanovski was back in custody after being caught by Thief River Falls police and Pennington County Sheriff's department officials.

Simanovski, who according to Polk county officials, was known to be violent, had originally escaped from a prison in the state of Washington where he was being held on burglary charges in June.

On July 2, Red Lake county officials arrested Simanovski in Red Lake Falls on a warrant for failure to appear for driving while intoxicated charges.

On Thursday, Simanovski, escaped from the Northwest Regional Correctional Center by scaling a recreation yard fence which was topped with two strands of barbed wire and a coil of razor wire.

According to a press release from the law enforcement center in Thief River Falls, "police received a report from a local citizen at 8:28 p.m. Friday, that escaped prisoner David Simanovski was in a residential garage in Thief River Falls. Officers from the Thief River Falls police department and Pennington county sheriff's office responded.

"Simanovski was found lying on the floor of a pickup parked inside a residential garage. Simanovski said he would kill himself if officials came closer. Through negotiation, he finally gave up at about 9:45 p.m. and was taken into custody. He was then placed into the custody of Polk county authorities and transferred to the Northwest Regional Correctional Center in Crookston."

I was proceeding along first headed east, going very slowly, and stopped at the stop sign in front of the Law Enforcement Center. I checked right and left, saw big parked machines, because it was evening, after all, and they were done for the day. I chuckled to myself, thinking how automatic it was to look right and left at a stop sign, even when it isn't needed.

As I moved my foot on to the accelerator and started to proceed, what should appear but a car, from my right, driving slowly down Main street through the sand and the machines, right in front of my eyes! I immediately stomped on my brake and stopped, watching, mouth agape, as the car drove around the machines and right through the intersection in front of me and proceeded onward, bumping down the bump and through the sand and machines on the other side of first street, heading toward second street.

The white-haired little lady driving the car smiled at me as she passed. I smiled back.

Do you suppose she just kept on going, dropping lower and lower each block until she reached the end? I wonder how she got out of the hole at the end, and I wonder if she just kept right on smiling through it all. She was going slow, though, and I'm sure she was definitely expecting the unexpected by the time she got done.

MN Health Care commission

Minnesota Health Care Commission held its first meeting recently to begin their work to slow the rate of growth of health care spending in the state.

"Minnesota currently spends between $13 and $14 billion a year for health care, and the rate of growth in health care spending is significant," Commissioner Marlene Marschall said. "It is therefore very important that we find ways to control the rapidly rising cost of health care. This is the commission's primary goal."

The Minnesota Health Care Commission, which was created under the MinnesotaCare legislation (formerly HealthRight) passed by the state legislature last spring, is charged with making recommendations to the Commissioner of Health regarding statewide and regional limits on the rate of growth of health care spending, and to help Minnesota communities, providers, group purchasers, employers, employees, and consumers improve the affordability, quality, and accessibility of health care.

Local teachers in special workshop

Leadership team from Franklin Middle School and the Alternative Learning Center in Thief River Falls underwent a week of training July 26-31 in Grand Rapids on how to make its school more effective. The objective of the session was to help good schools become even better.

The Minnesota Educational Effectiveness Program (MEEP) was developed in response to legislation first enacted in 1983 calling for a state plan for school improvement using current research on learning, instruction, organization and change. The training of the leadership team is one component of the program.

Current educational research and literature provide a basis for decision-making in MEEP. "This research that effective schools have clear and high expectations of students," said Mesenburg, supervisor for the Educational Effectiveness Process at the department of education. These schools encourage leadership, goal-setting and staff development within each school building, and teachers having a strong role in designing programs. Staff cooperation, family involvement, flexible grouping, curriculum articulation and a variety of instructional models are some of the concepts that are emphasized. School personnel study these characteristics of effective schools and learn to use the information to assess present practice in the building and make plans for improvement.

Attending the workshop were leadership teams from 15 to 70 schools beginning training or retraining for the 1992-93 school year. Each team included central office staff, building principal, and teachers. Some teams also included school board members, parents and support staff. The following people represented Franklin Middle School: Kathi Carlson, Carol Ihle, Bob Jary, Julie Desrocher, Fran Finco, Gloria Bjorkman, and alternative Learning Center representatives Wayne Johaneson, Sharon Baron, Pete Solem, Audrey Burda, Jim Goldesberry, and Bob Duncan.

"Staff from the Minnesota department of education and the Educational Cooperative Service Units assist participants in using processes which lead to improvement in the school's learning environment," said Carol Evert, Education Effectiveness specialist.

After the workshop, the leadership team works with the rest of the school staff to assess the school's strengths, identify needs, and develop an individualized improvement plan.

The program was piloted by 26 Minnesota schools during the 1984-85 school year. Approximately 100 new schools have become involved in the program each succeeding year through an application process. At the present time 740 schools are involved from across the state.

HOME PROTECTION WHILE VACATIONING

If you're leaving home for vacation, don't leave your home inviting for burglars. That pile of newspapers on the front step, empty garbage cans and a dark house every night are signs to a burglar that your home is an easy target. Creating a lived-in image for an empty house is the key to keeping your home secure.

- Housesitters are a good way to take care of your home while you are away.
- Ask a neighbor to occasionally park their car in your driveway or put garbage in your trash can.
- Timers also deter burglars. Timed switches plug into wall outlets and can be programmed to turn out lights in one room while simultaneously turning on another in a different room, or turning on a radio for a few hours.

The prudent person takes measures today to protect against a loss tomorrow. Insurance provides one with a sense of security and peace of mind. NORTHERN STATE AGENCY can assist you with many forms of insurance. Our office is conveniently located in the Northern State bank building. Office hours are 8:30 - 4:30 Mon.-Fri.; 8:30-6:00 Thurs.

Two Soil and Water District terms to expire

Two Pennington County Soil and Water Conservation District terms will expire this year.

September 4 is the deadline for filing to be on the ballot of the November 3 election as a candidate for supervisor of a Minnesota soil and water conservation district (SWCD).

Currently, from the Pennington County Soil and Water Conservation District, Raymond Olson and Clair Larson's terms expire. Other district supervisors include Danny Johnson, Harry Hanson and Leonard Skaar.

SWCDs are special purpose local units of government dedicated to managing and directing conservation programs. Each SWCD is governed by five supervisors, who are community leaders in resource management helping set priorities and resolve questions about issues such as wetland preservation, water quality and soil and water erosion.

Supervisors also oversee SWCD staff, who work directly with landowners, providing technical and financial assistance in carrying out soil and water conservation. Staffs range in size from one to nine; most SWCDs have three or four.

Although supervisors are nominated from different nominating areas within each SWCD, they are elected at-large, meaning that every eligible voter in the SWCD may vote for all open supervisor positions. Since supervisors serve staggered six-year terms, every district has at least one opening.

Minnesota has 91 SWCDs, completely covering the state. Their boundaries are usually the same as the county in which they are located.

Since resource issues in Minnesota vary considerably depending upon the area of the state, the local nature of SWCDs allows them to focus on the specific conservation needs of their region. For example, a northern SWCD might work with forestry issues; a southeastern SWCD might deal with water quality problems caused by sinkholes. SWCDs are also able to take into consideration the different concerns faced by rural and urban regions.

Supervisors meet monthly to conduct SWCD business. Although supervisors do not receive a regular salary, they are compensated for meetings and functions attended and are reimbursed for expenses.

Anyone interested in filing should contact their local SWCD, listed in the blue pages of the phone book.

Two Soil and Water District terms to expire

Two Pennington County Soil and Water Conservation District terms will expire this year.

September 4 is the deadline for filing to be on the ballot of the November 3 election as a candidate for supervisor of a Minnesota soil and water conservation district (SWCD).

Currently, from the Pennington County Soil and Water Conservation District, Raymond Olson and Clair Larson's terms expire. Other district supervisors include Danny Johnson, Harry Hanson and Leonard Skaar.

SWCDs are special purpose local units of government dedicated to managing and directing conservation programs. Each SWCD is governed by five supervisors, who are community leaders in resource management helping set priorities and resolve questions about issues such as wetland preservation, water quality and soil and water erosion.

Supervisors also oversee SWCD staff, who work directly with landowners, providing technical and financial assistance in carrying out soil and water conservation. Staffs range in size from one to nine; most SWCDs have three or four.

Although supervisors are nominated from different nominating areas within each SWCD, they are elected at-large, meaning that every eligible voter in the SWCD may vote for all open supervisor positions. Since supervisors serve staggered six-year terms, every district has at least one opening.

Minnesota has 91 SWCDs, completely covering the state. Their boundaries are usually the same as the county in which they are located.

Since resource issues in Minnesota vary considerably depending upon the area of the state, the local nature of SWCDs allows them to focus on the specific conservation needs of their region. For example, a northern SWCD might work with forestry issues; a southeastern SWCD might deal with water quality problems caused by sinkholes. SWCDs are also able to take into consideration the different concerns faced by rural and urban regions.

Supervisors meet monthly to conduct SWCD business. Although supervisors do not receive a regular salary, they are compensated for meetings and functions attended and are reimbursed for expenses.

Anyone interested in filing should contact their local SWCD, listed in the blue pages of the phone book.

Opera production from U of M to perform in RLF

The University of Opera Theatre tour will [illegible] 13 instruments [illegible] Community [illegible] They will select a [illegible] farm [illegible] preparing it to [illegible] The performance [illegible] a local girl in a speaking part and an intergenerational chorus. The audience will join in singing a hymn during a celebration scene in the second act.

The story is about a farm family, the Mosses—a mother, a daughter Laurie, about to graduate from high school, her 10 year old sister Beth, and Grandpa Moss. Two drifters, Martin and Top, come along asking for odd jobs. Although suspicious of the strangers, Grandpa Moss and Ma Moss offer them work. During the graduation party that night, Laurie and Martin fall in love—Laurie associates Martin with freedom, while he associates her with settling down. During the evening, Martin and Top are accused of being the alleged attackers of other young girls in the county. Although it soon [illegible] that the accusations are [illegible] Grandpa Moss tells them they [illegible] at daybreak. Later that [illegible] Martin and Laurie make plans [illegible] away together, but Top convinces Martin to leave without her, and the two drifters steal off. When Laurie discovers their departure, she decides to leave home anyway. At the conclusion, the mother looks to her younger daughter as the continuation of the family cycle that is the reason for their existence.

The rationale for such an opera tour is generated by "The Tender Land" story itself. Set in the 1930s on the Midwestern farm in June during the first harvest (this far north, possibly haying season), the action takes place on the farm the day before high school graduation. "The Tender Land" is the perfect traveling opera," said Vern Sutton, University of Minnesota Opera Theater director. "Opera generally is very expensive, the set being one of the major expenses, so by bringing the opera to the set—in this case a farm—it is possible to produce in small rural communities."

"The Tender Land" opera tour highlights important issues facing families and rural communities. "As well as the fragile existence associated with working the land, the opera is concerned with a young girl coming of age, with all the complications it brings to a family," said Marty Sutton, conductor of the production.

The University of Minnesota production has a personal connection to Aaron Copland. It will use Sidlin's reorchestration for 13 instruments, which was authorized by Copland, who said the arrangement worked exceedingly well. Another connection is with University Opera Theater Director Vern Sutton, who also directed the Plymouth Music Series 1989 production, which was released on compact disc on the Virgin Classics label.

Copland, who died at the age of 90 in 1990, had a great love for America's Heartland and his style incorporated the sounds of country dances, folk songs, and regional hymns in such familiar pieces as Lincoln Portrait, Appalachian Spring and Billy the Kid.

sound system. Danza was in charge of security. Each aspect of construction called for a department, including housing, first aid, and a multitude of construction offices for supplies and organization. Each section had its own sign and cardboard table.

About four RV-type vehicles served as offices. A big-top tent served as a mess hall.

Peggie Piatt of Thief River Falls coordinated housing for the estimated 300 to 400 workers. "We house them in private homes as much as possible. It's wall-to-wall sleeping bags." Workers also slept in campers, tents and motels. "We won't send anyone home," Piatt said.

By Friday afternoon first aid coordinator Ray Kopkie of International Falls said the only injuries were only a few cut fingers.

Many of the workers are self employed contractors. One worker, Greg Anderson of Grand Rapids, specializes in log home building and finished working on the Mall of America, specifically, Camp Snoopy, ten days before the hall construction. Anderson said several other workers also recently completed work on the mall.

The seating capacity in the new Kingdom Hall is 180, double the seating capacity of the old Kingdom Hall.

The local congregation is in charge of ordering and purchasing supplies, estimated between $125,000 and $140,000. The local congregation must finish a certain amount of groundwork before the other workers arrive.

Each year the Jehovah's Witnesses Minnesota Building Committee decides which requests for a new hall will be honored.

Players are asked to return Babe Ruth uniforms and equipment to the field with them tonight.

Avelsgaard in Europe

Al Avelsgaard, an assistant men's basketball coach at Northland Community College the past two years, is currently working with University of Minnesota-Morris head coach Perry Ford as a coach of a USA basketball team that is in the midst of a two-week series of games in Holland and Germany.

The team is comprised of players who have completed their college eligibility and have their aim set on attracting a professional offer from a European team. Steele [illegible], a Crookston High School graduate who played basketball for his father, Gary, at the University of Minnesota-Crookston and then went on to play at Moorhead State, is one of the players on the USA team.

Avelsgaard will head to St. Cloud State this fall, where he will take classes and work with SCSU head men's basketball coach Butch Raymond as a student assistant.

Travis Brown, who helped lead Northland to the 1992 Minnesota Community College Conference state tournament title, will be playing basketball for the Huskies this winter.

Thursday marked the end of the nine-week junior golf program for the 1992 season at the Thief River Golf Club. American Legion state baseball tournament starts Thursday in Willmar...

Osseo is first round TRF opponent

Thief River Falls, after dispatching long-time nemesis Moorhead in the Ninth District tournament, will venture into unfamiliar territory this week when Post 117 enters the 1992 American Legion state baseball tournament in Willmar.

A dramatic come-from-behind 3-2 championship game win over Moorhead ended a six-year title reign for the Blues, qualifying Thief River Falls for the state tournament for the first time since back-to-back trips in 1954 and 1955.

Post 117 will meet Osseo at 11:15 a.m. Thursday in the first round of the 67th annual state tournament – a 12-team, double-elimination event featuring ten district champions, the Tenth District runner-up, and the host Willmar squad.

Osseo comes in as the Tenth District runner-up, losing an 8-2 title game decision to No. 1-rated Excelsior Saturday.

"We're still on a high," said Thief River Falls coach Howard Dalager. "We know there will be some good teams in Willmar, but we beat a good team in Moorhead to get to state. I think we've got a shot. The kids like to face the Cities teams; it's a challenge – a great incentive for them to prove they play with the teams from the big cities. We've got to be positive. We've got to believe in ourselves. We're going to enjoy the moment."

Thief River Falls, featuring a solid balance between offense, defense and pitching, is 29-11 for the year.

The offense is headed by Jason Svir, Mitch Bernstein, Barry Dowers, and Nathan Knutson.

"We've been strong up the middle on defense," mentioned Dalager, pointing to Svir behind the plate, Bernstein or Marc Haugen at shortstop, Knutson at second base, and either Haugen or David Blazek in center field. First baseman Pete Balmer is also a key figure the defense, and with a year at Concordia College already under his belt, Balmer provides quiet, mature leadership to a team that relies heavily on contributions from players who will be high school seniors this fall, pointed out Dalager.

Speed has played a major role in the team's success, both on offense and defense.

Bernstein is the team's No. 1 pitcher, with Jeremy Olson, Darin Wald, Rick Ostby, and Haugen rounding out the staff.

However, Haugen, a top performer whether at the plate, at shortstop, center field, or on the mound, will not be part of the state tournament line-up. He was diagnosed with mononucleosis over the weekend and will not be with the team in Willmar.

"That really, really hurts," acknowledged Dalager. "[illegible] is a very important player for us. We'll obviously miss him."

With Bernstein expected to pitch the opener, Dowers will move from right field to shortstop, where he played during the 1992 spring high school baseball season, to replace Haugen in the infield. When he leaves the mound, Bernstein will move to short, putting Dowers in the outfield. Blazek will likely become the full-time centerfielder, with Wade Evenson, Rick Ostby, Chad Bjorgaard, or Wald the top candidates to round out the outfield when Dowers moves to shortstop.

Haugen was one of seven Post 117 players scheduled to appeared in his third summer state baseball tournament, along with Trevor Haugen, Evenson, Knutson, Olson, Ostby and Svir. They played on Babe Ruth district championship teams as 13-year-olds and as 15-year-olds. Third baseman Carter Ragalla was part of the group as a 15-year-old. Dalager was their coach as 13-year-olds when they went 2-2 and reached the state Final Four in 1988.

Dalager is now in his fourth year as Legion head coach. He worked with Legion baseball as an assistant coach from 1980 through 1985, then headed the Babe Ruth program for three years before being named Legion head coach in 1989. His three previous Post 117 teams went 20-12, 29-17 and 19-21. Post 117 reached the Ninth District finals in 1990, but lost an 8-2 championship game decision to Moorhead.

Two playing sites will be used in Willmar – Baker and Swansson Fields. The Thief River Falls-Osseo game will be played at Baker Field.

Thief River Falls and Osseo are bracketed with Sixth District champion Cold Spring and Seventh District winner Alexandria. First round losers will play at 4:15 Thursday afternoon at Swansson [illegible] meeting at 6:45 that night at Swansson Field.

Other first round games Thursday include Eagen (Third District) vs. Winona (First District), New Ulm (Second District) vs. Richfield (Fifth District), Duluth Lakeview (Eighth District) vs. Rosetown Memorial of Roseville (Fourth District), and Excelsior (Tenth District) vs. Willmar (host).

Excelsior is the defending champion.

Tournament play continues Friday and Saturday, with the finals scheduled Sunday at 12-noon, which would be a doubleheader, if necessary under the double-elimination format.

Both Sunday finalists will advance to national region play Aug. 19-23. The Minnesota state champion will compete in the Central Plains Region 6 tournament in Omaha, Nebraska, while the Minnesota state runner-up heads to the Great Lakes Region 5 tournament in Steubenville, Ohio.

Regional winners advance to the 1992 American Legion World Series Aug. 26-30 in Fargo, ND.

State tournament activity starts with a banquet for players, coaches and managers Wednesday at 6:30 p.m. at the Willmar Holiday Inn, where the teams will be housed.

Free fishing clinic will be held Aug. 20

In an effort to expand and utilize fishing opportunities in the Thief and Red Lake rivers, local kids can learn to identify fish and fish habitat while trying their hand at catching a fish during a free fishing clinic, scheduled Thursday, Aug. 20, at the Red Lake River fishing pier in Thief River Falls.

The pier is located at Red Robe Park. The event is being sponsored by the Thief/Red Lake Reservoir Association, Thief River Falls Park & Recreation Department, and MinnAqua, a state-run aquatic education program.

Open to boys and girls ages 8-14, the clinic will run from 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Participants are asked to bring a sack lunch and fishing pole, if you have one. If you do not have a fishing pole, MinnAqua will provide a fishing rod, reel, tackle and bait.

Trained instructors conduct the program, which includes hands-on activities such as fish identification, pop can casting, food web tag, and of course, fishing.

Participants also learn sportsmanship, safety, the basis of water ecology, and fishing techniques.

MinnAqua was created by the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources in 1990 to teach the recreation, ecology, conservation and ethics of angling. The program is run in cooperation with Minnesota Extension Service 4-H programs, and is funded through LCMR, RIM and the Federal Aid in Sport Fish Restoration Act.

To register for the Aug. 20 program, contact the Thief River Falls Park & Recreation Department at 681-2591 or 681-1835. Pre-registration is required, since class size may be limited. Parents are welcome and encouraged to attend.

Shane Duffy of Thief River Falls, son of Kevin and Michelle Duffy, will compete in the National Barefoot Waterski Championships in Jacksonville, Florida Aug. 12-16. Shane, 13, will be an eighth grader at Franklin Middle School this fall. (Submitted photo).

TRF eighth grader to ski in national event

Thirteen-year-old Shane Duffy of Thief River Falls will be competing in slalom and trick events at the National Barefoot Waterski Championships in Jacksonville, Florida Aug. 12-16.

To qualify for the national tournament, Duffy had to attain a first class or better rating in trick and slalom events in one or more sanctioned tournaments during the year. He currently holds expert rating, a level higher than first class, in both the slalom and trick events.

Duffy has been barefoot skiing for three years and began competing in tournaments in 1992. He is coached by Jon Kretchman of Fergus Falls, who is a member of the United States World Barefoot Team and the current world record holder in the barefoot jump.

En route to the national meet Duffy has competed in tournaments throughout the midwest, skiing in Waukesha, Wisconsin and Canton, Illinois, along with events in New London, Fergus Falls, and Shoreview, where he placed second in slalom and trick events at the Minnesota state tournament Aug. 1.

Outdoor News

You're out on the dock, enjoying the peaceful solitude of a weekend at the lake. Without warning, a low [illegible] builds to a roar nearly as loud as a jack hammer or heavy-metal rock group. Is it an F-15 jet fighter taking a low pass over the lake?

Chances are, it's a boat with an inadequate or non-existent muffling system, or 'cut-outs' which allow the operator to select whether or not the exhaust passes through the muffler by means of a switch on the dash.

Minnesota Department of Natural Resources is warning owners of boats with loud motors that the state has strict laws regulating watercraft noise, and offenders are being fined.

[illegible] calls from lakeshore owners and other water recreation enthusiasts about noisy boats, and the situation seems to be getting worse," said Tim Smalley, DNR boating safety specialist. "I guess you can't blame folks for being upset when they go to the lake for peace and quiet, and a few boaters with extremely noisy motors roar up and down the lake all day," he added.

TRF U.S. Swim Club wraps up 1992 summer schedule

Thief River Falls U.S. Swim Club completed its 1992 summer schedule recently by taking part in Fastwater Summer Championships.

Coached by Ryan Lokken, the U.S. Swim Club is part of the Fastwater Conference that also includes programs in Bemidji, Park Rapids, Fosston, Grand Forks and Crookston.

The program is designed for swimmers of all ages, including adults and elementary school participants. Thief River Falls U.S. Swim Club had approximately 60 members this summer, with 20-25 of them usually taking part in one of the five Fastwater Conference meets.

Two Thief River Falls club members – Theresa Giauque and Sarah Harger – extended their summer swimming season into the 1992 North Dakota State Long Course Championships in Mandan.

Giauque and Harger both competed in the girls 15-16-year-old group.

State meet efforts for Giauque included a third in the 800 freestyle, fourth in 200 freestyle, fifth places in the 100 butterfly, 50 freestyle and 100 freestyle, plus seventh place showings in the 200 I.M. and 100 backstroke.

Harger's state meet performances included 13th place finishes in the 100 breaststroke, 200 freestyle and 100 backstroke, along with 15th place showings in the 50 freestyle and 100 freestyle.

Twins announce ticket sales plan for post-season

Minnesota Twins have announced their post season ticket plan for possible 1992 playoff dates.

Fans may enter into a random drawing for the opportunity to purchase tickets for all American League Championship Series and World Series games by sending a post card mailed between Aug 10-21.

This ticket program does not include fans who have already established ticket priority – season ticket holders, season ticket plan holders and coordinators of large groups who purchase 400 or more reserved seats. Those Twins customers will receive a separate ticket application in the mail.

Fans who have not established ticket priority may apply for tickets by sending in a standard sized post card containing only the following information: name, address, zip code, day and evening phone numbers, and the number of ticket strips requested (limit of two). Post cards should be sent to the Minnesota Twins, Post Office Box 220, Minneapolis, MN 55440-0220. No envelopes or hand-delivered post cards will be accepted. Only one card per household. Anyone sending duplicate post cards will be eliminated from the random drawing procedure.

Wheelchair seating will be available for disabled fans with severe mobility impairment who are unable to transfer from a wheelchair to a regular stadium seat. Fans requiring wheelchair seating must indicate on their post card the number of wheelchair seats needed (limit of two).

The post-season tickets are sold in strips of six – three for the American League Championship Series (ALCS) and three for the World Series – and must be purchased in complete strips, with a limit of two trips per customer. Prices for post-season ticket strips range from $135 to $300 per strip. No single game ticket requests will be honored.

The ticket selection process will be conducted through a random drawing and only those whose applications were selected will receive a ticket order form by mail. Similarly, tickets will be assigned to the winning applicants on a random basis. This will be the only public sale of Championship Series and World Series tickets for games at the Metrodome.

Should the Twins represent the American League Western Division in the ALCS, they will host the Eastern Division champion on Oct. 10 and 11, and Oct. 12, should Game 5 be necessary. Game times for all ALCS and World Series games will be announced at a later date.

If the Twins represent the American League in the World Series, they will host the National League champion on Oct., 20 and 21, and Oct. 22, should Game 5 be necessary.

Complete information is available by calling the Twins' ticket office at 612-375-7444.

16, a Lincoln High School junior, shared second place with Sue Serstock of Minneapolis in 2:58, and Linda, their mother, was fourth in 3:01.

Linda Bentson is one of the organizers of the small, but growing event that for the first time attracted male entries this year, including fifth place finisher David Gremmels of Seattle, WA, who had a 3:12 clocking.

Unseasonably cold water kept the swimming moving, with three of the participants taking 40 or more minutes off their previous best times.

Cool temperatures affect crops

With the exception of last weekend, cool temperatures have had an effect on 1992 crops. The following story provides some facts on how cool temperatures effect crops.

By Jay Larsen
Crops Statistician

Right about now, Minnesota's corn crop could probably use a cap and mittens. Mid-June ushered in a continuing cool weather pattern, with six straight weeks of below-normal temperatures.

Whether the temps were a result of volcanic activity or simply Mother Nature's way of being different, they do affect the yield potential of our major crops and that's a big concern to producers and others right now.

A rule of them is that small grains do well with cool temperatures and adequate moisture. Favorable conditions have existed for small grains for most of this year. Exceptions include a relatively hot spring (except in the northern half of the Red River Valley) and exceed moisture in parts of the west central and northern areas.

Supporting the high yield/cool temperature relationship is current information from our reporters that small grains are looking good to excellent this year. In fact, there's a potential for a record spring wheat production in the upper midwest.

While cool temperatures are good for shorter season crops like small grains, corn and other longer season crops need enough heat units to reach maturity. These heat units are most commonly expressed as growing degree days (GDD).

For corn, they're calculated by subtracting 50 degrees from the daily average temperature. The required GDD to reach maturity varies by variety. The best assurance that the plant will reach maturity during the growing season is timely seeding and selection of the proper variety.

Minnesota's corn crop was 90 per cent seeded by May 15 this year, almost a month ahead of last year. However, GDD accumulation is now nearing only 1,200 units, about 15 per cent or 200 units below normal. This year, an average daytime high for mid-May through mid-July of 74 degrees and an average low of 56 degrees equates to only 15 units per day. Dividing the 200 unit departure by 15 units per day equals almost two weeks of the growing season lost to cool temperatures.

Compounding the problem are setbacks due to frost and many morning temperatures below the 50-degree minimum temperature, used in the GDD calculation. Despite the 2-4 week advantage gained by early planting, crop development is now well behind last year's crop and similar to development in 1990 and 1983.

We don't have answers yet on what effect these cool temperatures will have on yields. But because of the delay, corn and soybeans are just starting to enter the reproductive stage, the most crucial phase in determining yields.

For corn, this phase starts with the shedding of pollen from the tassels and silk emergence from the ears. These two developments must occur at about the same time. Silks exposed after the pollen is shed will not allow the ovule to be

Farm profits down from year

Upper Midwest farm profits were down from a year earlier and farm prices were up only slightly in the second quarter, according to a midyear survey of rural bankers by the Federal Reserve Bank of Minneapolis.

Nearly 60 per cent of the respondents say that farm profits in their areas were about the same as year-ago levels and about 30 per cent say farm profits were lower.

Bankers say second quarter profit weakness seems to reflect several factors:

- Higher input prices for fuel, fertilizer, chemicals and land rent;
- Lower prices for livestock—beef cattle prices declined about five per cent and hog prices about 15 per cent;
- Smaller government payments, partly because advance deficiency payments on some crops were cut;
- Lower crop inventory levels due to lower crop yields in 1991.

For some farm producers, however, second-quarter profits were stronger than a year ago. Farmers in dairy and wheat regions recorded higher profits due to a 10 per cent rise in milk prices and a 35 per cent increase in wheat prices. Upper Midwest land prices averaged a moderate gain of 1.7 per cent from a year ago.

Looking ahead, survey bankers generally expect farm profits to continue to trail year-ago levels. Part of this pessimism is their outlook for poor livestock prices, which they expect to remain below 1991 levels for at least another quarter.

At the end of June, the Federal Reserve Bank of Minneapolis surveyed 134 rural bankers in the Ninth Federal Reserve District, which includes Minnesota, Montana, North Dakota, South Dakota, northwestern Wisconsin and the Upper Peninsula of Michigan.

As the nation's central bank, the Federal Reserve System formulates monetary policy, serves as a bank regulator, provides banking services to financial institutions, oversees consumer protection laws and sells government securities for the U.S. Treasury.

FAMILIES CAN STAY UNITED DESPITE THE GENERATION GAP

As more and more activities occupy our lives, they tend to leave family members with very little "quality time" to spend together, recounting the day's events and discussing their problems. This is particularly true of the children, who when they are younger tell Mom and Dad everything that happened in school and elsewhere. However, it has little effect on the teenagers when they reach those double digits and begin living in a world of their own anyway, and Mom and Dad learn to accept it. This generation gap is hard to bridge, but it does help if the family can get together on the Sabbath day and attend the House of Worship. The home should be the center of love, happiness and security, and the lessons of faith can be the best reminder of it.

My family has been the source of my greatest joys.

fertilized. Result: No kernel. Water-stressed plants (from hot temperatures or dry soils) will delay silk development and result in partially-filled ears.

With enough moisture and cool temperatures, it looks like this year's crop will go through this period without any type of heat or water stress. However, slow development brought on by cool temperatures may also have a tendency to delay silk development disproportionately to the pollen shed. Nonetheless, the potential negative effect of cool, wet weather is still believed to be considerably less than hot and dry conditions. There are many who still believe that we [illegible]

At this time, there's little reason to believe that crops are in trouble. A look at previous years with similar growing conditions can generate some optimism. Back in 1972, temperatures were below normal for nine straight weeks and yields were record high. Two years ago, crop development was slow but corn yielded 124 bushels and soybeans matched previous records at 39 bushels/acre.

Hopefully, this year's weather pattern will soon break and we can go on with a normal summer and hopefully avoid that dreaded early frost.

Early planting, no water stress during pollination, and plentiful moisture for grain filling are all positive factors for this year's crop. Many areas of the state show that the crop is in good to excellent condition. It just needs plenty of sunshine and warmer temperatures to take off.

Biennial Reunion

(J.N. and Anna Swanson descendants)

The Swanson family biennial reunion was held July 17, 18 and 19 at Cleary Lake Regional Park in Hennepin County. In attendance were the eight surviving children of John and Anna Swanson, who homesteaded in Highlanding Township in 1905. They are Alice, Ethel, Mabel, Gene, Emma, Ernie, John and Marjorie. Bob died in 1978, and Laura died in 1977. There were many activities such as peddle boats, swimming, hiking, roller blading and golf. There was lots of visiting, reminiscing and looking at old photos and scrapbooks. Several attended the Twins-Orioles baseball game at the Metrodome on Sunday evening. Nicholas Rundquist (Mabel's grandson) proved to be the best problem solver. Susan Roen (Laura's daughter) won the afghan, which was knit by Marjorie Johnson. Several anniversaries were remembered with cakes and counted cross stitched samplers (made by Ethel). They were Alice and Clarence Noer, 60 years, November 17, 1932; John and Adeline Swanson, 50 years, June 20, 1942; Suellen (Mabel's daughter) and Carl Rundquist, 25 years, August 15, 1967; David (Gene's son) and Vivien Swanson, 25 years, March 25, 1967. A Sunday morning worship service was conducted by Rev. Roger Noer (Alice's son). The theme of the reunion was "Hats." Jami Nelson (Ethel's great-granddaughter) had the most unique hat "The Minnesota Pickle." Ethel made counted cross stitched name tags for the more than ninety people who attended the reunion. John and Adeline Swanson showed pictures and told of their January and February visit to Bulgaria, as a volunteer Cooperative Agriculture specialist, representing the United States. Jane (Olson) Bonander (Mabel's daughter) autographed copies of her recently published novel "Secrets of a Midnight Moon." Ethel Moquin displayed a mural of all the Swanson family reunions dating back to 1976. Susan (Geving) Roen and Kathlene (Geving) Sturre made the arrangements for the park facilities and rooms at the Super 8 motel in Lakeville, where everyone relaxed poolside until "lights out."

Marlys (Geving) Sprague and Anita (Swanson) Pietila and Susan (Geving) Roen [illegible] arrangements and food preparation. Mrs. Alan (Deb) Swanson was official photographer and took individual and family pictures. Alan Swanson chaired the business meeting. He is the son of Bernadette (Sturre) Henry, a great grandson of Laura Geving. The youngest family member is Laura [illegible], great granddaughter of Ernie and Lois, born June 12, 1992. "Wetlands—More Than Meets The Eye"

Shonda Anderson, 14 years old and a ninth grader at Goodridge high school during the 1991-92 school year, was a first place winner in the junior division of the Pennington County Soil and Water Conservation District essay contest earlier this year. Second place in the division went to Anthony Kassa and third to Nicole Qualey, both of whom also are Goodridge public school students.

Following is Shonda's award-winning essay.

"Wetlands—More Than Meets The Eye"
by Shonda Anderson

In the past wetlands have been considered to be waste land. They are actually good because they help maintain a circle of life and protect animals. They are food and nesting areas for waterfowl. They help control floods. They are places for recreation; many people use these places as a place to have fun with family and friends. They can also be used as places to clean or filter water that runs through them. Wetlands are not wastelands but they are actually good lands. They have been around for a long time.

(Some wetlands) have been plowed under to use them as farmland. Many farmers thought that they were a waste of good farmland. We also use wetlands as places for boating, fishing, hunting, exploring nature and many other things.

There are many kinds of wetlands. Some of them are bogs, marshes, swamps and meadows.

A marsh is a place where no woody plants grow—only cattails, grasses and sedges. They are found in places where the shape and soil of the land go together to produce a permanently moist ground. This provides a home for many kinds of animals like muskrats, raccoons, frogs, turtles and waterfowl. Most marshes are covered in fresh water, although some are covered in salt water. Today pollution endangers many of our marshes.

A bog differs from a marsh in many ways. A marsh is an area of land that is like a pond that is permanently wet. A bog, on the other hand, is an area of land that is wet, spongy land that is usually made up of acidic soil and heavy growths of moss.

Quantities of partly decayed plant life, known as peat, is found all over the world. They develop along shallow lakes or slowly moving streams or places where they have heavy rainfall or poor water drainage. In bogs there are kinds of moss that work like a sponge. Some bogs have shrubs, some black and white spruce and cedar may grow there, too.

They are home to dragonflies, mosquitoes and many mouse-like mammals. Some things that may have been buried in bogs for years will not decay like they would in a marsh.

Historically the value of wetlands had little or no value to man or beast. Over the last years the lower 48 states have destroyed most of the wetlands. The wetlands may vary in size from small, shallow temporary areas to extensive areas of very deep waters. A wetland is considered to be an area of saturated soil or an area of open water or combinations of both.

Attitudes and ideas about wetlands are changing, but very slowly. Recreation including bird watching, hunting or just enjoying the outdoors is increasing our awareness of them.

Wetlands can also be used as areas for flood reduction, water quality improvement and ground water recharge.

Wetlands can play an important role in the world. They create oxygen and house many animals. So I believe people should start to change their views towards wetlands and understand that they are "good lands."

BIRTHS

To The Editor:

How many times have we heard, "We saw the city crew leaning on their shovels?" We would like to compliment our city crew which removed a diseased elm tree from in front of our home. It was once a very large shade tree. In just 25 minutes from start to finish they had the job completed. This included blocking the street, cutting the tree down, chipping it up, raking the grass and sweeping the street.

Thanks, guys; it was nice to see the fine and efficient job you do for our city.

Also, it is great to see the highway 32 project progressing speedily. Thanks to all the construction workers accomplishing this job. We'll soon be back to normal and progress for Thief River Falls will continue.

Sincerely,
Larry and Lois Rohlf
Thief River Falls

To The Editor:

I hope you realize what a great city you have, and what a great bunch of people grow up there and graduate from Lincoln high school.

We just had the privilege of attending our 50th class reunion, Class of '42, our "Niftieth Fiftieth," July 17, 18 and 19. And it was great!

Maybe I'm prejudiced because I'm one of them, having left to help fight the big WW II like the rest of you, but it was a thrilling adventure to return and meet all these nice people from all across the country. All good, honest, friendly souls you'd like to have for neighbors.

And the progress of your city! Our eyes were opened as we toured your city by bus, and listened to the most interesting and fact-filled dialogue of your Bob Carlson. You natives should be mighty proud of your schools and churches, your hospital and many organizations, your library, beautiful streets and homes, big modern airport and school, growing new industries and on and on.

Take the tour. Get Bob down on tape. Print a series of articles. Tell the Twin Cities media. And tell the world.

One kind gentleman took us through the high school. What a change in emphasis! I just hope the kids appreciate their world of opportunities, what with their science labs, computers and even satellite communications! God bless them and their teachers as they mold the next half century.

And how many of you have taken the kids to browse "Pioneer Village?" It was a delight. Inside every building are hundreds of items from out of the past, just the way they were "way back when," a 3-D lesson of our heritage and, hopefully, a real hands-on inspiration for our young people.

Congratulations! Our church service and picnic at the village concluded a delightful experience we'll not forget. Three fun days, co-chaired by our TRF faithfuls, Harold Storhaug and Phil Hess and their ambitious helpers. Thanks to all who had a part in making the "old home town" a good place to come home to.

If you live in Thief River Falls....if you're from there....take off your hat! We will!

Sincerely,
Dale and Helen Hostvet

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
On School District 564 Restructuring

School District 564 is considering a major building and restructuring program in the near future. The following questions and answers are provided by the Facilities Steering Committee, a group of local citizens which has researched the local school situation and recommended the project to the board of education.

QUESTION: Since the School District 564 share of the bond issue on the new restructuring proposal is only $3.8 million, why are we voting for a $17.8 million bond issue on September 15?

ANSWER: The vote September 15 is similar to past new construction at the Technical College. Voters in this district approved projects based on a local/state funding share. Although the full amount was approved by the local voters, only the local portion appeared on individual tax statements. State aid through debt service equalization works the same way.

From the Editorial Page

"Mr. P. Meehan of Thief River Falls was in town last week. He is of the opinion that the opening of the Red Lake reservation depends largely upon how the election goes this fall. If the Democrats elect their president he is of the opinion that the Republicans in charge will hurry matter up as fast as possible so as to get along as far as they can before the Democrats come into power. If the Republicans win, he thinks they will take their time about it. The way matters have been dragging along it looks as if Mr. Meehan was about right."

Ballot question, polling places approved

School District 564 voters will decide on $18 million bond issue for building and remodeling projects Tuesday, September 15

Question on the ballot for the nearly $18 million bond issue election for School District 564 was approved by the board of education at its recent meeting along with places and times for various polling places in the district.

The special bond issue election is being held in conjunction with the primary election Tuesday, September 15. Presented to voters in the election will be the following question:

"Shall the School Board of Independent School District No. 564 (Thief River Falls), Minnesota, be authorized to issue its general obligation bonds in an amount not to exceed $17,950,000 to provide funds for the acquisition and betterment of school facilities, including construction and equipping a new elementary school and remodeling the middle, high school and Washington buildings?"

The ballot also will contain the statement: "By voting "yes" on this ballot question, you are voting for a property tax increase."

Instructions given to voters on the ballot will state: "If you wish to vote in favor of the above proposition, mark a cross (X) in the square opposite the word 'YES.' If you wish to vote against the above proposition, mark a cross (X) in the square opposite the work 'no.'"

Within the city of Thief River Falls there will be one polling place for each of the five city wards and the polls will be open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. The polling places will be at the Heritage Community center for Ward 1, Zion Lutheran church for Ward 2, Skylite Apartments for Ward 3, Knox elementary school for Ward 4 and Redeemer Lutheran church for Ward 5.

In rural Pennington county polls will be open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. at the following places: North town hall for North township; St. Hilaire senior citizen center for River Falls township, Valhall for Rocksbury township, Sanders town hall for Sanders township, Smiley town hall for Smiley township, Wyandotte town hall for Wyandotte township and the city hall in St. Hilaire for the City of St. Hilaire.

Polls will be open from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. at the following places: Steiger Farms for Black River township; Mavie town hall for Cloverleaf township; and the town halls of each of the following townships: Bray, Kratka, Mayfield, Norden, Numedal, Polk Centre and Silverton.

All other polling places in the district will be open from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. and include the following:

Marshall County—Agdar town hall for Agdar township, Virgil Erickson home for East Valley township, Excel town hall for Excel township, Grand Plain town hall for Grand Plain township and New Solum town hall for New Solum township.

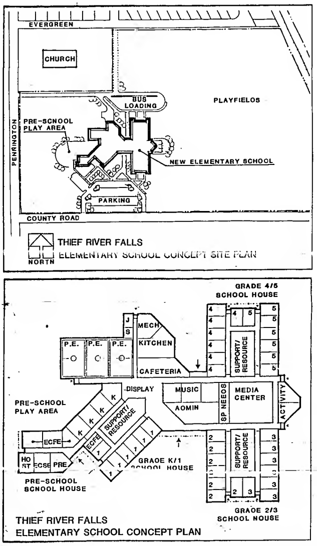
Red Lake County—Hoselton home for Browns Creek township, Gervais town hall for Gervais township and the John Ulrich farm for River township.

Six public information meetings on the school district project have been held in the past several weeks. Most frequently asked question, according to facilities project steering committee chair Key Teeters Asp, has been if the state will follow through with its commitment for debt equalization financing (which is projected to pay for about 79 per cent of the total project cost).

Second most frequently asked question was in regard to traffic on Pennington avenue where the new elementary school is proposed to be built, according to Teeters Asp. She noted that the Pennington county board of commissioners last week adopted a resolution of support for traffic improvements related to the new elementary school.

Among the most pressing concern for parents, she said, was whether the "school within a school" system really will work or if children will feel lost and alone in a building that big. She said that the state department of education's approval of the project indicates that the department feels comfortable with the concept.

"The building is designed for maximum supervision and teacher access to children," she said. "We think it will be a warm, welcome, fascinating environment for students."



Architect's preliminary drawings of the proposed new elementary school for School District 564 and location of the school on property located along Pennington Avenue south of the Abundent Life church. The school floor plan shows how the building would be divided to provide separate areas for pre-school through grade one (lower left), grades two and three (lower right) and grades four and five (upper right).

Fireworks and alcohol concern TRF council

Committees of the Thief River Falls city council will consider various proposals resulting from discussion during the regular meeting of the city council Tuesday night. Those proposals include an improvement to the riverbank below the dam, and a beer permit for the Labor Day weekend rodeo being planned for Thief River Falls.

Gary Lane of the Pennington County Soil and Water Conservation District in Thief River Falls explained that his office had $48,000 for a riverbank improvement project below the dam. That $48,000 would have to be matched by other funds like it was for the [illegible] the dam. That project was completed about one year ago. If this project is approved it could take place next summer.

The matter was referred to committee for study.

■ Fireworks display in Thief River Falls planned Labor Day weekend.

Fireworks will light up the sky around Thief River Falls during Labor Day weekend. Traditional fireworks display held at Centennial Park during Summerfest in July was cancelled this year. The Jaycees, who sponsor the yearly event, had decided to conduct the fireworks display in conjunction with a rodeo Labor Day weekend.

Ralph Bredeson of the Jaycees, who appeared before the city council to request a donation from the city a a permit for the fireworks display, explained that many people did not get the word during Summerfest. As a result, many people spent the evening sitting on blan[illegible] fest, waiting for nothing.

Bredeson said the fireworks display being planned for the Labor Day weekend will cost roughly $2,200 and will be held not at Chief Red Robe and Centennial park but at the softball diamonds near the Technical College. Police Chief Ken Froschheiser and Fire Chief Dave Bjorkman said the location at the softball diamonds would be a better location to monitor crowds and prevent curious onlookers from getting too close to where the fireworks were being discharged.

The city council approved the permit application and paying $1,100 to help pay for the costs of the fireworks display.

■ Matter of beer permit for Stampede turned over to committees.

Thief River Falls Councilman struggled with a request to sell 3.2 beer in the stands during the Labor Day Thief River Stampede. The request created some difficulties for the council because it goes against a policy the council has followed for years. (The policy restricts beer gardens to areas confined by a double snow fence.) The request was finally referred to the safety and license committees.

At issue is whether the city should allow Stampede promoters

Country musicians Brooks and Dunn performed to an estimated 3,500 fans at "Jammin in '92" in St. Hilaire last Sunday. An electrician fixed the transformer and, after one more 10-minute electrical failure, Brooks and Dunn performed without incident.

Minnesota Technology director located in TRF

Long-term planning is imperative for any business to compete nowadays; but most small manufacturers in northwestern Minnesota have all they can do just getting out the product day-to-day.

Sam Wagner, the new regional director of Minnesota Technology's Moorhead office, hopes to change that.

On board with Minnesota Technology since July 27, Wagner, a former manufacturing executive with General Dynamics in California, is already identifying some of the technologies that area manufacturers need to make them more competitive. "Companies in the region are looking for automation, Computer Aided Design (CAD) systems, Material Resource Planning, and just making their accounting systems more streamlined," Wagner said.

Wagner will address these issues from his office in Thief River Falls, where he'll draw on his expertise, along with that of Minnesota Technology manufacturing specialists and experts from educational and consulting organizations. Minnesota Technology is a non-profit, state-funded corporation that provides manufacturing and technology assistance to small and medium-sized manufacturing companies to assist them in becoming more competitive in the global marketplace.

As regional director, Wagner plans to help companies develop their strategic planning. With the limited resources inherent in small manufacturing, "many companies are doing well just getting their product out from one day to the next," he said. "I hope to give them a little broader perspective and help with some longer-term planning."

For example, Wagner is already helping companies become more familiar with ISO 9000, the quality standards that many international companies are requiring of the manufacturers and suppliers with which they do business. Companies need to meet these standards if they want to do business in Europe, which offers a strong market for many U.S. companies. This includes companies in Minnesota's northwest region. "The first company I visited (in the region) had already established a network into Europe when they realized they needed to meet the ISO 9000 requirements," Wagner said.

Before joining Minnesota Technology, Wagner spent 10 years with General Dynamics' Space Systems division in San Diego. There he advanced through a number of posi-

Dear Friends,

A man sat in my office crying. He told me his wife was dying of cancer and he needed someone to talk to. He felt that I, a funeral director, would understand his tears and not see them as a sign of weakness.

Many men struggle with their grief. They think they should be able to handle it, but the tensions inside need to be released. You need never apologize for your tears.

Respectfully,

Belmont Funeral Home

■ Hydro-electric dam in Thief River Falls undergoes licensing process.

A public meeting to discuss the future of the dam and hydro project in Thief River Falls has been scheduled for October 7. A site visit will take place at 9 a.m. and the meeting will take place at 2 p.m.

The purpose of the study and meeting is to license the hydroelectric dam. Apparently, the city believed it had a license to operate the dam, but inspectors could not find the license. As a result it will go through the licensing process, which is lengthy. One result of the process could end by the city determining that the value of electric power from the dam is not cost effective when compared to the cost of making improvements and maintaining the facility.

In other business, the council: approved a request to have beer in Southtown park on August 23 for a block party; declined an offer to accept property owned by Godfred Larson for a park; approved a dance permit for a dance by Ryan Walseth on August 21; and approved a recommendation to appoint Dr. Jim Havilend to the library board.

The Times' Editorial Opinion

The Times
Thief River Falls, Minnesota

John P. Mattson, publisher
Marvin Lundin, editor
David Hill, associate editor

Editorial opinion published on this page, whether locally written or re-printed from other sources is intended to stimulate thinking and discussion among our readers. Opinions expressed by the editor are his own and not necessarily those of other staff members. Opinions expressed in items from other publications may be contradictory to the editor's own views but are offered for their general interest.

If a Newspaper weekly is going to serve its public, it needs courage

An editorial in a newspaper trade magazine called Publishers' Auxiliary and written by Jeanne Hunt points out the need for weekly newspapers to have courage when it comes to printing the news. Although Hunt is a staff reporter for the Southern Utah News in Kanab, Utah, her comments are just as appropriate to covering the news in northwestern Minnesota.

"A citizen's "right to know" about their government doesn't stop at the border of a small town. Many elected officials in rural areas conduct business in virtual secrecy because few weekly newspapers have either the time or courage to cover the meetings. The police and courts answer to no one, and public money is spent to help private business with little or no scrutiny.

"If a weekly paper is going to serve its public, it must contain real news. People want it and are willing to pay for it. Our paper sells briskly and has no shortage of advertisers.

"No doubt printing hard news in a weekly takes courage. We don't have the luxury of anonymity that those at Big City papers can have.

"Elected officials who make questionable decisions, people involved in drunk driving accidents or those involved in public lawsuits still live next door to you, go to church or stand in line with you at the Post Office after the paper comes out. You could be writing about an advertiser, neighbor, friend, or worse yet, a relative.

"That's why in some small papers prom queens are front page news and there's nothing about a local council member who just resigned after a blowout at the City's last meeting.

"Because we live in America we have the right to print the news or just the 'fluff and stuff.' We sometimes forget that a responsibility accompanies the rights we often take for granted.

. . . "Any government can lead its people astray if its business is done in secret and what's the difference between a meeting held in secret and one held openly that no one covers? Nothing. Wherever there is power there must be a system of checks and balances.

"Weekly papers that only print 'fluff and stuff' are insulting to readers. People aren't stupid, they want to know the truth, and they have a 'right to know.' Papers that throw their responsibilities out the window also throw readers and advertisers out, and who can afford to do that?

"At our newspaper we also print fluff because it's important too. And we put our prom queens on the front page, right next to the story about our county attorney's DUI."

Our county attorney has not been arrested for driving under the influence, and no city councilman has resigned because of a blowout at a meeting, but we do have our share of controversies. Our detractors and even some of our city officials would rather those controversies be covered up, but we aren't in the business of covering up the news. It's our job to print the news — good or bad.

Praise for our volunteers

Time volunteered for the school district's volunteer program in School District 564 more than doubled during the past year. Carol Ihle, program coordinator, has done an admirable job coordinating volunteer activities. It's a hard job that pays dividends to the entire educational system.

Over 5,570 hours involving over 350 volunteers were donated to various programs this year. That's an increase from 2,273 hours from last year. The focus of the volunteer program is two-fold. One is to enrich and enhance the student's curriculum. This takes place by involving volunteers who share their time, talents and expertise through such programs as "Hello Science", "Jr. Great Books" and Franklin's "Student Activity Day". Volunteers also provide classroom support and clerical help for instructors that enables them to devote more of their time to individual student needs.

Ihle reported Monday during a school district board meeting that it's difficult to measure the benefit, but she believes children do better and are happier when they see parents and community members participating in their schools. Parents also seem to have a better understanding of instruction style and programming, and teachers are more aware of the need for community and parental participation.

Such a program is a benefit to the entire community. Those involved in coordinating the program and participating in the program deserve thanks and praise. I'm sure Carol also would like us to encourage others to participate in the program as well.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
On School District 564 Restructuring

School District 564 is considering a major building and restructuring program in the near future. The following questions and answers are provided by the Facilities Steering Committee, a group of local citizens which has researched the local school situation and recommended the project to the board of education.

QUESTION: Why did the Steering Committee recommend selling the District Service Center and then lease back space for our transportation/bus garage? Wouldn't it be better to increase the bond issue and build a new transportation facility?

ANSWER: Under the restructuring proposal:
- The Washington community/education complex will house Adult Education, Community Education, the Alternative Learning Program, a community gymnasium, public meeting rooms and district offices;
- Early Childhood Family Eduction, Head Start and other pre-school programs will be relocated to the new elementary campus;
- Many high school vocational-technical programs will be incorporated into post secondary options at the Technical College.

With the relocation of these programs and offices, the Steering Committee felt it was reasonable to sell the former District Service Center (old Arctic complex). However, the portion of the building used to maintain and house our school buses has developed into one of the finest transportation facilities in the state. The Steering committee and the Vacated Facilities sub-committee feel it is advantageous to lease that portion of the building. It has also been suggested that a ready lease agreement will make the building more attractive to a potential purchaser.

LETTERS

To The Editor:

On September 15 voters will decide on an $18 million bond issue. This will include a proposal to eliminate our four Thief River Falls elementary schools and substitute on elementary school compound of over 1,000 students.

I have some sincere concerns about this proposed elementary school complex. It is my belief that small, local schools are the best for students educationally. Cities on both east and west coasts that tried mega schools in the 1960's are trying to go back to smaller local schools because the larger schools don't work. Why are we in TRF thinking about going the other way?

I expressed my concerns to both Larry Belmont (school board chairman) and Key Teeters (who chairs the facilities steering committee). Key said that the committee was not aware of how this concept (one large elementary school of over 1,000 students) affected education, but she was aware of two schools that had done this: one in Fargo and one in Wisconsin.

I talked with people at both of these schools. My fears that this is a bad choice and will hinder our children's educational experience continue to grow. Administrators of both schools said their decision was made on primarily financial considerations. People at Fargo's Centennial school said they were very worried about "wallflowering," or some students getting lost in the crowd. The desired cap on enrollment at this school is 800. Fargo has 13 elementary schools ranging from under 200 to the large Centennial. Their school was built in response to their growing population. They are closing no older elementary schools. They are enlarging another elementary school, built 25 years ago, to "reduce the pressure" on Centennial.

The administrator connected with the Wisconsin school also had concerns about the size of their school. It is built for 1,000 students and the voters oppose any higher enrollment. If they need to expand further, they will do so at a rural school about 12 miles from town. They did have three elementary schools that were closed. Each was built around 1900 and remodeled in the 1950's. They were all on small lots, had virtually no playgrounds and were landlocked. These buildings were in poor repair and could not be brought up to code (unlike our schools). The three schools were sold at very low prices. The new Wisconsin school is in essence two separate schools: K-2 and 3-5. This school has two principals, two libraries and two art and music areas. In their eyes it is two schools of 500 sharing a heating plant and custodial services.

At TRF I am told that the proposed elementary complex will have one media center to provide library services to over 1,000 students and that part of this media center will be reserved for training facilities for teachers. I am told that there will be only one principal, and that cafeteria, custodial and secretarial support staff will be cut.

And finally I am told that if this $18 million bond issue does not pass that the back-up plan is to present the same plan to the voters again with no changes. The impression I get is that if this plan does not pass, the committee and the school board will resubmit it as many times as necessary, without changes, even to the point of our losing a chance to tap into the debt equalization money from the state. I deeply resent these scare tactics.

I am a strong believer in education and have voted in favor of every bond issue supporting education in every election I have ever voted in. It pains me, and angers me, that this plan is presented in such a way that I cannot vote for it. There are changes that need to be made at our schools. If this bond issue does not pass, and I sincerely hope it does not, I beg that the committee consider making some alterations to this white elephant. I believe they are good people, also with a sincere interest in education. I hope they can be flexible enough to look at alternatives.

Sincerely,
Jack Haymond

Impressions . . .

Beth Johnson

Summer is a time of beautiful flowers. It's a time for green lawns. Summer is the time for the song of birds in our trees. Summer is the time for lazy days beside rippling streams or shimmering lakes. Summer is a time for beauty.

Summer is also the time of year for CREEPY CRAWLEYS!! Now, if you are a little boy, you probably don't know the true meaning of creepy crawleys. In fact, most little boys I have known have simply seen creepy crawleys as the way to cause some female person—young or old to scream. Creepy crawleys are the means by which many of us have shown our true stripes. Creepy crawleys, small though they may be, have probably reduced most of us—maybe even a few little boys—to fear and trembling.

This summer creepy crawleys are very much in evidence. All one has to do is look at a windshield of any vehicle that has been parked under a tree for any period of time. That windshield will appear sticky. We can blame the sticky windshields on sap dripping from the trees, but in actuality the sticky goo is simply residue from creepy crawly aphids. Everywhere I look in my yard glistens with this sticky goo. These creepy crawleys are just about invisible, yet they cause us to be very much aware of their existence by creating such a sticky mess for us.

Another creepy crawley I have noticed these past few days are a ladybug looking creature. I don't know whether these orange-red-black-dotted little creatures are true lady bugs, but they sure are in abundance in my yard. I found myself constantly flicking another one of these ladybug-type bugs off of my chair.

But, sticky goo, and ladybugs, and even bees won't stop me from [illegible] These are small creepy crawleys. They are supposedly relatively harmless. I can even get used to their coexistence in my yard.

But, when creepy crawleys leave my yard, and decide to enter my home, that is when they truly are not welcome. I can coexist in the out of doors with creepy crawleys, but not indoors. Indoors, the mere thought of a cricket or spider or beetle is not a nice thought. If I find one, I'll probably do away with it. I pride myself in being somewhat adept at doing in the basic small type of creepy crawleys.

I have shared my home with larger type creepy crawleys. A house we used to live in had a regular progression of mouse families, plus a snake, plus a myriad of bats. That house was on the edge of a swamp and near a field. The woodsy swamp was home to many large wild animals—bear, deer, wolf, and even a wild cat. The field was home to smaller wild animals—fox and skunk as well as turkeys. I could walk in the field and in the woods without fear of these large wild animals. I was in awe of the tracks they made and of how well they could hide themselves. But, creepy crawleys these animals were not. This same person who could walk in the woods with large dangerous animals was devastated the first time she saw a mouse in the house!! Coping with a bat flying around the house was definitely a time in which mental maturity went swooping out the door and in its place was hysteria.

The same house of the mice and bats also had flies by the hundreds. Flies may not reduce me to hysteria as do bats, but flies do not bring out the best in me. I vacuumed them up relentlessly every day by the hundreds. We caulked holes to keep them out—they still found ways in. We poisoned them (and probably us). We never learned to live with them. Some creepy crawleys are simply not nice.

Creepy crawleys come in many shapes and forms. Some have wings, some do not. Some are invisible, some you wish were. They all have something in common, though, they cause us humans grief.

Maybe creepy crawleys are here on this earth to remind us human [illegible] Every time we overreact to one of these small creatures—created by the same Creator of us—we learn another lesson in humility. How great we may be in our eyes, but how small a creepy crawley can make us seem. Next time you see one of those creepy crawleys, and after you make a fool out of yourself for overreacting to it, remind yourself that you just got another lesson in humility. A lesson we humans just don't seem to get enough of these days.

Local students receive awards

Sherry Josephson and Kerri Swenson of Lincoln high school in Thief River Falls, were awarded $350 scholarships to attend Minnesota Business Venture (MBV). Minnesota Business Venture is a week-long, summer residential program which introduces students to business and the American economic system. More than 500 students and 90 educators representing 150 cities attended the 12th annual event.

Local scholarship support was provided by ISD, Lifetouch and Schott Foundation. Over $250,000 was raised by businesses, financial institutions, foundations, service clubs, labor organizations and individuals to support the program.

During the three, week-long sessions, business leaders presented students and educators with Minnesota business, economic principles and career opportunities in a friendly and energetic environment. Students and teachers participate in 12-member "companies" headed by volunteer business faculty. The participants learn how to develop a business plan and explore the fundamentals of starting a new business. Over 100 speakers from business, labor and government discussed a variety of topics with the participants, including entrepreneurship, marketing, competitions, multinationalism, quality, careers, business trends, and ethics and philanthropy.

Members of each "company" meet three times daily to discuss product marketing, review special events and make management decisions. Each company selects a product to market and establish a two year plan for production, plant improvement, marketing and research and development.

Minnesota Business Venture is a summer program of the Business Economics Education Foondation and is offered in cooperation with the Minnesota Bankers Association, St. John's University, St. Olaf College, Minnesota Department of Education and the Minnesota Council on Economic Education. Beef is a non-profit organization dedicated to providing Minnesoto youth with practical knowledge needed for their futures in our economic system and to providing educators with the resources to achieve this goal. Diversity of background, race and gender is an integral part of its values.

Speaking Of . . .

. . . I Think I'm on a Hit List

Has anyone else noticed all the funny little black flies around, or is it just me? If it is just me, I am in serious trouble. Actually, I may be in serious trouble anyway because I've been killing them.

The flies I am talking about are not regular flies. These flies are tiny, little spastic ones that appear to have been indulging in some sort of fermented nectar or something similar to it, because they don't fly in a straight line.

They flutter and flit up and down and sideways as they fly, and you never know which way they are going to go or, for that matter, where they have come from. If the flies were walking around on the ground, I'm sure they would be staggering something awful.

These flies are nasty little things. They jiggle up and down right in front of a person's face, and then flit off as fast as can be so that a person can barely catch a glimpse of them.

The first time I became aware of the flies, I was sitting in the living room reading a book. I kept seeing this little black jiggling thing out of the corner of my eye, but when I looked to see if something was there, it wasn't.

Finally, after several minutes of this peeking and seeing nothing, I was beginning to think there was something wrong with my eyes because I was seeing jiggling black spots, or else there was something wrong with my mind because I thought I was seeing jiggling black spots.

Then I saw the little thing, a little black fly, right in front of my face. Actually, he was jiggling on his way, more or less, toward my nose. To tell you the truth, I can't think of anything worse than a fly flying into my nostril, unless it is to have a fly fly into my ear. Needless to say, I shrieked and jumped.

This violent performance was bad enough all by itself, since both of the kids, and their various assorted friends, all came running into the living room to see what in the world was happening to me. I glared at them and told them about the fly attack. They laughed.

What do you do when you have a fly right in front of your face, heading directly toward your nostril? You puff air out and swat at it, right? I did. I didn't get it, either with the swat or the puff. It fluttered off.

I tried to be calm and collected and kept trying to read, watching the little fluttering black dot out of the corner of my eye to make sure it didn't get too near any of my delicate orifices, ready to puff air out fast if it came near my nose, or clap my hand over my ear really quick if it came near there.

Every time it got close, I would swat at it. Never got it. Hit my own nose once, though. When this little accident happened, I controlled myself and didn't shriek out loud. I didn't want the kids to come in and laugh at me again.

By this time I was getting mad. I got into my fighting position, putting down my book, holding my hands up in the air and bracing my feet, ready to jump right up and take care of the little buggor once and for all next time it came near me.

Next time he flitted around my face, I went slap, slap, chop, chop, and I'm sure I got him. I saw the black spot stuck in my hands.

However, the next day at work I was typing away and what should appear in the corner of my vision but a flittering, jiggling little black spot. What—I couldn't believe it—had he resurrected?

No fooling around this time, I immediately stopped typing and proceeded to spend the next several minutes with my hands ready in the slapping/chopping position and my feet braced. Whenever I saw the black spot, I clapped my hands together, hoping to catch the bug in a lucky slap. My co-workers thought I had lost my mind. I don't think my boss noticed what I was doing, although he may have noticed and just ignored me because he is used to my acting a little crazy sometimes, anyway.

Since those first two experiences with the jiggling flies, I have noticed them all over. One evening I walked outside and they were fluttering all around me; I was surrounded by jiggling and dancing flies, and they were trying to get to me.

Do you suppose those little flies are vindictive and they were retaliating for what I did to those other guys? Well, just in case those jiggling flies are holding a grudge, I'm considering wearing a bag on my head when I go outside from now on.

Career change comes late for SDA teacher

by Marlene Sadler

When [illegible] opens [illegible] morning at the Seventh-day Adventist elementary school a new teacher will greet the students. She is Margi Stevenson, a 1992 graduate of Union College. Mrs. Stevenson replaces veteran teacher Duane Madden, who taught for 21 years in Thief River Falls before he and his wife Marion accepted a call to teach in Nevada, Iowa.

Moving to Thief River Falls was like coming home for Minnesota-born Mrs. Stevenson, who finds her roots still deeply planted in this state's soil. Besides the fact that her 89-year old mother Gladys Kisor, resides in Faribault, Margi's memories of childhood and her own childbearing years were forged in Minnesota. She was born in Morristown, the youngest of seven children. All of her elementary and high school education was in Minnesota schools, the latter being completed at Maplewood academy in Hutchinson.

Graduation from high school was followed by marriage, a move to Grand Marais, three children and all the responsibilities that come with being a stay-at-home mom. "Life was never dull," she admits. "Besides raising three children of our own, I also did babysitting and enjoyed lots of hobbies."

With her children now of school age, a move to Hood River, Oregon, enticed Margi to seek employment as a seamstress at the Jantzen factory. A later move to Grand Junction, CO, brought her the opportunity to study music theory, voice, piano and organ at Mesa College. "I hadn't had music lessons for such a long time," she admits. "After all those years of being away from it, going back and picking up music at the college level was a scary yet wonderful [illegible] that it was also a bridge to a new challenge.

Shortly thereafter, Mrs. Stevenson left her comfortable home and music studies to follow her husband Dave to LaVida Mission in New Mexico. LaVida is a Seventh-day Adventist mission providing a boarding school as well as dental and medical care to the area's Navajo population. Although mission service wasn't something Margi had ever envisioned for her[illegible] life on the [illegible]. She engaged [illegible] work while her [illegible] an elementary school [illegible] teaching school [illegible]. But if Mrs. Stevenson had expected a nine to five job at LaVida she was in for a surprise. Her talents equipped her to wear a variety of hats — from mission secretary and cook to music teacher and choir director. Her student choir toured all over the United States from Maine to Florida, California to Washington. "We probably logged a good 40,000 miles in an old school bus that broke down almost every day we were on the road," she recalls fondly. "But in eight years of touring, that old bus got us to all but two concerts on time and one of those concerts were able to reschedule."

Back at the mission, when the need arose for a substitute teacher Mrs. Stevenson agreed to fill in. To her astonishment, she found herself attracted to the classroom and looked forward to subsequent opportunities she had to work with the students in a teaching capacity. This led to her decision to pursue an associate degree in elementary education at nearby Farmington, New Mexico.

Her desire to complete an undergraduate degree then took Mrs. Stevenson to Union College, Lincoln, NE, where in May of this year, just one month after her 50th birthday, she graduated with a bachelor of science degree in elementary education.

"Some people thought I was foolish going back to school at my age," admits the soft-spoken graduate. "But my husband, children and friends supported me all the way. Now I have both a college diploma and my life's experiences to assist me in the classroom. And there's [illegible] sion that I really want to be in!"

Mrs. Stevenson looks forward to school opening on August 24. "We welcome children of all faiths," she invites. "our low student-to-teacher ratio is a definite advantage that will allow me time to give individualized attention to our pupils." Mrs. Stevenson welcomes calls from interested parents. She can be reached weekdays at 681-4606 or in the evening at 681-1604.

Seventh-day Advantist elamentary school welcomes a new teacher this year. She is Margi Stevenson, a 1992 graduate of Union College. Stevenson, who started her career as a teacher rather late, replaces Duane Madden, who taught for 21 years in Thief River Falls.

tions, including design-to-cost manager, chief of engineering cost development and deputy program manager of operations and information systems. Most recently, he was on the company's technical staff of the vice president for advanced launch systems. Wagner's education includes a masters in business administration from San Diego State University, an engineering degree from the University of North Dakota and a Certificate in Cost Analysis from the University of San Diego.

This wide range of experience and qualifications made Wagner a good choice for regional director, [illegible] Larry Sundsrud, chief executive officer of Physician Engineered Products in Park Rapids and chairman of Minnesota Technology's Moorhead Regional Operating board, which hired Wagner. "With his diverse background, we're excited about the type of abilities he brings," Sundsrud said. "His experience mix — his strong administrative and management skills and his real hands-on, technical background — is exactly what we were looking for." Sundsrud expects Wagner will fit in well with Moorhead's existing team and help provide the leadership to react to the needs in the region.

For Wagner, returning to Minnesota represents returning to his roots. He grew up in Detroit Lakes and spent two years attending St. Olaf College in Northfield. "At that time, I decided I wanted to work in the applied sciences as opposed to the theoretical sciences," Wagner said. He transferred to the school of engineering and mines at the University of North Dakota and upon graduation in 1982, started his tenure at General Dynamics.

Moving back to Minnesota was something Wagner and his wife, Cindy, had always planned. They have three children, Christina, 5, Nicholas, 3, and Christopher, 11 months. "I'm really excited to be back in my home state and home region," Wagner said. "I'm looking forward to working with companies and the people of the region, to give back some of the good, solid foundation that helped me get to where I am today."

Coalition to hold member drive in TRF

Representatives of the International Coalition for Land/Water Stewardship in the Red River Basin (TIC), a non profit organization with over 10,000 members that works on area land and water issues, will be conducting membership and fundraising activities in Thief River Falls.

Over the next few weeks Thief River Falls residents will receive personal visits from TIC's individual membership staff, as the organization seeks to involve grassroots citizens on the resource management decisions to be made in the Red River Basin.

TIC is incorporated in the U.S. and Canada to be an international model for communication, cooperation and action. TIC oversees many important projects designed to research the specific challenges facing our region's natural resources and draw educated conclusions on how to best manage them. By promoting wise stewardship, TIC recognizes the important economic needs of the area and works to balance them with a sustainable environmental policy for the future.

Members of TIC receive frequent publications updating the organization's efforts. These publications provide local residents with information designed to better educate and involve them on resource management decisions. In addition, TIC's annual Red River Basin Land and Water International Summit conference gives supporters an opportunity to directly influence the means in which TIC addresses their concerns. The 10th annual conference is being held November 18 - 20 at the Doublewood Inn in Fargo, ND, and will focus on water supply, an important issue for the Red River Basin.

Stumpf relays concerns of camp closing

State Senator LeRoy Stumpf says he wants the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources to take another look at the use of the Norris Camp south of Roosevelt.

Stumpf (DFL-District One) is asking the DNR to review the closing decision because of the concerns of area residents.

Stumpf recently relayed the concerns of those people to the DNR in a letter.

"The Norris Camp is important to residents and outdoors enthusiasts for many reasons," Stumpf said. "Emergency assistance and quick fire response are a couple of the services the camp provides."

Local students gain insight at state program

by Karmen Ortloff

Recently Brian Walter, son of Ray and Reinette Walter of Plummer, Jared Goldesberry, son of Olive and James Goldesberry, and myself, Karmen Ortloff, daughter of Irene Ortloff, attended the Governor's Scholars Summer Institute. The six day program was held on the campus of St. Ben's in St. Joseph Minnesota.

Governor's Scholars is an institute that was jam packed with speakers and discussions addressing such issues as diversity, the environment, the homeless, art, college, and included a panel that looked at these issues and more from culturally sensitive perspectives. (It was interesting. Really!) From these presentations and discussions, each scholars formulated a service project that they could take back to their school or community and implement during their senior year.

It wasn't all work at the institute though — just most of it. For instance, our institute got on its way with a magic show performed by Rob Chalmers of St. Paul. There was a purpose to this show. You see, Chalmers was born with cerebral palsy, therefore, he is often labeled as handicapped. In his show, he gives each person a pin with colored paper. Depending on which color you pin on yourself, you are either "normal" or "handicapped." Red scholars were "handicapped," though no one saw themselves that way. It was a pretty effective way to show young scholars that labels pinned on you are often superficial and totally unwarranted.

Excuse me, I forgot the magic. It finds its way conveniently into Chalmers act, but with a message. For instance, he labeled different colored scarfs (old, black, white, etc.) and changed their colors to show that things, and people, are not always what they appear.

Participants in the program were separated and placed in groups of 15 called families. Each family was headed up by two former scholars-turned-counselors affectionately known as mom and dad. The purpose of the families was to allow time to discuss speakers during the day, help with service project ideas, vent feelings, and most importantly, to win the volleyball tournament.

Yes, volleyball was yet another fun-filled, week-long activity. Once again, however, there were hidden agendas involved here. The volleyball games were meant to build a sense of community between family members and to work together in utilizing one another's personal skills. (In case you were wondering, either Jared's team nor my team won the tournament. My team did, however, beat Jared's team by a hefty margin!)

Participants in the program also participated in service projects in St. Cloud of which scholars could choose to work at the Salvation Army/Good Will store, help out with the Boys and Girls clubs, paint a homeless shelter, or visit with the elderly. A quick rundown of other highlights included: attempting (the key word is attempting) folk dances from Russia, Mexico, and Germany; the week ending talent show and dance; and 5 a.m. calisthenics. There was no hidden agenda with calisthenics. The counselors just liked to drag us — literally — out of bed. As "Mr. Subliminal", an unidentified scholar, stated during the talent show, the young scholars would have liked to have arranged special transportation via body bags for counselors.

Governor's Scholars is sponsored by the Minnesota Academic Excellence Foundation (MAEF) and is in its eighth year. The Governor does take an interest in this program, but he failed to make it to the summer institute. Gov. Carlson is supposed to come to the winter institute, which is only more reason for scholars to attend the winter institute.

During the winter institute and reunion, scholars will provide an update on their project, which includes what difficulties they had, and what they hope their projects achieved and will continue to achieve.

From now until the winter institute all 80 scholars will keep Kate Martens, our fearless leader and Institute director, up-to-date on progress, or lack thereof, made on their service projects. With only 80 scholars statewide, I guess Lincoln high school and Pershing high school in Plummer must be pretty blessed to have three.

Although, the projects have been officially cleared through school district administration, Jared's project proposes to promote academic achievement through the business community, as well as service to the community. Hopefully, some of Jared's projects will be implemented through our newly reactivated National Honor Society at Lincoln high school. My service project has to do with Middle School students and allowing them to truly experience other cultures.

These lofty ideas may seem out of reach, but teaching students to reach beyond their potential is an important goal of the Governor's Scholar program.

Trip To Scandinavia

Pollie Skjerven and daughter, Lorie, just returned from a whirlwind tour of Scandinavia. The adventure began in New York's Kennedy airport with a trip to Helsinki, Finland. The duo spent two days in Helsinki seeing the sights, including the Lutheran Cathedral, Senate Square, President's Palace, Finlandia Hall and the island fortress of Suomenlinna. There was also time to attend a church service, go shopping along the Esplanadi and attend a concert of Finnish folk music and dance.

The next leg of the trip took Pollie and Lorie from Helsinki to Stockholm, Sweden via the Silja Line's luxury cruiseliner "Serenade." The cruise went through the breathtaking Archipelago off both Finland and Sweden. While in Stockholm, the two visited Drottningholm (the Royal Palace), Gamla Stan (which includes buildings and churches constructed in the twelfth and thirteenth centuries), saw the changing of the guard near the Parliament buildings, and listened to an organ concert of Bach music in Storkyrkan, a church where Martin Luther preached. Time out was taken to watch Swedish folk dancing and, of course, to go shopping.

The final leg of the tour took Pollie and Lorie from Stockholm to Oslo, Norway via night train. Upon arrival in Oslo, the real adventure began as they rented a car and took a road trip to Modum—a community resting next to a river in the mountains northwest of Oslo. Modum is the community from where Pollie's grandfather, Hans J. Hugget, immigrated. After finding their "roots," Pollie and Lorie continued their tour of Norway, cruised along the Aurlandefjord and traveled on to Bergen where there was more sight-seeing, including the Rosenkrantz Tower and Castle (and its dungeon), and shopping. The Norwegian leg ended back in Oslo with one more day into history through visits to the Viking Ship Museum, which houses three ships constructed between 850 and 950 A.D., and the open-air Folk Museum, which includes 140 buildings from different parts of Norway that date back to the Middle Ages.

Annie Blair of Altona, Manitoba, arrived at her sister-in-law, Edna Hyde's, last Monday, and together they visited at the home of Dennis Hyde at Red Medicine Lake. They also spent some time in Detroit Lakes and Park Rapids areas before Annie left for her home on Thursday.

Nancy will be marrying Tom Bray in the near future. A large crowd attended the shower and Nancy received many lovely, useful gifts.

They visited a homeless shelter, the Salvation Army Headquarters and other places of interest, and were trained to recognize and assist the unfortunate. INSURANCE Update

by Carol Nelson

What have you got to lose? If you look around your home or apartment, the answer is probably a lot. Yet most people couldn't give a dollar value in answer to that question.

It's important to know the value of your property so that you have the right amount of insurance to cover your loss in the event of fire or theft. A home inventory can speed up settlement of an insurance claim if you have a loss.

Make a room-by-room inventory, listing the property, purchase date and price. Include serial numbers, if applicable. Photos or videotapes are a valuable backup to a written inventory.

Keep a copy of your inventory in a safe place away from your home and update it periodically.

If you are in the market for an insurance update, or require a new policy, come see us at NORTHERN STATE AGENCY. Our office is conveniently located in the Northern State Bank building. Office hours are 8:30-4:30 Mon.-Fri.; 8:30-6:00 Thurs.

Men's basketball, women's softball...

NCC, LaCrosse switch coaches

Northland Community College and the University of Wisconsin-LaCrosse wound up swapping coaches today (Tuesday) when it was announced that UW-LaCrosse assistant men's basketball coach Mark Dannhoff would take over the head coaching duties with the men's basketball program at Northland, while Northland head women's basketball and softball coach Sue Barnd would be assuming the head coaching duties with the UW-LaCrosse softball program.

Dannhoff will succeed long-time Northland coach Chet Engelman at the helm of the Pioneers' men's basketball program. Northland won the 1992 Minnesota Community College Conference men's state basketball tournament title, but school officials announced this spring that Engelman would not be retained as the Pioneers' coach.

It will be the first head coaching assignment for Dannhoff, a Wisconsin native who was an assistant high school coach at LaCrosse Central before holding a similar post at UW-LaCrosse the past two years.

Ironically, Dannhoff's assignment in Thief River Falls coincided with the announcement that Barnd would be leaving Northland for UW-LaCrosse.

A Wells native, Barnd received her B.S. and M.S. degrees from UW-LaCrosse. She taught and coached at the high school level in Hillsdale, MI before arriving at Northland.

In her three years here Bernd coached volleyball, basketball and softball. Her 1991-92 basketball team finished 9-13 and her softball team struggled to an 0-17 finish.

Osseo hitters hammer TRF 12-1

■ Winners open state Legion tournament with 18 hits

Thief River Falls received a rude welcome to the 1992 American Legion state baseball tournament in Willmar Thursday when Osseo rattled 18 hits around spacious Baker Field en route to a one-sided 12-1 five-inning victory.

The game got underway at 11:30 a.m. And it was all but over in an eye-opening 20-minute top of the first inning in which Osseo tagged Thief River Falls ace Mitch Bernstein for five hits and grabbed a 6-0 lead that was never challenged.

Bernstein left after the first inning, and the Osseo batters continued to bang out hits off Thief River Falls relief pitchers Darin Wald and Barry Dowers. The winners had their 12 runs and 14 of their hits in their first three at-bats.

Six of the 18 Osseo hits were doubles. All nine starters hit safely, and six of them came up with multiple-hit games.

Thief River Falls, meanwhile, picked up just a second inning consolation run and six singles off Osseo right hander Brian Boll, who walked one and struck out four.

"They're just a good-hitting team," pointed out Thief River Falls coach Howard Dalager. "They hit a lot of holes with line drives – they didn't hit any bloopers."

It started with a lead-off single by Jason Thornberg. Bernstein struck out No. 2 hitter Troy Bjorklund, but then walked Jason Landa and gave up consecutive singles to Matt McDonough, Sean Mahaffey and Ryan Hamann. That made it 2-0 and still left the bases loaded with just one out.

Bernstein's chances of escaping further damage disappeared when he just missed the corner of the plate on a full-count delivery to No. 7 hitter Mike Eicher, and Curt Chelmo followed with a three-run double that broke it open big-time.

"Mitch is a finesse-type pitcher, and he needs a break or two on some of the calls on his breaking pitch," explained Dalager. "But his curve ball was hanging, and Osseo is a well-disciplined hitting team. They just teed off on those pitches."

Osseo made it 7-0 in the second inning on a one-out double by Landa, a single by McDonough and an RBI on a fielder's choice off the bat of Mahaffey. Wald got out of a bases-loaded situation that time, but he suffered Bernstein's fate in the third when Osseo collected five more hits and another five runs.

A single by No. 9 hitting Tim Sobocinski started the third. Back-to-back doubles by Thornberg and Bjorklund made it 9-0. Two outs later Mahaffey had Osseo's third double of the inning, an RBI job into the right-center field gap. Hamann followed with a bad-hop run-scoring single, Eicher reached base on an error, and Chelmo singled to left to finish the Osseo scoring.

Osseo added four more hits, but did not score off Dowers in the fourth and fifth innings. The three Thief River Falls pitchers combined on three walks and three strike-outs.

Thornberg, the right fielders, and McDonough, the catcher, were both 3-for-4 to lead the Osseo hit parade. Mahaffey, Hamann, Eicher, and Chelmo had two hits apiece.

The six Thief River Falls hits were spread among six different players.

Lone Thief River Falls run crossed the plate in bottom of the second when Carter Rogalla bounced a one-out single into right field, went all the way to third on an errant pick-off throw by Boll and scored on a two-out infield hit by Wald.

"We're just going to have to regroup and rebound – like we did in the district tournament," said Dalager, referring to the double-elimination Ninth District playoffs when Thief River Falls bounced back from a 10-2 loss to Moorhead with a 3-2 championship game win over the Blues.

Post 117 drops 4-2 second round tournament game...

Alexandria eliminates TRF

Thursday morning Thief River Falls spotted Osseo a 6-0 first inning lead and wound up losing a 12-1 decision in the first round of the 1992 American Legion state baseball tournament at Baker Field in Willmar.

Thursday evening Thief River Falls again fell behind early, giving up four first inning runs that stood up for a 4-2 Alexandria win in a loser-out match-up at Swansson Field to knock the Ninth District champion Post 117 squad out of the 12-team, double-elimination tournament.

While the first inning caused Thief River Falls problems in both starts, Osseo gained the admiration of a large group of Post 117 followers with a barrage of line drives that left little doubt who had the better team. Alexandria, on the other hand, benefitted greatly from a poor Thief River Falls start in the field – two errors that appeared in the books and a couple of other situations when simple execution broke down.

After getting through the first inning, Thief River Falls starter Jeremy Olson and reliever Rick Ostby combined on five innings of three-hit pitching.

Thief River Falls batters collected eight hits off Alexandria right hander Josh Tatge, but Post 117 stranded seven runners – five of them in scoring position – and had a runner thrown out at the plate.

"It was the most frustrating game I've coached all year," said Thief River Falls coach Howard Dalager. "To come from a high in winning the district tournament to a low like this is really tough. It was a lack of concentration from the get-go. We missed a couple of signs; we didn't run the bases; we didn't execute the fundamentals. We just could get nothing going."

Olson retired the first two batters he faced, but walked Chris Demarus. A hit-and-run single to right field by Dan Nolan had an error tacked on to it, producing the first run of the game. Nolan went to second on the throw, and scored when a single by Ryan Hacker also included an error. A double down the right field line by Mark Kloubec made it 3-0, and Brian Loch bounced a single into right field to finish the Alexandria scoring.

Leading off the fourth with a walk, Carter Rogalla reached third on a stolen base and a wild pitch, but three fly ball outs failed to score the run.

In the fifth, David Blazek had a [illegible] second and moved to third on a single to right by Jason Svir. With Svir stealing second, Thief River Falls had a chance to get back in the game, but instead Alexandria came up with an inning-ending double play when Loch caught Bernstein's fly ball to left field and gunned down Blazek at the plate as he tried to tag up and score.

Post 117 cut the difference to 4-2 in the sixth on a one-out single by Rogalla, a double down the left field line by Nathan Knutson and an infield ground-out for an RBI by Darin Wald. But Knutson was left stranded a third base, and a two-out single by Svir in the seventh did not turn into a final threat.

Tatge walked one and struck out one in a route-going performance for the win. Olson took the loss, giving up the four runs on seven hits over five innings. He walked three and did not strike out a batter. Ostby pitched a 1-2-3 seventh, striking out one.

Svir and Bernstein were both 2-for-4. Nolan was 2-for-3 to pace the Alexandria efforts.

The win put Alexandria at 20-10 for the year and ended a 29-13 season for Thief River Falls.

Legion tournament is won by New Ulm

New Ulm handled Cold Spring 19-2 Sunday in the finals of the 68th annual American Legion state baseball tournament at Willmar.

Ninth District champion Thief River Falls, making its first state tournament appearance since back-to-back trips in 1954 and 1955, lost a pair of games in the 12-team, double-elimination event – losing Thursday decisions to Osseo 12-1 and Alexandria 4-2.

It was the fourth state title for New Ulm, a previous winner in 1934, 1941 and 1978. Post 132 was a state runner-up in 1983 and 1989. It was the first championship game appearance for Cold Spring.

New Ulm beat Richfield 9-2, Winona 10-0 and defending state champion Excelsior 4-2 to reach the finals.

Cold Spring got by Alexandria 4-3 in a nine-inning opener and out-scored Osseo 12-8 before losing to Excelsior 2-0. But Post 455 came back through the losers bracket with wins over Alexandria, 12-2, Rosetown Memorial of Roseville 13-3 and Excelsior 3-1.

Because Minnesota features the third largest American Legion baseball program in the country, the state advances two teams into regional play, with New Ulm heading to the Central Plains Region 6 playdowns at Omaha, Nebraska, while Cold Spring competes in the Great Lakes Region 5 event at Steubenville, Ohio.

Regional play takes place Aug. 19-23, with the winners earning spots in the 1992 American Legion World Series Aug. 26-30 in Fargo, North Dakota.

Thief River Falls finished the year at 29-13. New Ulm advances with a 32-10 mark. Cold Spring sports a 32-12 record.

Duck, goose hunting dates are announced

Minnesota's duck and goose seasons are expected to open Saturday, Oct. 3, the Department of Natural Resources announced. That is good news for Minnesota Waterfowl hunters, said Roger Holmes, director of the DNR Fish and Wildlife Division.

"For months we were very concerned that the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service would delay the opening day for ducks later than Saturday, Oct. 3, Holmes said. "This would have required us to open our duck season on Saturday, Oct. 10, to maintain our strong tradition to Saturday openings that ensure school-aged children, their parents, and those who must work during the week a chance to hunt together. This late date would have also likely meant much less opportunity to hunt early migrants like teal and wood ducks, and a very short duck season because of our early freeze-up."

"I know this decision will please Minnesota waterfowl hunters greatly," Holmes added. "Thankfully the Regulations Committee, representing the director of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, considered input from service staff, flyway councils, states, conservation organizations, and concerned individuals and endorsed the earlier duck opener."

"Given the slight improvement in duck breeding populations and a fall flight similar to 1991, the Fish and Wildlife Service plans to maintain the 30-day season and three-duck bag limit," said Holmes. "We support this conservative approach to harvest during years of low duck populations."

Minnesota plans to maintain the three-segment split duck season that was implemented last year. "We heard many favorable comments on the hunting opportunity provided by the split season, even though the early freeze-up last year eliminated much of the waterfowl hunting during the last segment," Holmes said. "The combination of the earlier opener and three-segment split allows hunting of early migrants, such as blue-winged teal and wood ducks, while providing opportunity for those who like to hunt later in the fall."

The proposed 1992 Minnesota duck hunting season will be split into three segments:

1) beginning at noon on Saturday, Oct. 3, and continuing through Sunday, Oct. 11;

2) from Thursday, Oct. 15, through Sunday, Nov. 1; and

3) from Friday, Nov. 6, through Sunday, Nov. 8.

Duck shooting hours and bag limits are expected to be the same as last year, with shooting ending at 4 p.m. through Friday, Oct. 16, and at sunset thereafter.

The goose season should also be similar to last year, except that it will begin at noon on Saturday, Oct. 3, the same day as the duck opener. This is five days later than the 1991 opener, because of the calendar effects of a Saturday opener.

Additional details on Minnesota's proposed waterfowl seasons will be announced in early September.

Tree program will be offered through DNR organization

Minnesota Department of Natural Resources Division of Forestry, in cooperation with the Legislative Commission on Minnesota Resources has established a Minnesota ReLeaf Community Forest Program.

The program is intended to increase the ability of community forests to reduce atmospheric carbon dioxide through direct sequestration and energy conservation. This includes planting, preservation and maintenance of trees in Minnesota cities and towns. Grant funds will be available to communities and organizations on a competitive basis for community forestry projects.

Applications will be accepted from local units of government (municipality, township, county, school districts, soil and water conservation districts, other legal entity of local government), and non-profit organizations.

Communities applying for the funds must meet the standards of the Tree City USA program sponsored by the National Arbor Day Foundation, including the following:

- A legally constituted tree board or department.
- A municipal tree ordinance.
- A comprehensive community forestry program supported by a minimum of $2 per capita.
- An annual Arbor Day proclamation and observance.

Communities which do not currently meet the Tree City USA standards may still apply for funding, but may have project approval deferred until the standards are achieved (funds may be used to help meet the per capitol expenditure requirements).

Several types of projects will be eligible for funding under the program:

- Planting of trees strategically around buildings to provide shade for energy conservation.
- Increase shade cover in communities to reduce wind, to shade pavement, or to reduce local summer temperatures.
- To plant community windbreaks.
- To purchase land or easements for tree planting sites, tree nursery production, or preservation of existing tree cover.
- To increase prevention and control of damage by insects and diseases to maintain tree health and vigor.

For further information and/or to receive an application for Minnesota ReLeaf, contact the area forest supervisor in Warroad by calling 386-1304.

Controlled hunt goose zones...

Reservation system will be utilized at Thief Lake

Hunters may apply again this year to reserve goose hunting stations within the controlled hunt zones at the Thief Lake and Lac qui Parle wildlife management areas, the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources announced.

Applications will be accepted on the basis of the earliest postmark, but must not be postmarked earlier than Aug. 24, or later than Sept. 19. Applications postmarked prior to Aug. 24 will be rejected. Although waterfowl season dates will not be officially set until early September, the Minnesota goose season is expected to open Oct. 3.

Hunters may apply to reserve one of the stations within the controlled hunting areas of Thief Lake and Lac qui Parle. Applications must be made on a standard 3 1/2 inch by 5 1/2-inch postcard (available at post offices) bearing the applicant's full name and address. Applicants should list their first, second and third choices of dates, and indicate whether they will accept an alternate date if none of their choices is available.

Only one postcard per hunter may be submitted to each area. Those submitting more than one application per area will have all of their applications rejected.

Applications should be sent to: Controlled Hunt, Thief Lake Wildlife Management Area, HCR, Box 17, Middle River, MN 56737; or Controlled Hunt, Lac qui Parle Wildlife Management Area, Route 1, Box 23, Watson, MN 56295.

Successful applicants will receive reservations by mail designating the day of their hunt. Only successful applicants will be notified. Goose hunting stations will be assigned through a drawing held on the morning of the hunt. Reservation holders may be accompanied by one or two guests. However, persons participating in the hunt will be limited to three trips either as guests or as successful applicants.

At Thief Lake, the reservation system will be in effect only through Oct. 19. After that date, stations will be available on a first-come, first-choice basis. The system will be in effect at Lac qui Parle for the entire goose season.

At Lac qui Parle, all hunters using hunting stations in the controlled hunt zone who are 18 years of age or older will be charged a $3 fee on the day of their hunt to partially cover controlled hunt special expenses.

The six-shell limit, shooting hours, and steel shot restrictions will be strictly enforced, according to DNR wildlife officials.

The DNR also alerted hunters that a special permit, valid for the entire season, will be required again this year for all goose hunters in the West Central and La qui Parle goose zones. Portions of Big Stone, Swift, Chippewa, Yellow Medicine, and Lac qui Parle counties lie within the West Central and Lac qui Parle goose zones. The special permit is required of all hunters regardless of whether hunting on state or private land. Applications for these permits will be available from license agents, auditors offices, and DNR offices in mid-August. Hunters will also need a small game license, and state and federal waterfowl stamps.

Counties receiving DNR tax payments

A total of $4,540,048 has been distributed by the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources to 67 Minnesota counties, according to DNR Commissioner Rod Sando.

"Each year, the DNR makes a significant contribution to the budgets of counties throughout the state through the in-lieu-of-tax payments," Sando said. "Our partnership with the counties and local governments are important to the DNR."

Sixty-seven of Minnesota's 87 counties received the current in-lieu-of-tax payments. The remaining 20 counties have already received payments from other funds for eligible DNR lands.

The in-lieu-of-tax payments ranged in size up to the $888,758 sent to St. Louis County in northeastern Minnesota.

Pennington County received $6,976 in the in-lieu-of-tax payments; Marshall County received $73,757; and Red Lake County received $2,118.

This is the 13th year that the DNR has made in-lieu-of-tax payments. This results in tax reductions for Minnesota citizens and increased local resource development for the counties, Sando noted.

When added to funds distributed earlier this year from taxes paid on public hunting lands, consolidated conservation lands, state park lands, goose lands, and sale of state timer, the DNR's in-lieu-of-tax payments total more than $6,285,722.

By law, counties are required to deposit 40 percent of the funds received in the county general fund. Another portion must be deposited in a county resource development fund for use in forest management, game and fish habitat improvement, recreational development, and maintenance of county administered natural resources land. However, any county receiving less than $5,000 annually for the resource development fund may elect to deposit that amount in the county general revenue fund. Organized townships also receive funds for road and bridge projects.

DNR Ranks High

Minnesota Department of Natural Resources manages fish, wildlife and native plants better than similar agencies in most states, according to a recent nationwide study.

The Management Effectiveness Study, conducted in 1991 by a team from the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, Organization of Wildlife Planners, and Virginia Tech University, asked natural resources administrators across the United States to select state fish and wildlife agencies with the best public support, agency management, political credibility, planning effectiveness, funding stability, ability to resolve conflicts, and employee morale. Minnesota's was among the nine outstanding agencies selected.

In May 1992, the Management Effectiveness Task Force interviewed DNR employees and Minnesota conservation group leaders to find what makes the Minnesota Division of Fish and Wildlife so successful.

The piping plover is all but extinct on its Minnesota summer breeding grounds, according to wildlife research experts with the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources.

The piping plover is one of two native Minnesota bird species (along with the peregrine falcon) that share the sad distinction of appearing on both the state and federal lists of officially endangered species – those with regional and nationwide populations so small, the species could cease to exist in the very near future.

Following the national trend, Minnesota's piping plover population has shrunk to a handful of breeding pairs on the shores of Morris Point and Pine and Curry islands, which form the north border of Four-Mile Bay, between Morris Point and Wheeler's Point on Lake of the Woods.

The piping plover is a small shorebird with tanish-gray back and wings, a white belly and orange legs. Its summer plumage includes a black collar and headband that disappear during the winter. The piping plover is related to the larger, more prevalent killdeer.

At one time, the plover's summer habitat included lakeshores and prairie sand dunes throughout the upper midwest and south-central Canada, along with sand-beach areas of the Great Lakes and north-Atlantic seaboard. In Minnesota, plovers nested on a few sites in the Duluth harbor, and on islands and sand points along the south shore of Lake of the Woods.

The Duluth harbor population dropped from 14 birds in 1977 to zero in 1986, and no plovers have returned since. Lake of the Woods population has declined in recent years, from a high of 49 birds in 1984 to 14 in 1991.

Most recently, Lake of the Woods plovers have nested on Morris Point and Pine and Curry Islands. The islands became a designated state Scientific and Natural Area in 1982, owned and managed by the DNR. The area is open to the public, but activities such as picnicking and over-night camping are restricted. Plover breeding sites are designed sanctuary areas, completely off-limits [illegible] September 1 each year.

"A plover nest is just a tiny scrape in the sand on an open beach, with four very small, tan-speckled eggs," said Katie Haws, DNR Nongame Wildlife Specialists for northwestern Minnesota.

Eggs are hatched in early June and require four weeks to hatch. "The eggs and chicks are very vulnerable to bad weather and predators," explained Haws. "Adult plovers are easily frightened and are quick to abandon their nest."

Plover predators include small mammals such as mink and fox, as well as other birds – primarily crows and gulls. Minnesota's 1991 population of 14 plovers included six nesting pairs that produced a total of 20 chicks – only three or four which survived to fledgling or flight state by early August.

Protection for the breeding grounds now include a designated trapper to remove fur-bearing predators, and a monitoring program to survey and protect active nesting sites. This year the DNR also hired Krin Tetzlaff on a special internship to monitor the islands full-time, and try to discourage gulls from nesting in the side areas usually inhabited by plovers.

Questions concerning the plover within the Pine/Curry Island area may be directed to Haws at 755-2976, DNR Wildlife Research Biologist Steve Maxson in Bemidji at 755-2973; or Jeff Dittrich, DNR Area Wildlife Manager in Baudette, at 634-1705.

Ex-employee of Marvin Windows wins court case

In a decision filed August 7, the Minnesota Supreme court has ruled in favor of an ex-employee of Marvin Windows of Warroad.

The employee, Larry Boryca, injured his back at work in 1986 and 1987. As a result of these injuries and complications, he became involved in compensation dispute. He then allegedly telephoned Marvin officials in 1989 threatening to kill them and himself. As a result, his employment was terminated at Marvin's and his workers' compensation benefits were discontinued. The Supreme Court held that a worker discharged for misconduct cannot be deprived of permanent total disability compensation for which he would otherwise be eligible. Boryca was represented by John Winters of Crookston.

Revenue Dept gives $5 million to District 2

The Minnesota Department of Revenue has just paid over $5 million dollars of state aids to the counties, cities and townships in Senate District 2. Included in this payment is $670,000 to Polk County.

The state pays a variety of aids to local governments to provide property tax relief for homeowners, farmers and businesses.

These aids include local government aids to cities and townships and homestead and agricultural credit aids used to compensate all local governments for the property tax reduction that homeowners and farmers receive from the homestead and agricultural credit on their property tax statements.

The $5.1 million is only the first payment of these aids that the counties, cities and townships will receive this year. Another $5.1 million will be paid in December. In addition, education nids are paid bimonthly throughout the year to local school districts and further reduce local property taxes.

Rationale is presented for school restructuring plan

Mark Larson

(Editor's Note: Mark Larson served as chairman of the citizens' committee which developed the basics for the School District 564 restructuring plan. That plan has been further defined and developed and is being presented to the residents of the district in the form of a bond issue Tuesday, September 15. The Times asked him to present his views as to the rationale for the project, especially the single elementary school complex.)

by Mark Larson

The Project Is Right.

After months of evaluating facility problems and potential solutions, the school district long range planning and advisory committee determined that the project being presented to the voters is the most cost effective and educationally sound solution. It was not accepted by the committee with just a majority vote; it was accepted unanimously —without a single dissenting vote.

The members of this committee included representatives of most major constituencies in the school district: Senior citizens, agriculture, labor, retail, industrial, wholesale, government, etc. Each member brought a unique perspective, unique concerns and unique interests.

Yet after many months and meetings they all agreed on one plan to present to the school board.

The Price Is Right.

On September 15, 1992, the citizens of School District 564 will have the opportunity to vote on a bond issue that, if passed, will implement this plan and result in a major restructuring of our school system.

And although the voters of the district will be asked to bond for the full $17,950,000 project cost, in actual fact the State of Minnesota will pay about $14 million of this cost. This means the taxpayers of School District 564 will pay only $3,950,000 for a project valued at nearly $18 million.

The Beginning. When the committee first met in July of 1991, I think it would be accurate to say that the members had no preconceived ideas as to what the outcome of this evaluation process should be or would be.

Criteria for the evaluation of each of the district's school buildings included factors such as safety considerations, maintenance and energy costs, compliance with state and federal regulations, ability to meet program needs, etc.

The evaluation process was slow but thorough. Input from administration, teachers, support staff and the citizen committee members flowed freely throughout the process.

The Conclusions.

Ultimately the committee concluded that School District 564 could not justify the additional investment necessary to keep Knox and Northrop elementary schools open. It was also determined that Washington elementary school could be used more effectively as the school district service center, adult learning center and for community education, and that Franklin middle school should be expanded to include the Mark Twain elementary school building.

It was determined that a single elementary school should be built to replace the current elementary schools. And finally, it was determined that several areas of deficiency not addressed in the last construction project at Lincoln high school should be corrected.

The Logic.

As the committee evaluated the various school buildings, it was clear that there were some very real problems to address.

For example, Knox elementary school is more than 70 years old. It has a wood frame with brick veneer. Its classrooms are 20 to 30 per cent below recommended size and have noisy floors and poor acoustics. Knox is a two-story building that is not handicapped accessible and has no toilet facilities on the second floor. It is not an energy efficient building.

The state fire marshall says a sprinkler system must be installed by 1994. Under the American Disability Act it will be necessary to install an elevator along with a number of other accommodations for handicapped students.

How much money should be put into a building of this age? What would we have when we were finished? It was the consensus of the committee that spending the kind of dollars that would be necessary to address the problems at Knox would not be a wise use of taxpayers' money.

Northrop elementary is 75 years old. It is also of wood frame construction with brick veneer. It also has two floors with no accessibility to the second floor for handicapped and no toilet facilities on the second floor.

The state fire marshall has ordered that kindergartners, first graders and second graders be prohibited from using the second floor, but computers and library are part of the curriculum, even for students of this age....and the computer room and library are on the second floor.

Northrop classrooms are smaller than recommended size and, like Knox, a sprinkler system and elevator must be installed along with other accommodations to meet requirements of the disability act.

Once again, the committee concluded that it could not justify the substantial additional investment required at Northrop in view of its age and inherent weaknesses.

It should be noted that the committee did agree that every effort should be made to maintain the relatively newer "gym kindergarten" additions at both Knox and Northrop. Although it was not considered feasible for the school district to continue to own and operate these facilities, it was felt that their potential for use as neighborhood recreation centers should be explored.

Washington elementary school was built in 1957 and does not have safety or compliance problems to the same degree as either Knox or Northrop. But the building design does result in some significant programmatic problems. The fact that dining and physical education must share a common area is an example of such a conflict. The computer room is also extremely inadequate and special education is critically lacking space. Breakout sessions often require the use of hallways or entryways.

In view of the total needs of the district, it was felt that it would be more advantageous programmatically and more cost effective to utilize Washington elementary as the school district service center, adult learning center and community education center.

Mark Twain elementary, like Washington elementary, has only minor problems in terms of safety or compliance. But Mark Twain is essentially a satellite to Franklin middle school and this is the source of several major programmatic conflicts. Mark Twain shares a physical education-dining area with Franklin. The tight scheduling makes it difficult to use the space for auxiliary programs and the low ceiling makes it only marginally useful for physical education activities.

Mark Twain also shares a computer lab with Franklin. Once again there are scheduling problems and the facility is essentially inappropriate for elementary use. A third section of kindergarten is located in a standard classroom that lacks the size, equipment and activity spaces of a room designed for kindergarten.

Franklin middle school must contend with all of the same program conflict and scheduling problems as Mark Twain. In addition, the media center is undersized and there is a lack of space for large group instruction and class assemblies. There is also a lack of space for breakout sessions and a need for a student commons—a gathering space before and after school and during lunch. Furthermore, the art room is lacking space and the current building configuration does not respond fully to the need to group middle school students into grade or ability level "houses" or "pods."

On the basis of the space and programmatic problems at Franklin and in an effort to address the other concerns noted, the committee determined that it would be in the best interest of the school district to have the Mark Twain building become part of Franklin middle school.

A Single Elementary School.

Although initially the option of replacing the four existing grade schools with a single elementary school seemed radical, the more we studied the problems and evaluated potential solutions the more reasonable this alternative became. Ultimately the committee agreed that a single grade school was clearly the best choice.

Our group had initial concerns for the loss of the neighborhood school and the potential for increased busing of students with a single elementary school. But we came to realize the fact that our elementary schools frequently no longer serve a neighborhood. Over 70 per cent of the students are already being bused and a high percentage of the balance receive rides to school. It is not uncommon for two children living next door to each other to be bused to two different schools. Realistically, the neighborhood school is not what it used to be.

Little Schools In A Big School.

Yes, the single elementary school would be larger than any of our existing elementary schools, but we believe the children would be placed into a very secure environment. The classrooms for a given grade would be separate from every other grade. The students in a grade would enjoy the security of their own learning "pod." They would access common eating, physical education, media and music centers only under supervision and return to their "pod" for the balance of their educational activity.

Both in perception and reality, the young student will be part of a more secure environment than is currently offered by our present "neighborhood" schools. But the advantages of having one elementary school would go far beyond the security offered by these learning "pods."

One elementary attendance center will provide for more efficient use of instructional staff and resources. It will provide for the development of core facilities—facilities that support the educational process outside the general purpose classroom. Examples are gymnasium space, media center, special education facilities, music, art and small group instructional areas.

Furthermore, we could eliminate or reduce duplication of many materials, equipment and resources common to each attendance site. Additionally, operating expenditures could be greatly reduced by consolidating to one site.

The single elementary attendance site is viewed by the committee as a win/win situation: The students gain in terms of program and support strengths and the taxpayer wins in terms of more efficient operation at less cost.

The Final Word.

The restructuring project proposed in the bond issue is a well thought out, cost effective solution to the problems facing School District 564 and, if implemented, would position us well into the 21st Century.

It would give our students a safer learning environment and one that would better serve contemporary program needs. We are confident that this restructuring would have a significant positive impact on the quality of education for all students in the district.

We have the right project. Now, thanks to the State of Minnesota, we can implement this project at an incredibly low cost to the citizens of the district. How long the state will elect to subsidize the cost of this type of project is anybody's guess. The only way to be sure that we can get this project for less than 25 cents on the dollar is to act now. With a "yes" vote on September 15, School District 564 taxpayers can get a long-term solution to educational problems and save $14 million in the process.

Back to school pointers on art to build self-esteem

The visual arts have been shown to have positive effects on a child's thinking and problem-solving skills. Art is also a powerful self-esteem launcher and the perfect alternative to commercial television.

Here are some ideas to help you create a positive art atmosphere in your home from Mark Kistler, IOF Foresters parenting consultant known as "Commander Mark" on his national PBS TV series, The Secret City.

•Ask your child to sign a "Say Yes to Art and No to TV" contract. Your contract can contain the line, "I fully understand that I am a brilliant genius and that I am brave enough to attempt this two-week drawing challenge. Courageously signed _____." Hang the contract on the refrigerator as a reminder.

•Start an "art supplies don't count as gifts" rule. Make art supplies as available as books. Consider them a staple of life just like water and air.

•Keep track of a child's progress. This is a great motivator. Prepare a chart showing your child's progression from level to level.

•Assign a specific spot in the house to be used as an art center. This will be the family's designated "art attack" area. Hang white paper rolls on the walls so there will be plenty of space to draw.

•Try these idea starter sentences to spark creativity. "I'm on a chocolate river. What does my boat look like?" "In Furbleville, where do Furbles work? Do they live under water, in caves or on a star base?"

•Set aside an evening each week for an Art Attack Hour. Participate alongside your kids to let them know that you think art is important.

As "Commander Mark," on The Secret City, Kistler has taught 10 million viewers of all ages how to draw. In addition to his popular TV drawing show, Kistler serves as parenting consultant to The Independent Order of Foresters.

Timely tips for school success

One of the top students of all time said, "Excellence is not an act, but a habit." If Aristotle were studying today he would be well advised to apply modern time management techniques to his academic career.

•It's the result, not the amount of effort that counts. One hour of relaxed, uninterrupted study can be worth a day of half-hearted studying.

•Budget time for an assignment and then add 25 percent. Most people are over optimistic when it comes to estimating time.

•Prioritize your daily study assignments like an emergency room doctor. Do the most critical and not the easiest assignments first.

•Book it! Plan your time and projects by using the all-in-one format of a personal organizer. These looseleaf binders have sections for recording assignments and taking notes. Ideas and information can be filed by category inside for later reference when writing papers.

"My organizer has helped improve my study habits and my grade point average," noted a university student. A high school scholar remarked, "It was well-worth my mother's money."

Communicating with your teen

Teen-agers are a large segment of the population served by child welfare agencies. Of the 2 million children, youths and families who are assisted by the 675 agencies in the Child Welfare League of America, nearly a million are teenagers. They live in group care facilities, with foster families and in independent living programs. Some are in programs for pregnant and parenting youths, while others receive services of child welfare agencies because they are homeless, chemically dependent, HIV infected or have AIDS.

Certain basic understandings are helpful for parents and other adult authority figures responsible for teenagers. The following tips, from [illegible] within the child welfare system, are useful for adults who are working to develop healthy, stable relationships with teens in other settings.

What Can You Do?

•Kids deserve respect, and adults should give it to them and expect it from them. This includes a show of respect for their friends. Never berate or belittle teens in front of their peers.

•Think about how often you ask teen-agers questions and seek their opinions.

•The bravado and boasting displayed by some teens can be a coverup for insecurity. That adolescent boy or girl with the know-it-all attitude may be unsure of himself or herself and in search of your guidance.

•Finally, communicate, communicate, communicate. Make a point to talk with teens when there's not a problem. Conversations with teens can be refreshing and insightful, and they should be a part of each day. Most take place in the presence of other people, so find occasions to talk with your teen alone away from brothers, sisters and anyone else. And make sure you listen carefully to what is being said as well as what is not. Effective communication is, after all, the key to healthy relationships.

Northern Expressions is home to area magnet arts students

"Northern Expressions School of the Arts is a tuition free magnet arts school for the Seventh Congressional District of Minnesota and is open to any student who will be in the 11th or 12th grade during the 1992-1993 school year," states Marie Hvidsten, coordinator of the arts program.

"Students can enroll in one of four art areas for this first year: literary arts, theater arts, music (vocal, instrumental, orchestral) and dance. Media arts and visual arts will be added to the curriculum for the 1993-94 school year."

While it is integrated with Lincoln high school, the arts school has several components that are unique beyond the concentrated arts focus, Hvidsten said. Students will have an individualized learning plan which will be arranged by each student, his or her parents and an advisor from the school.

"School course work will be integrated to help students understand the relationship and connection among subject areas," Hvidsten said.

"The arts school is also designed around outcomes rather than seat time in a class. When a student masters a pre-determined outcome, that student will be allowed to move on to the next challenge, regardless of how long he or she has been in the class."

Fifteen students have been accepted into the arts school. They include Brent Pankow, son of Terry and Cheryl Pankow, Crookston, vocal music; Kathy Bergquist, daughter of Glen and Georgie Bergquist, Fosston, vocal music; Suzanne Cassidy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Cassidy, New York Mills, theater arts; Jennifer Strang, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Strang, Perham, theater arts; Vanessa Anderson, daughter of Cecil and Maryel Anderson, Thief River Falls, vocal music; Ingrid Morken, daughter of David and Mary Morken, Thief River Falls, literary arts; Beth Natvik, daughter of Joe and Barb Natvik, Thief River Falls, literary arts; Mitch Seramstad, son of David and Patricia Seramstad, Thief River Falls, theater arts; Maren Dyrud, daughter of Loiell and Mary Dyrud, Thief River Falls, literary arts; Liza Hoaas, daughter of Tim and Yvonne Hoaas, Thief River Falls, Instrumental music; Rodney Joppru, son of Orrin and Linda Joppru, Thief River Falls, Theater arts; Melanie Krepp, daughter of Julio and Diane Krepp, orchestral music; Rachael Marshall, daughter of Everett and Diane Marshall, Thief River Falls, theater arts; and, Sara Tyler, daughter of Richard and Mary Tyler, Thief River Falls, literary arts.

Arrangements are being made by the arts school staff to provide host families for students from out of town.

Expanded instruction and learning opportunities will be provided to students in their particular arts discipline at the arts school with instruction given primarily by Lincoln faculty members. In addition, each student is required to attend an "Expressive Connections" class for one semester at some time during his or her studies at the arts school.

The Expressive Connections class is an interdisciplinary study in humanities which is team taught to show the relationship among and between the arts area and general studies. Students will work in the several arts areas as individuals and in cooperative groups.

Students will also be involved in a community service project as part of their Art School experience. The community service project will build on the student's specific art area. This experience will help bring the "hands on" experience to their class work.

Within each arts discipline there are a number of areas of participation. Music, for instance, is divided into orchestra, vocal and band areas with both group and private instruction. All music students in the program learn to use the elements of music - including notes, chords and scale - to create original compositions.

Literary arts students will study one quarter of fiction writing, one of dramatic writing, one of poetry writing and one of independent writing. This class will be a two hour class and will begin at 7:30 a.m. daily. This will be one of several early bird classes offered at Lincoln High School this fall.

Theater arts will be taught primarily through a two-hour theater block on the schedule and will include introduction to theater, improvisation, technical theater, production and performance and dramatic literature.

No students are currently enrolled in the dance area which is also a two-hour block on the schedule. It will offer beginning and intermediate dance techniques, dance history, improvisation, and composition.

No students are currently enrolled in the dance area which is also a two-hour block on the schedule. It will offer beginning and intermediate dance techniques, dance history, improvisation, and composition.

The teaching staff for the Northern Expressions School of the Arts has been set. They include Loiell Dyrud, literary arts; Connie Stock, theater arts; Bruce Felt, Darcy Reese, and Bonnie Knapp, music; and Helen Anderson, dance; Michelle Duffy will be hired as a dance consultant to work with Helen Anderson. Media Arts: Alice Hofstad and Dave Peterson. Visual Arts: Sandra Larson.

ECFE makes fall quarter schedule

The Thief River Falls Early Childhood Family Education (ECFE) program is designed for parents and their children ages birth up to kindergarten enrollment. Our mission is to strengthen families and enhance the competence of young children by supporting parents in their important roles as their child's first and primary teacher. We do this by involving both the parent and child in family activities and classes. ECFE is designed to provide information, education, resources, support and encouragement to parents.

Registration for fall quarter classes begins on Sept. 8, with classes starting on Sept. 28. For more information call 681-8670.

This fall a new program, Learning Readiness, will be available to all four and five year old children (not yet in kindergarten). The goal of this program is to provide families with opportunities that will help children prepare for school.

•All children who participated in the Early Childhood Screenings last May will automatically receive information about the program. Learning Readiness is not meant to take the place of other preschool programs such as a nursery school or Head Start, but will work to complement these programs.

Children will enter the Thief River Falls Learning Readiness program after they have participated in Early Childhood Screenings. If your child is eligible for kindergarten in the fall of 1993 but has not yet been screened please call 681-8670 for an appointment. Early Childhood Screenings are required of all children before they enter a public school.

Advisor/advisee class continues to grow at Franklin

In the summer of 1990 a group of Franklin Middle School teachers met to set down a curriculum for a new class involving the daily teaching and discussion of social concerns of adolescents. Prior to the establishment of the Advisor/Advisee class, a number of teachers attended workshops, including a convention in Southern California, to learn how and what needed to be included in such a course.

An Advisor/Advisee curriculum book was written and ideas were taken from several published and non-published curriculums on social and study skills. The lessons were put into specific lesson format, typed and set in binders, one going to each teacher.

In the summer of 1991, groups of teachers from the 6th, 7th, and 8th grades continued to revise the Advisor/Advisee book, breaking it down into subjects felt most pertinent for the three grade levels. Many of the lessons incorporated into the curriculum books included lessons on awareness of self and others; skills in ways to improve academic excellence; activities providing students the opportunity to bond with the middle level program, teachers and other students; lessons helping them to think through choices students need to make regarding social skills, career choices, and problem solving; lessons teaching communication skills; and ideas on how to build interpersonal relationships with others.

The Advisor/Advisee program is not a new idea but has caught on in schools all around the nation. In 1982 this statement was made in an article in the National Middle School Association magazine entitled This We Believe. "Each early adolescent learner needs an adult who teaches them well and is in a position to give individual attention. Therefore, the middle school should be organized so that every youngster has such an adult, one who has a special responsibility for this individual's academic and personal welfare."

Each day at Franklin for about 25 minutes about 20 students and an adult meet together to discuss academic and school life concerns in order to assure optimum efficiency in relation to the challenges of the learning environment.

The days of the week are divided up into different activities. One day school activities for the week are discussed such as big tests coming up, athletic activities, report cards and town activities. This day is called Organizational Day. Two days are devoted to teaching a social or study skills lesson out of the Advisor/Advisee curriculum book. Some lesson titles are Know your building, Advisor, and handbook; Parent/Teacher Conferences - What do they talk about, What do I think I am like, Sharing likes and Dislikes; or I'm Locked out. Another day finds the students reading leisure books and teacher too. And Friday might be scheduled for reward assemblies, board and card games in the rooms, outdoor volleyball or kickball, or quiz programs such as Family Feud or Knowledge Bowl held in the Gym.

Today the schools are playing more of a role in helping children to develop good social skills along with reinforcing ethical values. The middle school-age student is at a most critical emotional growing period. Extended guidance must be offered these children. Adolescence is a crucial period in which many fateful decisions are made - to go to college, to leave school, to prepare for a vacation, to learn to be accepted in a group. Students at this age need all the help that trained personnel can give them. The important goal with this program is to give more individual attention to children not only in academic pursuits but in their emotional development throughout this self-discovery period.

"Our 15-year old will be:

1. An intellectually reflective person.
2. A person on route to a lifetime of meaningful work.
3. A good citizen.
4. A caring and ethical individual.
5. A healthy person."

From Turning Points, Carnegie Foundation, 1988.

"We should all be concerned about the future because we will have to spend the rest of our lives there."

—Charles Kettering

Computers to network Lincoln High

Thief River Falls Lincoln High School purchased around 30 Macintosh computers for faculty use and will hook them up before school begins.

The computers will be distributed throughout Lincoln High classrooms. The computers will be connected with one another, enabling communication between different teachers in different classrooms.

Dave Peterson, chairman of the computer committee and senior high computer teacher, said the computer will initially be used for attendance, grading and scheduling.

The computers could also eventually be used as encyclopedias and other reference material, Peterson said. Teachers may use the computers for presentations and demonstrations. "The teachers' use of the computers will spill over into the students' use," Peterson said.

Every computer will be connected with one central file server which enables teachers to access any file they need.

When funding permits, Peterson said the computer system will be expanded to every classroom as well as administrative offices. Peterson said he would eventually like to see every school district building networked through the use of computers.

"To know is nothing at all; to imagine is everything."

Aides must be 18 years old and a high school graduate.

Each group has specific child to adult ratios. Infants who are 6 weeks to 16 months have a 4 to 1 ratio. Toddlers are children who are 16 months to 33 months have a 7 to 1 ratio. Preschool children who are 33 months to kindergarten have a 10 to 1 ratio and school-age children have a 15 to 1 ratio. School-age children are children are children who have entered kindergarten to age 12.

Under the direction of the Minnesota State Department of Human Services, all programs of licensed child care centers in this state are designed to encourage growth in every area of a child's development physical, mental, social and emotional.

The physical development of each child is fostered through good nutrition, health and safety awareness, and equipment or daily activities which encourage use of large and small muscles.

Fostering mental development requires knowledge on the part of child care teachers concerning appropriateness of activities for each stage of a child's cognitive development. Activities and materials are chosen that allow each child to explore, experiment, and draw their own conclusions about the world around them.

Social Development advances quickly in a group setting, since opportunities abound for practice in such social skills as cooperation, problem-solving, and communication. [illegible] children as well as adults. Simple rules and appropriate guidance help children understand [illegible] of behavior within the [illegible] are allowed.

Healthy emotional development is nurtured by the kind of messages the child receives from physical and verbal communication and attention given or withheld. Child care teachers are trained to focus on the positive ways of [illegible] a child's sense of self worth. Activities which foster independence and self expression are a vital part of the child care center's curriculum.

Standards set by the State along with unannounced inspections help to ensure that every child care center in Minnesota is providing opportunities for growth in all areas of development. It is a requirement that in each program a variety of "interest centers" are set up a large

Choosing a high quality child care setting for your child

Choosing a high quality child care setting may be one of the most difficult, but important tasks that parents will do for their children.

As parents become more aware of some of the problems and practices in some programs, the tendency is to think that all programs operate in a manner that is not good for young children. This is false. Most of the programs that are in operation in this state are interested and concerned about the children that they care for.

A good child care setting is very important for young children. Studies have shown that children who experience a high quality child care program have positive experiences when they start school, are happier children, and adjust to new situations easier.

Some of the things that parents need to look for when looking for a [illegible] program are:

Is the discipline used non-threatening and non-physical? Children's self-esteem, or the way they feel about themselves, is determined to a great degree as to how they are treated, especially when their behavior needs to be guided into more appropriate manners of behavior. Threatening or physical discipline can make the child feel inferior.

Are the children happy? Parents should visit the center or home and actually watch the children. Do they appear to be happy, is there excessive crying, or arguing, and do they seem to like the teacher or caregiver?

Does the teacher or caregiver actually listen to the children? Children need to have the respect of people actually stopping and listening and responding to them. Does the teacher or caregiver actually look at the children when they talk, and respond to them?

Is there a daily schedule of the child's day? Children seem to enjoy a regular schedule. Children need to know what is happening next, and parents have a right to be able to see the schedule. There should be a balance of indoor/outdoor activities, as well as individual play time and teacher/caregiver directed time. There need to be both quiet times and active play. Is there indoor equipment for active play? During many times it is not possible to get the young children outside, but they still should have the opportunity for active play.

How much TV time is there? TV consumes many hours of many children's day. Therefore the use of the TV should be limited and programs should be appropriate for the age group shown. Children should not be forced to sit and watch TV.

Does the teacher or caregiver look happy and show warmth to the children? People who enjoy children will be smiling and look happy. Children deserve teachers or caregivers who want to teach and share their day with them.

Is there a wide variety of toys and equipment for the children to use? There should be more than one toy or piece of equipment for the children. Young children have a hard time sharing. Are the toys and equipment arranged in a manner that the children know what to play with, and is it on low shelves accessible [illegible] stored in boxes or on high shelves.

Are the art activities creative instead of color books or patterns? Children learn best by being able to express themselves creatively in drawing and free hand coloring. The materials that the children should have available to them are crayons, paints, playdough, sand and water.

Is there a special place to change diapers and is the sanitation policy good? Young children share many germs when sanitation is not good enough. Toys need to be washed and sanitized regularly, floors need to be kept clean, children and staff hands must be washed before eating, after bathroom use, and after all nose wiping and sneezes. Diapers need to be changed on a surface that is cleaned and sanitized after every change.

Are there any provisions for parent involvement? Parents are the first teacher of the child, and a good program encourages parents to share in their children's early learning experiences.

Is there a special individual place for each child's belongings? In a group setting, when there are other children, children need to know that there are things, and a place that is just for them, and no one else.

Are there policies and provisions made to prevent children from being abducted? This is a problem that we hear about too often, and it is the responsibility of the program to ensure the safety of all children. Parents need to know that no one will be able to pick their child up at the program without their knowledge and permission.

Does the program have regular fire drills? These are not problems that occur frequently, but if they do, parents need to know that children and staff know how to evacuate the building and remain safe.

Thief River Falls TC now Northwest

When Fall Quarter begins on September 1, 1992, Technical College staff and students will adjust to another in a series of changes over the past years. Effective July 1, 1992, Thief River Falls Technical College joined a partnership with 5 other TC's to become Northwest Technical College-Thief River Falls. Along with Thief River Falls, campuses at Bemidji, Detroit Lakes, East Grand Forks, Moorhead and Wadena joined the merger. Students and staff will notice very little change, other than the name, during the upcoming academic year.

With the merger, the 6 colleges are no longer under the guidance of local school districts, but a board consisting of local representatives from the six locations and a chief executive officer, Ray Cross, whose office is located in Bemidji. The merger also makes Northwest Technical College the largest in the Minnesota Technical College system with a combined enrollment of over 5,500. Thief River Falls has the largest student enrollment of the six campuses. The six campuses offer over 174 program majors which include more than 2,400 credit-based courses.

For an informational brochure on Northwest Technical College contact the Thief River Falls Campus, 681-5424 or toll free 1-800-222-2884.

High school organizes Tech Prep

Lincoln High School is organizing a Tech Prep program. Tech Prep is a means of integrating high school education with technical preparation for entrance to technical schools.

The Minnesota Department of Education awarded $200,000 of a federal Perkins grant to Thief River Falls to start Tech Prep. The grant is awarded over three years.

The Thief River Falls school district is one of seven Minnesota schools which received the grant.

The grades covered in the program are 11 and 12 graders, plus students two years out of high school.

"A lot of parents have concerns about tracking. It's not intended to to that. It intends to prepare all students to think in terms of post secondary education," said Tech Prep Coordinator Bev Arnston.

Arnston said ideally the program would appear in electives reflecting the students interests. If the student's interest is electronics, a class taken would be advance science. If the student's interest is in a medical career, they would attend an advance biology class.

"Going to a university and getting a bachelor's degree is not the only ticket to success. It's not true to give students that sense," Arnston said.

Arnston said a long-range goal for the program is a school community. The program will utilize the courses at the University of Minnesota - Crookston, Northwest Technical College - Thief River Falls, Northland Community College, School District 564, Northwest Vocational Center and local business and industry.

Arnston said the program potentially would form a partnership with local industries to help students see how classes "relate to the real world." Arnston said the partnership was in the planning stages, but that businesses have been "tremendously open."

Ten high school and vocational teachers attended a conference in Atlanta this summer addressing Tech Prep. Georgia is a member of the Southern Regional Education Board, a consortium of southern states which first implemented the Tech Prep program eight years ago.

One of the ten teachers who attended the conference was Ila Flesche. Flesche teaches health occupation classes.

Flesche said the southern states developed Tech Prep to meet the needs of students choosing specific careers. "My classes in health occupation (use) curriculum meant to meet the needs of students interested in continuing an occupation in health care profession," Flesche said.

Another aspect of Tech Prep, Flesche said, was using the "expertise of many academic specialists in math, science and english." Flesche is coordinating the subject of respiration and circulation between Bill Fogarty, a science teacher, and Janet Shaw, a home economics teacher.

Fogarty would take a biological approach to the subject. Shaw would discuss proper cooking to reduce the risks of heart attacks. Flesche would instruct students on the medical aspects, such as CPR.

By integrating vocational and academic courses in high school, Arnston said "(Students are) taught to see the relevance(of their classes) to the real world. It has the added dimension of application."

Arnston said the Thief River Falls program will be implemented "step by step."

Franklin Middle School merges two committees

Franklin Middle School is merging two of its committees to form the Building Leadership Team.

The two merged committees are the staff development committee and Minnesota Educational Effectiveness Program (MEEP).

Franklin Principal Bill Hahne said a major point of the merger was to increase site-based management. "(Now) all the power is on top. The people in the trenches will get more power and also more responsibility, Hahne said.

The new committee will consist of one teacher from grades six, seven and eight, one special education teacher, one support services personal, two teachers from elective classes, two students, two parents, and one administrator.

The teachers will be elected in the first week of school. The staff will decide which two students will be on the committee. The parents will be elected to the committee in September.

Hahne said the committees function will be to improve the school using MEEP goals and controlling staff development. Staff development consists of apportioning money to things such as educational workshops for teachers.

Eventually, Hahne said, the new committee will assume more responsibility, given school board approval.

Lincoln High introduces peer tutoring

Lincoln High School is introducing a peer tutoring program this year.

During this program, students assist other students, one on one, with schoolwork. "It doesn't mean necessarily that you have to have a 4.0 student doing the work as a tutor," said Lincoln High School Principal Terry Soine.

Peer tutoring is offered during study hall. The program is especially important for students who will test for admission to post-secondary classes, Soine said.

Franklin introduces student news

Franklin Middle School begins producing student news videos this year.

The news stories will be produced using equipment donated by Panasonic Corporation. The equipment, worth about $10,000, includes two editing decks, monitors and two camcorders. One large camcorder and one hand held camcorder. The class will also use two previously purchased camcorders and one video mixer, purchased through the Swenson grant, which records words on the monitor.

Franklin Middle School was one of four schools in the state which received the grant. The other three schools are located in the metro area. There are 200 recipients of the grant in the United States.

Sixth to eighth grade students will produce about 10-minute long news segments once a month. The segments will include local news and documentaries on subjects such as careers, said Mary Almquist, class instructor.

The equipment will also be used to help the faculty with presentations, Almquist said.

Almquist said the class will be modeled after the high school class, which produces a video program every two weeks. This high school class began two years ago and is taught by Dave Peterson as an advanced computer class.

"Dave and I are working together. We're going to make it a feeder program. We're going to create the interest," Almquist said.

"We use a lot of computer graphics to go with it. It's a technology class," Almquist said. Computer graphics are used between the video sequences and the computer is used to create backdrops.

"The kids are amazing – what they will pick up and figure out on their own," Almquist said. This is necessary, Almquist said, because students only have a 12-week period of time in the class. "But if you'll turn them loose, they'll figure it out themselves before too long."

Almquist said community volunteers are needed to assist with the video projects. "They don't have to be good at technology," Almquist said.

The Panasonic grant requires the name of the program to be Kid-Witness News. Another requirement to keep the equipment is to enter an annual national video contest. There are 200 such Panasonic grants to elementary and middle schools in the United States.

"The closest (schools) we could find doing the things we want to do were in the cities," Almquist said. But Almquist said other schools, such as the Warroad school and some North Dakota schools were already inquiring about the Thief River Falls program.

"(Five years ago) I would have been overwhelmed. It would have been a lot. But I think we're ready for it now," Almquist said.

"The first stages we'll have to get some of the bumps out of it."

A look at NCC music department

In response to the request of choral directors in the area, Northland Community College will be adding a vocal festival this fall. Choral students from area high schools will be selected to perform in the first Northwest Honors Choir concert on October 13, 1992. Les Torgerson, festival director, is very pleased to have secured Ms. Geneva Eschweiler as the first clinician for this event. Ms. Eschweiler is renowned in her field. She is the recipient of the 1990 F. Melius Christensen award from the Minnesota ACDA (American Choral Directors' Association). This is the highest award given by the ACDA. Ms. Eschweiler will conduct workshops as well as conduct the mass choir.

Northland Community College will also hold their 21st annual Autumn Musicale Band Festival on November 17, 1992. The northwest area Honor Band will once again participate in this event. Bob Bacca, director of jazz studies at the University of Wisconsin-Eau Claire, will be the clinician. Because of request from students, Bacca was asked to return to NCC for a repeat performance. Bacca was a guest clinician in 1990. Bacca and his University of Wisconsin-Eau Claire band have recently returned from a trip to China.

Don't forget to dust off your instrument and come and join the Northland Community Band. Rehearsals will begin Monday evenings beginning September 14. Community Band will be directed by Les Torgerson. Torgerson has been the Director of Music at Northland Community College since the fall of 1972. He holds a Bachelors and Masters Degree from Bemidji State University. He has also done graduate work at Indiana University and most recently at Arizona State University with Dr. Douglas McEwen. The Masters Degree was earned in trombone performance with studies guided by Lewis Van Haney of Indiana University and Dr. Thomas Swanson of Bemidji State University. Torgerson invites you to come join the band for music, fellowship, and fun.

The Northland Community College music department is continually striving to meet the needs of music educators and students in the area. The music department will be very busy this fall. For more information on concerts, times, and classes, etc., contact Les Torgerson at (218) 681-2181 or 1-9-800-628-9918.

Music enthusiasts can learn theory for college credit

A full year sequence of music theory will begin fall quarter 1992, at Northland Community College. Music Theory I is scheduled Monday, Tuesday, Thursday, and Friday at 11:00 a.m. in Room D 100. The four quarter hour credit class will focus on music notation, terminology, major and minor scales, signatures, intervals, rhythm, primary chords, sight singing, ear training and basic keyboard skills. Music Theory I is taught every year, but Music Theory II and III are offered only every other year. If you are interested, get involved this fall.

Music Theory II and III will follow consecutively winter and spring quarters. Advanced sight singing and ear training skills will be stressed, as well as basic arranging skills using primary, secondary, and altered chords.

The Northland Community College music department is equipped with state-of-the-art recording studio equipment, synthesizers, sequencers, and MIDI access to PC computer software programs including FINALE and MASTERWORKS PRO. Electronic equipment will be introduced during the theory sequence and additional instruction is available on private lesson basis.

Instructor for the music theory sequence is Les Torgerson.

For more information or to register, contact Northland Community College at (218) 681-2181 or 1-800-628-9918.

Back-to-school library pointers

Welcome back to school! Staff members at the Thief River Falls Public Library want students to know they are valued customers and want students to get what they want. So tell the staff members your needs and they will try to help all they can. To give you students a head-start, there are few tips:

1. Before you visit the public library, make sure you've checked your school library for the information you need. The public library is not a substitute for your school library, but it is a great resource for additional information.

2. Bring all necessary materials to the library including pencil, pen, paper, assignment sheet, your library card and change for the photocopy machine.

3. Make sure you know exactly what your assignment is. Also be sure you know the date it is due and how much information you need. (For example, if you only need to do a one-page paper, you won't need to look up as much information as if you were doing a 10-page report.)

4. Start early. The more time you have to gather information, the better chance you'll have to get all the information you need. If you come in the day before your report is due, you may find all the books you need have already been checked out and that there is no time to get information from another library.

5. If you need assistance, ask the library assistants to help you. They are trained to locate information and they'll be happy to aid you. They won't write your paper for you, but they'll help you find what you need so you can write it.

6. The World Book Encyclopedia is not the only place you can find information. Use all resources with information that are available in the library. That includes books, magazines, videocassettes, audiocassettes, computer software, and pamphlets. Plus, if you need information which is not available in the library, the public library can interlibrary loan books and call for specific [illegible]

7. Once you've found your information, be sure to jot down where you found it, including the author, title, publisher, date, volume, and/or number and the pages used.

8. If you need a short answer—like how late the library is open, the definition of a word or whether the library has a particular book, call. Our number is 681-4325. If you need something that requires a little research, however, come to the library and we'll be happy to help you find it for yourself.

9. For your convenience, the Thief River Falls Public Library is open the following hours:

Monday to Thursday - 9 a.m.-8:30 p.m.
Friday - 9 a.m. - 5 p.m.
Saturday - 10 a.m. - 5 p.m.
Sunday (October-April) 1 p.m. - 5 p.m.

Northland CC and NW TC to receive grant

Free child care will be provided evenings to all Northland Community College and Northwest Technical College-Thief River Falls students who are enrolled in a night course. This is made possible through the Innovative Child Care Grant sponsored by the Higher Education Coordinating Board.

The grant in the sum of $10,271.00 will be extended over the entire school year. The only requirements students must meet are they must be enrolled for an evening course at either of the campuses and their child(ren) must be between the ages of 16 months and 8 years of age. Discovery Place on Campus is licensed for 34 children.

According to Mary Ann Hodge, author of the grant, there were 30 proposals submitted and this was one of eight selected to receive the Innovative Child Care Grant.

Also beginning this fall, Discovery Place on Campus will transport infants from Northland to Discovery Place downtown. This is an added service, as Discovery Place on Campus is not licensed for infants.

Child care differs in many settings muscle play area (indoors and out), a dramatic play area (such as a 'kitchen' with dress-up clothes hanging nearby); a quiet area with comfortable chairs or cushions, books, puzzles, and games, a creative arts area stocked with art supplies and a variety of materials for use of desired; a science area containing objects to examine, explore, and experiment; a music area with a tape player and/or phonograph, rhythm instruments, and items of such as scarves for dance expression; a small-muscle activity area equipped with interlocking blocks, beads and string, shape sorters and more; a sensory area possibly offering sand or water play, or items with a variety of shapes, colors, and textures; and a construction area which perhaps has a workbench, tools and building materials.

In Thief River Falls, there are two group licensed all day child care centers. They are Discovery Place and Discovery Place On Campus. Discovery Place is located at 305 East Nora Street and Discovery Place On Campus is located behind Northland Community College.

Discovery Place is open from 6:30 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. and serves infants, toddlers, preschool, and school-age children. Discovery Place On Campus is open from 7:30 a.m. to 9:30 p.m. and serves toddlers and preschool children. The evening program also serves school-age children.

Discovery Place serves primarily working parents with the all day program. They also have a half day preschool program which meets 3 days a week from 9:00 to 11:30 a.m.

Discovery Place On Campus serves the needs of the college parent with on site child care. The campus program follows the college schedules and is closed when there are no scheduled classes. The evening program is open until 9:30 p.m. Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursdays. The evening program is open to the general public and anyone may use it.

Choosing a high quality child care setting important

Are children with special needs included in the activities and interacting with other children? Both the special need child and the other children will benefit from this type of inclusion and interaction.

Is there a suitable place for children to take a nap? This means that the areas should be relatively quiet and lights dimmed. The mat or cot should be comfortable and individual. Babies should have individual cribs. There should be blankets available for the children to cover up. Children should not be sharing the same blankets. Children should not be forced to sleep. This should be a pleasant and relaxing time.

Are the meals and snacks adequate and nutritious? The food the children eat is their fuel for the day. Food that is high in sugar or fat should be avoided. Milk, fresh fruit, and raisins should be a regular part of the diet. All menus should be posted for the parent's information.

Is the outdoor area fenced and safe? Children should never be "sent" outside. There should always be a teacher or caregiver outside with them.

Do the teachers or caregivers have training? Teachers and caregivers of young children need to be familiar with the principles and concepts of early childhood.

Do the teachers or caregivers have first aid and CPR training? They need to be prepared in the event of an emergency.

Are you welcome at any time to come and visit your child without prior announcement? Parents need to feel comfortable with being able to come at any time to see their child.

Quality child care does not just happen. Quality child care does happen because the center or caregiver is committed to children and their best interests in mind when planning their program.

"One must have a good memory to be able to keep the promises one makes."

Gladen to be new piano-voice teacher at NCC

Karen Gladen will be the new piano/voice instructor at Northland Community College. Gladen is a graduate of Concordia College, where she majored in Music and Mathematics. While at Concordia, she was active with the Outreach Teams and sang in the Freshman and Chapel Choirs and soloed with the Concert Choir.

She has studied piano since she was seven years old and started teaching piano as a high school sophomore. Over the years she has directed many children's choirs, hand bell choirs, and adult choirs. She was very active in the community theater in her last residence both on stage and as music director.

Gladen is currently living in Thief River Falls with her husband, Reverend Neil Gladen, and three children: Sarah, 9; Paul, 6; and John, 2. She directs the adult choir at Redeemer Lutheran Church and teaches piano and voice in her home. Last spring she soloed with the North Community Chorus when they performed Messiah.

She is looking forward to becoming part of the Northland Community College music department.

Corn, Sugarbeet crops could be record crops

The 1992 crop year started quickly in most parts of the state as crops were planted early with sufficient moisture. Rainfall was light until mid June when heavy precipitation covered Minnesota. Mid June also began a colder than-normal stretch of weather that has extended an unprecedented eighth straight week, according to the Minnesota Agricultural Statistics Service. This is causing some concern about corn and soybean development, which currently is 2-3 weeks behind schedule. The prospect of an early frost is weighing heavily on the minds of many Minnesota farmers. August 1 conditions, however, indicate very good yields for small grains and row crops and a possible record corn and sugarbeet crop.

Corn for grain production is estimated to be 805.2 million bushels, up 12 per cent from 1991 and up 6 per cent from the record 1990 production. Yield is forecast at 122 bushels per acre, up 2 bushels from last year.

Soybean production at 194.4 million bushels should come in slightly below last year's record. Expected yield of 36 bushels would be 1/2 bushel below last year.

The spring wheat crop is forecast at 121 million bushels, an 89 per cent increase from last year's short crop. Forty four bushels per acre is the estimated yield, an increase of 2 bushels from the July 1 forecast and 13 bushels above last year. Durum wheat growers are expected to produce 450,000 bushels, 53 per cent less than 1991's production. Yield estimates indicate a 13 bushel increase to 45 bushels per acre.

Oat production should be about 27 per cent greater than last year's output, coming in at 29 million bushels. Yield is forecast at 58 bushels per acre, an increase of 18 bushels from last year.

Barley producers should expect a 3 per cent decrease in production. An estimated 42.5 million bushels are expected. Yield is slated to increase 13 bushels to 63 bushels per acre.

This year's dry bean production is estimated to be 1.33 million hundredweight, down 33 per cent from last year's record high crop. Yield is expected to be 1,550 pounds per acre, 100 less than last year. Dry bean acres planted by classes are as follows: Navy 34,200 down 32 per cent from 1991. Pinto 15,300 down 46 per cent. Light Red Kidney 6,700, up 14 per cent. Dark Red Kidney 28,800, down 15 per cent and all other at 5,000 down 24 per cent.

Alfalfa hay output is forecast at 4.8 million tons, a 24 per cent decrease from 1991's crop. Yield should be around 3.2 tons per acre, which is down a half ton from last year. Other hay production at 1.44 million tons is down 28 per cent from last year. Yield is estimated to be 1.9 tons per acre.

The sugarbeet crop is estimated at 6.68 million tons, up 8 per cent from both 1991 and the record in 1987. Yield is expected at 18 tons/acre.

Summer potato production is expected to be 2.3 million hundredweight, a 7 per cent increase over 1991. Yield is estimated at 325 hundredweight per acre, a 30-hundredweight increase from a year ago.

A cache of 65 Bradley fighting vehicles was recently sent to Camp Ripley. Local National Guard units spent two weeks, July 25 through August 8, familiarizing themselves with the vehicle. Every year, guard units must qualify with each piece of weaponry they use. (Photo by Scott Greelis)

Local Girl Scout returns from adventure in Europe

by Nicky Armstrong

We were finally on our way after two and one half years of planning and fund-raising. It never really hit us that we were in Europe until we had been there awhile. The first stop was London. The plane landed at 6:30 a.m. their time. We needed to stay awake that day so we could get used to the time change. The representative from London was not at the airport, we waited two hours before we found the coach that took us to our youth hostel. With this delay we were not able to see the Tower of London. We did make it to Pax Lodge, which is an International Girl Scout/Girl Guide center. The next day would be another day of sight seeing in London. We saw everything we could, most of it was in walking distance like Windsor Castle, Buckingham Palace, Big Ben and parliament, Westminster, Horse Gardens, Trafalgar Square, Piccadilly Circus, and ate lunch at the Hard Rock Cafe. We found Oxford street to be a nice shopping area.

The next day was all traveling. We took a coach to the bus station and the HoverCraft across the English Channel. It was quite an experience. From the HoverCraft we took another bus to Paris and then another to the hostel. The next day in Paris was devoted to being tourists. We had an all day city tour and a trip to the Castle of Versailles. We also saw Notre Dame Cathedral and all major sights of Paris. When we got to the square where you could see the Eiffel Tower in its entirety, it took our breath away. Here we are a group of girls from Minnesota and North Dakota standing in front of the Eiffel Tower. It was hard to believe. When we left the Tower we were all joking about taking so many pictures. "Oh, here's 101 views of the Eiffel Tower". The next day we went up to the first level of the tower. We took an evening boat cruise on the Seine river. We started out in daylight and ended in dark. That's when we saw the Eiffel Tower all lit up. Another 101 views. The Louvre and the Arc de Triumph were also great sights. But by morning, we would be in my favorite country — Switzerland.

We took an overnight train to Basel, Switzerland. From there we went on to Frutigen and then a bus to Adelboden. Our first sight of the Swiss Alps was from the train. When we got to Adelboden, which is where "Our Chalet" a Girl Scout/Girl Guide International Center is, we soon found that walking in the mountains wasn't so easy. It was a 1.3 mile hike up to the Chalet. It didn't seem that hard the first day because we were so excited. But the 11 days after that seemed like it would never end. We mostly hiked and took us trips.

The first hike was to the Wood Carver. Everything he made was done by hand. A great souvenir shop. On the way back we walked through a gorge, with a waterfall in it. There were other hikes such as a fitness hike where you did different exercises at stops, a hike to a restaurant called Hanamus, which was a qualifying hike. We also had to make it back to the Chalet. This hike brought us through the snow of the Swiss Alps. It was a birthday to remember for Kara Hoffert, a member of the climbing party, who was hit with a snowball.

The qualifying hike was 22 miles round trip. The climbers hiked to a farmhouse where they rented part of the house as sleeping quarters. Since the barns are attached to houses, we slept over cows. Even though they were let out for the night, they were back in before we got up and everything smelled like cattle after that.

From the barn, the group went to a cheesemaker. We saw how cheese was made "the old fashioned way." We learned to get the different hardness in cheese, it sits for different lengths of time. The hardest cheese, I believe, actually sat for five years.

Despite all of the hiking, there were lots of fun bus trips to nearby towns. One of the bus trips included a trip to Interlaken, where we took a boat across Thun Lake to Thun the city. It was great fun and a good way to see Switzerland.

While in Switzerland we went to Bern and saw the famous Bern bears. We also saw the glacier on the side of a mountain at Grindewald and the waterfall inside a mountain at Trummelbou. One day [illegible] Swanfeld mountain, where we found the best french fries in a restaurant at the top. We also learned that it was perfectly acceptable to bring your dog into a restaurant.

The days at the Chalet were great fun and I got to meet people from Australia, Scotland, England, Norway, Sweden, New Zealand, Canada, Maryland, Illinois, California, Ohio, and the guide in charge was from Lebanon.

It was difficult to leave the Chalet after meeting all those people. We got to the train station and got on the wrong train. It was a funny experience to load all of the luggage and then take it all off again. The train we were supposed to get in was late and that made us miss our next train. Now, instead of having only one scheduled change, we had to change trains twice. The time between the trains was about 15 minutes. One person was to run ahead and hold the train for the rest. I was told I was that person because I knew a little German. I was able to hold the first one, but as I climbed aboard the second train the whistle blew and it left. As it turns out, however, the conductor on the previous train had given us the wrong track number and our train hadn't arrived yet. We eventually made our way to Munich.

LOCAL NEWS

Fisher Family Visiting

Ed and Louise Fisher of Thief River Falls are blessed with family visitors. Six of their children are visiting the week of August 10th through the 17th. Mary Lou Jasken of Rainy River, Gene Fischer and his wife, Shelia Kendro, of San Diego, Virginia Fisher of Fort Bragg, CA, Veronica Fisher and her husband, Arthur Love, and their daughter, Tiffany, from Asheville, NC, Ann Marie Fisher from Honolulu, Hawaii, and Marty Fisher of Minneapolis, their son, Jim Fisher, and his wife, Bev and their daughter, Judy Fisher, who live in Thief River Falls, will help welcome the out-of-town guests. Ed and Louise are pleased to have so many of their family visiting since the last complete family reunion was on their 50th wedding anniversary, June 8, 1990. Now married 52 years, they enjoy life in their cozy home on the corner acreage fronting sixth avenue, across from the fairgrounds.

We weren't done yet, however, we had Germany left to see. We went to Munich and Oberammergau. We saw the city in the same bus as George and Barbara Bush. I sat in the same bus seat as Bush did just one week before. The bus driver told us that while giving the tour to George and Barbara Bush, Helmut Kohl was telling her how to drive the bus. She didn't like that very much.

While in Germany we saw the Nymphenburg, Newschwanstein and Linderhof castles, the Glockenspiel and went up the Olympic needle in Munich. We had a meal at the Haufbrahaus where Hitler held his first Nazi meeting.

Our last day included a visit to Dachau, one of the smaller concentration camps. We saw a movie at an interpretative center, a barracks, memorials, crematory, and gas chamber. It was interesting, but I wouldn't wanted to have lived there.

The trip home was also an interesting trip. We were two hours out over the ocean and had to turn around and go back to London because of a "minor" hydraulic problem. When we landed the captain told us that the ground crew said there were no fires on board, but would we proceed to the gate. Outside our windows were fire trucks and rescue squads all lined up along the runway to meet us. We ended up staying over night in London.

Everything was unbelievable. What is a group of Girl Scouts doing touring Europe? It is almost unheard of. Yes, we always traveled in uniform and were treated with the greatest respect. I am glad that I was chosen to go. I enjoyed the trip and appreciated the donations from the Rebekah Lyon Club, Eagles Club, Lioness Club Moonlighters, Pamida, Hugo's, Chamber of Commerce and Thief River Falls Girl Scout Service United. I will share the experience with everyone now that I am back and hope that another group will have an opportunity to go sometime in the future.

Holt . . . .

Sunday afternoon visitors and coffee guests with Hilme Johnson were Mr. and Mrs. Gene Hyatt of Thief River Falls, Ben and Helen Garthus and Marion Davidson.

On Saturday Tyyne Sorter came home after spending the past month at the Hallock nursing home. In the afternoons the Sorters visited with Arlin Ness at the Northwest Medical Center. They also visited with Ernest and Lorraine Sorter of Blaine at the Robert Parnow home.

YOUR HOUSE OF WORSHIP CAN HELP SOLVE YOUR PROBLEMS

Life brings problems to all of us; to ourselves, to some close relative, or to a dear friend. These can involve health, finances, human relationships and many other things, and we must decide what if anything we can do about them. If ordinary common sense cannot provide the answer, we should seek the appropriate source of professional help. However, we should also seek guidance at our House of Worship. Attend it regularly if you are not already doing so, and talk to your clergyman. You will feel the comfort of his advice and his prayers for you, reminding you that God is watching over you and will help you or the other person either overcome those problems or learn to cope with them. You will then learn for yourself that this is the greatest reward of faith: a better life.

The first step in solving a problem is to tell someone about it.
— John Peter Flynn

THE COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION'S REVIEW AND COMMENT ON THE PROPOSED CONSTRUCTION PROJECT OF INDEPENDENT SCHOOL DISTRICT 564, THIEF RIVER FALLS PUBLIC SCHOOLS

INTRODUCTION

The Commissioner of Education is required to perform a review and comment on the proposed facility construction. The district may not conduct a referendum, solicit bids, or issue bonds without this review and comment.

The district has submitted a proposal for review and comment according to requirements set forth in Minnesota Statutes, section 121.15, subd. 7, which requires the following information:

(a) The geographic area likely to be served, whether within or outside the boundaries of the school district;

(b) the people proposed to be served for the next ten years;

(c) the reasonably anticipated need for the facility or service to be provided;

(d) a description of the proposed construction in reasonable detail, including expenditures contemplated, estimated annual operating cost, and energy efficiency;

(e) a description of existing facilities within the area to be served and within school districts adjacent to the area to be served, the extent of utilization of existing facilities or services; the extent to which alternate space is available, including other school districts and institutions for higher education or other public buildings; and the anticipated effect that the facility will have on existing facilities and services;

(f) the anticipated benefit of the facility to the area;

(g) the relationship of the proposed construction to any priorities, if known, that have been established for the area to be served.

(h) the availability and manner of financing the proposed construction and the estimated date to begin and complete the facility construction.

(i) any desegregation requirements provided they cannot be met by any other reasonable means; and

(j) the relationship of the proposed facility to the cooperative integrated learning needs of the area.

The school board shall publish the Commissioner's review and comment in the legal newspaper of the district at least 20 days but not more than 60 days prior to a referendum for bonds or solicitation of bids to construct a facility. A 50 percent voter approval is required to proceed with construction if the review and comment is positive. A 60 percent voter approval is required if the review and comment is unfavorable provided the school board, by resolution of the board, has first reconsidered the construction before going to the voters. If the review and comment is negative, the school board must not proceed with construction.

DESCRIPTION OF THE PROPOSED PROJECT

The work being approved in this review and comment covers construction for Independent School District 564. Three projects compose the Scope of Work.

Construction of a new elementary school serving all students from pre-school through the fifth grade. The new facility will replace the aging Northrop and Knox schools as well as Washington School and Mark Twain Elementary.

Construction of an addition to Lincoln Senior High School and development of appropriate site improvements.

Expansion of Franklin Middle School to accommodate middle school programs and middle school instructional methodologies.

Renovation of the existing Washington School Building as a District Administration, Adult Learning Center, and Community Education Center.

T[illegible] $17,950,000 would be funded through the sale of bonds pending voter approval.

REVIEW AND COMMENT STATEMENT

Based upon the Department's analysis of the district's required documentation and other pertinent information from sources of the Department of Education, The Commissioner of Education judges the construction and other improvements to be educationally and economically advisable.

ADDITIONAL INFORMATION IS AVAILABLE

Persons desiring additional information regarding this proposal should contact the school district superintendent's office.

Commissioner Jensen joined the meeting at 4:50 p.m.

The Chairman then called the County Board meeting to order.

They are still working on getting easements sign on the County Road #61 grading project.

Mr. Broadwell then reviewed two old accounts receivables from individuals the Highway Department had done grading or snowplowing for. The County Attorney suggested that he try once again to get these outstanding bills paid.

County Highway Accountant Carol Forsberg then joined the meeting. Mrs. Forsberg and Mr. Broadwell then reviewed the County Highway Department Budget for 1993.

WHEREAS, Pennington County has committed financial resources in cooperation with the Office of Waste Management and the Pollution Control Agency in excess of two million dollars to avoid land filling and maximize recycling, and

WHEREAS, Pennington County has an excepted solid waste management plan to reach its 25% recycling goal, complete with staff and financial resources to comply with state and federal laws, and

WHEREAS, Pennington County has taken initiative in cooperation with surrounding counties to address the issue of Household Hazardous Waste, and

I had a letter this week from a former Strandquist resident who is a cousin of Ebba Sihlberg, namely Earl R. Anderson of Longview, WA. He has been reading in the North Star News about the plight Ebba has been having with her potatoes, which have been beseiged by bugs. He has invented an apparatus which is simple and yet sure to kill these creatures for her. Take two pieces of strong boards, put the bug on one and strike with the other board. Sure Kill is the name of the patent. My family, being Scandinavian, didn't say we squashed them, we said "knused" them, and Allie says she "can Ussed" them. Thanks anyhow, Earl, and write again.

Cooler than normal temps slow harvest

Strong winds and rain have contributed to the slow down

Cooler than normal temperatures and last weekend's rains have delayed harvest in the area, and if those conditions continue there could be a lot of damage to small [illegible] nesota's farm economy.

If it remains cloudy and cool there could be a lot of sprout damage, said Pennington County Extension Agent Howard Person.

Person said farmers in the area are about 25 to 35 per cent done with barley. Very little wheat has been harvested. With the rains and cool temperatures harvesting has been left at a standstill.

Rain amounts in the area varied from about 2 3/4 inches around Thief River Falls to as much as five inches around Goodridge and south and east of Goodridge. Some standing water in fields has been observed.

Much of the grain crop was flat- [illegible] result of the lodging, many farmers will have to go in with swathers and it will take longer to combine. If they can't get in soon there will be some sprouting. There could also be some staining damage to barley which will affect the price.

Because of the late spring and cool summer, crop growth has been slowed and there's also the fear of an early frost. Right now there are some fears that this fall could turn out to be similar to the 1985 harvest when there was so much rain.

If the sun comes out, however, things could improve. Grain crops grew and filled well and very good yields are expected. Person said he has talked to some farmers who [illegible] 100 to 110 bushel yields on their early harvest of barley. If the sun comes out soon to dry things and farmers can get into the fields some of the potential damage from the rain can be minimized.

Row crops are in bad shape. Person said with this cool weather the corn crops are not expected to make it to maturity. Sunflowers are also suffering. About the only good thing that could be said about it, Person said, is that only about 25 per cent of total cropland in this area is in row crops.

Changes in programs challenge at Franklin

Franklin junior high school was built in 1964 and actually opened its doors to students in January of 1965. The complex was the school district's answer to moving the seventh, eighth and ninth grades from a crowded Lincoln high school and providing a facility which would allow programming for these students independent of the high school.

In addition, Mark Twain elementary was attached to the north hallway of the Franklin building with a link between the buildings to allow shared facilities such as gymnasium, cafeteria and library. Both buildings in many ways were compromises of educational programming. These, however, were more simple times and programming in large was a simplistic matter.

The Franklin building was constructed to house a maximum of 600 students, but at the height of enrollment growth in 1971-72, the enrollment came close to 900 students. They were provided for through borrowing rooms from Mark Twain elementary, remodeling of interior spaces to suit several different instructional needs, and by having students attend in different shifts (Early Bird and Late Bird students).

The curricular needs were fairly straight forward with little deviation from, nor overt concern for, individual student needs. It was a system representative of the time and one suited to a different community from the one of today.

For the alumnus of Franklin the question might be how we suddenly can be crowded with 550 students when we have housed far in excess of those numbers back in 1971. The answers are in all the things that have changed since 1971, and what it is that we do much differently and far better than we have ever done.

In 1971 we had two special programs in our school—a part time Special Learning Difficulties (SLD) teacher and an Educable Mentally handicapped (EMH) program. We now have three full-time SLD teachers, an EMH teacher, a speech therapist, a teacher for the visually handicapped and two teachers for Emotionally and Behaviorally Disordered (EBD). Each special program needs space for kids and teachers and, although the numbers served at one time may be less than a regular class, the special needs of the students require a special and sometimes unique space.

In 1971 the Apple micro computer was not yet available and we were only beginning to think about the uses of computer technology. Now we have created two "computer labs" and they are in sore need of

Petersons receive farm beautification award

Rural Goodridge couple recognized for beautification efforts by Pennington County Soil and Water Conservation District

Clarence Petersan digs a hill of potatoes in his gardan—perhaps the center af attention in the Patersan farm yard. Despite the cold weather this summer, Clarence said his potatoes appear to be the best he has ever grown.

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

For more than 30 years Clarence and Janice Peterson have been working on their farm yard southwest of Goodridge and enjoying the results of their efforts. This year the results are being acknowledged officially by others in Pennington county.

Pennington Soil and Water Conservation district has selected the Peterson farm as recipient of its farm beautification award for 1992. Official recognition and presentation of a plaque will take place at the annual meeting of the SWCD next spring.

Clarence grew up in the Goodridge area, mostly on the home farm where he was born, a mile to the south of the present farmstead. Then he went off to fight in World War II, serving in the U.S. Air Force as a radio operator on a B-24 bomber and flying 35 missions over Germany.

When he came back from the war he purchased a quarter section of land in 1946 and another in 1947, creating the present 320-acre farm. After farming with his family on the home farm, he moved to Seattle, WA, and worked for the Boeing company for two years, building airplanes.

He came back in 1952 and picked what at that time was the community's sweetest political plum—a job as postmaster in Goodridge. When the administration changed in Washington a few years later, however, he knew the job was in jeopardy. He became a rural letter carrier in 1958—a job he held until he retired from carrying the mail in 1985.

Janice Martin of Oslo came to Goodridge in 1959 to teach school with her long-time friend and schoolmate Sandy Nordling. She married Clarence in 1960 and Sandy married Gordon Henrickson, who became a long time principal at the Goodridge school.

In 1961 the Petersons decided to move onto the land Clarence had purchased 14 and 15 years earlier. They dozed a clearing in the woods about four acres in size, built a house, planted grass and started working on the yard.

Early in the 1970's they built a granary in the yard and added a shop in the mid 1970's. Later they converted the house's attached garage into an office and built a separate garage.

An additional 30 acres of the farm were cleared to provide about 250 acres of cropland. About two and a half miles of field drainage ditches were created and about a mile and a half of field shelterbelt planted. A garden was immediately established and eight basswood trees were moved from along the river on Janice's home farm to be transplanted in the farm yard.

"This must be good country for basswood," Janice said, "because every one of them lived and they are growing very well." They have also successfully planted several evergreen trees as well.

Clarence also planted an acre of trees as permanent wildlife food and habitat. Each spring he and Janice plant about 200 flowers in their six flower beds, not counting plants for the garden.

Some of the garden plants are started in the basement where fluorescent lights have been installed. Clarence built a small greenhouse on a trailer one year so he could wheel it out in the sunshine and

Dear Readers,
"Amazing Grace – How Sweet The Sound". We're all familiar with this inspirational hymn, used often at funeral services. John Newton wrote the song in the 18th century, and the message it conveys has continued throughout the years to comfort the lonely. In planning a funeral service, many families will request a song that holds special meaning for them. Music adds beauty to the service and speaks a language we all understand.
Respectfully,
Belmont Funeral Home
Larry Belmont

Camp Moe day camp

Day camp for Girl Scouts at Camp Moe was considered a success this year.

According to organizers, over 33 individuals (leaders and parents) volunteered for the Day Camp which was held August 10-14.

A total of 38 campers registered to participate in the activities at the camp. Camp activities including cooking meals over campfires, various craft projects and three sleep overs. Several parents helped out as chaperones during the camp over.

Sheila Dargus and Sara Olson, camp directors, thanked parents and volunteers, especially Robyn Pream who served as the an director, who helped make the camp a success.

The day camp was an activity sponsored by local girl scouts and the Pine to Prairie Counsel.

Avis Nelson Fricker

Former locals coauthor book

Avis Nelson Fricker, a former teacher at Knox Elementary School, and Patricia Rawerts Dahl, formerly of Red Lake Falls, recently coauthored a textbook about the presidents.

"The book is not done in a pedestrian way," Fricker said. The book is organized via facts, rather than chronological order. "It's not an exhaustive study. It's used to peak interest," Fricker said.

Fricker intended the readership to cover grades five and six, but Fricker said the publishers thought it was scholarly enough to extend to twelfth grade.

The book came out in May and Dahl and Fricker were making changes until February. Fricker said the book is a "comprehensive study." Fricker said she spent a considerable amount of time in the library and wrote every presidential library for information. Fricker said she spent 6,000 hours on the book.

Fricker wrote that her reason for authoring the book was to "provide a common bond of knowledge about our country, intertwined through the lives of our presidents."

Countries which have received copies of her book include Sweden, Norway, Ireland, Okinawa and Russia.

Fricker is a substitute teacher in Bloomington. Dahl teaches elementary school in Bloomington.

Pat Krystosek

Laura Beringer

Two new faculty members have been hired to fill the second and fifth grade teaching positions at St. Bernard's Catholic school in Thief River Falls for the 1992-93 school year.

Pat Krystosek, a graduate of Moorhead State University in elementary education, will teach second grade. Pat and her husband Ed live in Thief River Falls and have five children. She taught sixth grade at St. Joseph's school in Red Lake Falls for the past two years.

Laura Beringer, also a graduate of Moorhead State University, will teach fifth grade and physical education. She is a native of Ellendale, ND.

Law prohibits campaign signs on right-of-ways

Minnesota department of transportation is asking political campaign workers to comply with the state law that prohibits the placement of private signs on the right-of-way of any highway in Minnesota.

In addition, state law also says that signs may not be placed on private land without the consent of the landowner.

According to Monty Eidem, Minnesota department of transportation maintenance operations engineer in Bemidji, workers will take down private signs located on highway right-of-way and place them near the sign location so that they can be easily retrieved by campaign workers. A note explaining the proper placement of the signs will be attached to the sign.

Eidem said that Minnesota department of transportation employees must administer these laws in a fair and impartial manner so that political campaign signs are treated on an equal basis with signs that are placed by businesses, churches, private citizens and service organizations.

Impressions . . .

Beth Johnson

Our family spent a day on the shore of a nearby lake recently. As I sat and watched the water, I was reminded of a time a few years ago—in my youth—when my family lived near Lake Michigan. I had not thought of the lake and beach there in quite a while. I have decided that that was a time which I dare not forget as it was of such value to the forming of me as the person I am today.

Our home in Muskegon, Michigan, was just a block or two from the shore of Lake Michigan. There really were not too many days in which sometime during the day or night our family would leave our house and go to the beach—even in the winter!! The memories of my childhood are incomplete without the memories of Lake Michigan.

In the summer, we swam at Pere Marquette Park. The water temperature was posted on a little hut on the beach. Some days the water was almost as warm as bath water—but other days it was refreshingly cool. Most likely there were waves to body surf on. For several years we could rent a heavy duty raft from a beachside vendor. With this raft we kids spent many hours floating on the waves to shore.

The swimming area was roped off and lifeguards attended us as we swam. It was a big deal to swim all the way out to the ropes!! On wavy days, though, the undertow prevented us from swimming any more than in knee deep water. But, even at knee deep water, the waves could crash over us. Wavy days were the delight of the young with their rafts, and the fear of the older as they worried about us being dragged out to sea in the undertow.

Summers we swam several times a day—but never on Sunday. Sundays the beach became so crowded that those of us who had the privilege of living it frequently tended to avoid the crowds and stayed home.

The beach was nothing like I have seen at any lake near here. The sand was called sugar sand because it felt as fine as sugar. The years I lived in Muskegon, the lake was at an all time low, so the beach was enormous. We would park our car on the edge of the beach, but then we would have to walk a good block over this hot sugar sand to the edge of the lake. In the summer, the sand was so hot we always wore sandals so that we could stand the heat of it as we trudged along to the edge of the lake.

In the other seasons of the year, our family also enjoyed the beach. We didn't let winter and storms and ice and snow keep us from the lake. Each season held its own special glory. In the other seasons of the year we often found ourselves enjoying the lake on Sunday afternoons. As my mother would take a Sunday snooze, my father would take us three kids and the dog and off to the lake we would go for a walk.

Walking the beach during these Sunday afternoons we would find interesting driftwood, and maybe a quarter left from someone's summer day. After a storm, the beach was an interesting place to be as the waves would have deposited some of the secrets of the waters on the shore. We found parts of ships and many other sea treasures.

Walking the beach in winter was an experience. The beach extended itself to icebergs. So, we not only walked the beach, but we would slide down the icebergs.

During storms, too, we would go down to the beach to watch the waves. They would go crashing over the pier, traveling along the length of the pier as they washed over it. Quite a sight to behold!!

Then there were the sunsets. Many times, our family would be sitting at our kitchen table eating supper and look out the window which was in the direction of the lake and note that the sunset must be gorgeous. So, leaving the dishes and our meal, we would all pile into the car to go and watch the sun set. The beauty of those sunsets over Lake Michigan cannot be described.

Memories of my childhood are intertwined with the Lake, but also intertwined with memories of my family treating each other to good times at the beach; memories I hope to never forget.

Selected by the Pennington County Soil and Water Conservation District as winner of the farm beautification award for 1992 was the farm yard of Clarence and Janice Peterson of rural Goodridge. They were married in 1960, bulldozed an opening in the woods and built the house on their farm in 1991 and have been working with the yard ever since. Their large garden is shown at the right center of the photo. They also have half a dozen flower beds and put out about 200 new plants each spring—plus the garden.

Farm beautification winners back inside at night to protect it from frost. "We never saw the sun for a whole month that year," he recalls, so he abandoned the greenhouse idea and opted for the fluorescent lights.

"We have always had a big garden," Janice said, "and the kids carried garden projects in 4-H. I always canned or froze a lot of garden produce and I still do. We don't need as much for ourselves, now, but we share with our kids and with others."

The "kids" include a daughter Kari, a graduate of Concordia college and married to Tom Stromme, living in Bismarck, ND, a daughter Becki, who attended both Moorhead State University and Concordia College and is living in Hopkins; and a son Jon, a graduate of Moorhead State University who has recently accepted a job as a vocational rehab therapist in Mitchell, SD.

With the kids gone, Clarence and Janice share the mowing, garden upkeep and other yard chores. They have a tractor mower as well as a hand mower and they mow a strip around their farmstead windbreak as a firebreak.

While they enjoy camping, the Petersons have modified their camping comfort level. "We started with a tent," Clarence said, "and then we went to a homemade camper on a trailer. Later we had a fold-out camper and now we are on our second motorhome.

Through their work with the rural letter carriers association they had ample opportunity to travel, usually accompanied by their children.

"I believe we have attended 14 national conventions from coast to coast and border to border," he said. "The kids had done a lot of traveling by the time they got through school."

Clarence served two terms as president of the Minnesota Rural Letter Carriers' association in 1984-1985 and was named rural Carrier of the Year in 1984. Janice was state president of the auxiliary in 1982-1984 and received its Outstanding Auxiliary Member award in 1991.

But the Petersons did not confine their activities to the letter carrier's group. Clarence was a volunteer with the 55 Alive safe driving program for six years and a volunteer Income tax aide (VITA) for several years as well. He held most of the offices for Faith Lutheran church in Goodridge, including president, was active in the Goodridge Lions club, serves as secretary of the Goodridge Area Development Corporation and is chairman of the Goodridge Senior Homes board which oversees eight senior housing residences.

He is a member of American Legion Post 117 in Thief River Falls and the Masonic Lodge here. He serves on the Pennington County Council on Aging board and was Pennington county's male senior citizen of the year in 1991.

Janice sings in the church choir and does solo work, is active in the Lioness club and a member of the American Legion auxiliary. She taught Sunday school and Bible school at Faith Lutheran and is a substitute teacher in the Goodridge school after a number of years as a regular. She also held many offices in the Merry Sunshine Homemakers club.

"We like to travel and we get away quite a bit, although the yard sometimes needs a lot of attention when we get back," Janice said. About 150 acres of their farm is enrolled in the Conservation Reserve Program and another 100 acres is rented to a neighbor.

The Petersons say they were flattered by being considered for the farm beautification award and they didn't do anything special in preparation for a visit by the judges.

"We haven't done anything special for more than 30 years," Clarence said. "There shouldn't be any reason to start now."

Huge heads of cabbage are inspected by Clarence and Janice Peterson in the garden which is a focal point of the farm yard. The Petersons were selected winners of the farm beautification contest by the Pennington Soil and Water Conservation district for 1992.

Clarence and Janice Peterson of rural Goodridge show two of the awards received for their work in the Minnesota Rural Letter Carriers association and its auxiliary. Clarence was named Minnesota Rural Carrier of the Year in 1984 and Janice was named Outstanding Auxiliary Member in the state in 1991. Both have also served as presidents of their state organizations.

Stordahl is public radio director

Ronald A. Stordahl of Thief River Falls is one of three persons recently elected to three-year terms on the board of trustees for Minnesota Public Radio.

Stordahl is the founder, chairman and chief executive officer of Digi-Key Corporation. He helped lead the successful community effort to raise funding for Minnesota Public Radio's news and information station KNTN (102.7FM) in Thief River Falls, which went on the air last December.

Others named to the board were Joseph H. Leek, vice president of medical affairs for the Miller-Dwan Medical center in Duluth and a retired physician, and John Taft, president and chief executive officer of Voyageur Fund Managers in Minneapolis.

About 30 members of listeners of the local Minnesota Public Radio stations met at the C'mon Inn of Thief River Falls August 17 to share their common interest in MPR, to meet Mindy Ratner of the MPR staff and exchange ideas to help the stations grow. People attending came from Thief River Falls, Warren, St. Hilaire, Roseau and Grand Forks, ND.

MPR began as a single station in Collegeville in 1967 and is now a network of 23 stations offering 24-hour-a-day news and information programming and classical music programming throughout Minnesota and its surrounding communities. It claims a weekly audience of more than 400,000 and is currently supported by over 70,000 members.

Changes in programs are challenge at Franklin school

Video was a clumsy reel-to-reel machine that was fairly placebound compared with our cassette camcorder. We certainly did not envision the latter to be used in a class in which students would be able to produce a program with its own visual and verbal storyline.

Technology has invaded every aspect of our work and, as the information explosion has been detonated by technology, information and learning have been advanced tremendously. To give our students equity with others across the state, facilities must be available to employ all the techniques of this technology.

Many times the need is for unique spaces which were not known in 1964 when Franklin was built. Most schools were still thinking in terms of libraries rather than learning centers at that time. The Franklin library was held to a minimum size and by today's standards represents one-fifth of the size required to meet Minnesota state requirements and North Central Association standards.

Also a significant impact on the middle school has been the adoption of an educational philosophy much more sensitive to the unique needs of the middle level student. It recognizes a need for attention to social and emotional as well as intellectual and developmental needs. The curriculum is specifically designed to sponsor activities which enrich the middle level learner with experiences to aid in social and emotional maturity.

To make the middle school more transitional between elementary and high school, the middle school is divided into "pods" by housing all students from each grade within a designated area of the building. This increases familiarity with students and facilities and is less threatening to the student than the high school modeled junior high school.

Teaching teams of usually four teachers add to the familiarity for students. The teachers also get to know the students and collaborate on daily lesson planning and instruction.

Teacher teams and students work in a middle school component referred to as a "blocked time" schedule which is the equivalent of four class periods. Within this block of time the teachers may decide the length of each class, the class list and when each student will have his or her math, social, science or communication class.

To facilitate this arrangement, "common planning time" is provided. This means that all teachers on a team will be free of instructional duties at the same time during the school day so that they can meet, discuss teaching strategies and plan things mutually beneficial to the learning of the four subject areas.

Common planning time allows interdisciplinary teaching—concepts taught simultaneously in all four academic areas to reinforce learning and demonstrate how all knowledge is related. The student can apply the knowledge offered within communications, social studies, mathematics and science on a practical basis.

Also offered as an educational component in the middle school is "exploratories." These are a wide variety of courses which allow students to explore and discover interest and ability areas in technology, the arts and practical arts.

Activities and an advisor/advisee relationship are also components of the middle school system. The latter is an attempt to provide the student with a concerned adult who will be an advocate on his or her behalf. It is not class time but allows for a free dialogue on the problems confronting students at this age level.

Activities for middle school students need to be wholesome functions in which kids can come together and enjoy social interaction with their peers. Examples of Franklin activities include International Week, Oktoberfest, lip sync contests, dances, January Jubilee, community projects such as food shelf assistance, class parties and the mini activity day in which students are given choices from many different activities.

A school which is concerned about the intellectual, social and emotional welfare of its students requires distinctly more and different spaces than did the singularly concerned junior high school.

The teaching teams need planning areas and science areas within each of the learning communities. The media center needs to become a reality with all of the advantages that technologies can supply. Special students need spaces that are adequate and offer some privacy for the retention of self esteem and dignity.

The building needs a larger cafeteria with a connecting commons area so that students have an alternative from the institutional setting of a school cafeteria to a more informal area for eating lunch and visiting with friends. It also needs a performing arts area which does not dispossess the physical education classes and an integrated technology system for instruction and application through academics and other disciplines.

Omann forms Pennington Co. committee

Sobriety checkpoint in TRF successful

Saturday evening local officials set up a sobriety checkpoint on Highway 59 near the junction of Sorteberg drive in Thief River Falls. Rain shut down the checkpoint operation early but officials are still considering it a success.

A total of 87 cars went through the checkpoint during the one and one-hour period the checkpoint was operating. One citation for no driver's license was issued and several drivers blew warnings on breath tests. There were other verbal and a few written warnings issued for things like seat belt use and equipment. There were no arrests for driving under the influence.

A total of 11 officers, two from the Pennington county sheriff's office, two from the police department, two from the Minnesota department of natural resources and five from the State Patrol were involved in the checkpoint operation. Lt. Charles Jones of the State Patrol, who was in charge of the operation, said it was successful despite the fact that it ended early due to rain. The rain itself was a factor in shutting down the operation, the primary factor was the safety of drivers and officers.

Sheriff Bob Wold also considered the operation a success. It created a public awareness, he said.

Lt. Jones also believes the sobriety checkpoint is an effective tool in educating the public about drinking and driving.

Sobriety checkpoints such as the operation conducted in Thief River Falls last weekend are financed with federal funds.

Great Lakes Gas celebrates 25th year

The Great Lakes Gas Transmission Company is celebrating its 25th anniversary in September at station two near Newfolden.

The Newfolden natural gas compressor station employs five people in charge of pumping the pipeline system's average 2 billion cubic feet of gas per day.

The most gas is pumped in the summer, said Section Superintendent James Tibbetts, because of the gas pumped into storage in winter preparation.

The gas originates at the Alberta Gas Fields and runs through numerous transmission systems owned by TransCanada PipeLines Limited, The Coastal Corporation and Great Lakes Gas. Great Lakes Gas said about 30 percent of the gas serves midwest U.S. markets.

There are 75 miles of pipeline in Marshall County and a Great Lakes Gas press release cites $576,732 in property tax revenues paid by Great Lakes Gas to Marshall County.

The Newfolden station uses two 28,500 horsepower turbine units to continue pumping the gas through the lines. Centrifugal compressors are used to keep the gas moving 14 to 18 mph.

The gas is pumped to meter stations, where it is sold. The nearest meter station is located a few miles northeast of Thief River Falls. Other area meter stations include Bemidji, Deer River, Grand Rapids and Carlton.

The gas is purified as gas companies extract it from the ground, otherwise it is piped as-is to the customer.

Tibbetts said there has not been many gas leaks. "There were a few line breaks quite a few years ago due to pipe defects," Tibbetts said.

Station two employees include Jim Tibbetts of Thief River Falls, 22 years of service for the Great Lakes Gas Transmission Company; technician John Krakkla of Thief River Falls, 20 years; utility personnel Gary Bjorg of Newfolden, 17 years; Eloise Peterson of Thief River Falls, 12 years and Ken Vanderport of Viking, 11 years.

INSURANCE Update

by Carol Nelson

TEENAGE DRIVERS

Do you have a teenage driver in your home? Parents who do often are shocked to find out the price of auto insurance for young drivers.

For a teenage boy, the rate can be three-and-a half times the rate an adult male pays. Auto insurance rates are so high for drivers under 25 years of age because as a group, teenagers are involved in more car crashes than people of other ages. This is true even though they drive less than older people.

Premiums are highest at age 17 and taper off gradually until age 30. There are some ways to reduce these premiums:

—Drive the family car-rates are usually higher for young people who own their own cars.

—Good Student Discounts—Full Time students aged 16-25 who maintain a B average may be eligible for up to 25% in discounts.

—Choose a higher deductible—or, if you have an older vehicle, you may wish to eliminate collision coverage altogether.

During the teenage years, one accident could cause insurance rates to skyrocket. Remind all family members to drive defensively.

Strange Summer, if You Can Call it That

I like fall. I really do. It is probably my favorite season. But it would have been nice to have some summer between spring and fall!

I feel like fall has come already, what with the snow in Montana and Canada this past weekend, and the cool weather we are having right now. I'm ready for pumpkins and Thanksgiving any minute.

We have had a strange summer this year. It was summer, wasn't it, that time between spring and now?

I wonder how many people caught colds trying to go for a swim this summer. It was definitely a bad summer for swimming, what with the cold weather, the rain and the wind.

It was also a bad summer for getting a sun tan. The tanning booths must have had a great year though, because lots of people look pretty brown to me.

Going to the lake or spending the day fishing meant bringing sweat suits and jackets, as well as rain gear this year, if it wasn't too windy to be out at all. Do fish bite better in cool weather?

Speaking of warm clothes, I wonder how many people packed away their sweaters this spring and found themselves digging them out and wearing them off and on throughout the summer months. Seems to me it will make the winter months mighty boring unless we [illegible]

How many times did you grill out this year? Every time I planned to barbecue, we ended up cooking inside because of the weather. Maybe it was just poor planning on my part, but we used our grill once. Last week I got tired of it sitting around the yard and packed it away in the garage. I might drag it out one more time though.

Even driving around town has been a headache this summer, what with the road construction going on all over. When it rained there were rivers across Main street; and when it wasn't raining, it was still a pain to find the street that was open at whatever time you tried to cross. Inevitably, whichever street you were using was closed to traffic that day, wasn't it? And did you have the same problem I did and not see it until you were nearly in it?

Oh, I'll have to admit there have been a few nice things about this strange summer.

One nice thing, it has been cool enough nearly every night to sleep comfortably, even with covers. I took my electric blanket off my bed some time last spring and I managed to keep from putting it back on my bed all this summer, which took quite a bit of control, let me tell you. I did, however, use my warm quilt just about every night. And I did, however, put my electric blanket back on my bed Sunday night.

Another nice thing about this summer, I haven't had to use the air conditioning hardly at all, so my electric bill has been nice and small. I think I left it on one night this summer and I shouldn't have done that because I awoke with a stuffy nose. I should have known it would be cold by morning.

We haven't had a whole lot of rain this summer, either, so those [illegible] all. When it did rain, it rained during the week, so Saturdays were often nice and sunny. Most Saturdays were just breezy enough to fluff the towels and sheets, too.

The lack of rain also meant that the grass wasn't growing wildly out of control all over the place, either. The kids hardly had to mow the past couple of months, so that made them happy.

On second thought, maybe this strange summer hasn't been so bad, after all. So bring on the pumpkins and the turkey and let's get on with fall, then.

Motorcycle course starts here Sept. 11

Minnesota Motorcycle Safety program has combined efforts with Thief River Falls community education to conduct a rider skills training course September 11 from 6 to 10 p.m. and September 12 and 13 from 8 a.m. to 5:30 p.m.

Minnesota residents under 18 who desire to receive a motorcycle endorsement must complete their training in Minnesota. Course completion cards from other states will no longer fulfill Minnesota licensing requirements.

The course consists of 20 hours of training including 12 quality hours of "on-cycle" instruction. To register or for further information call the Thief River Falls community education department at 681-8740. Maximum enrollment in the class is 12. The program is occredited by the National Motorcycle Safety foundation and licensed by the Minnesoto Department of Public Safety.

Department of Health appoints Rural Health director

Commissioner of Health Marlene E. Marschall announced last Thursday the appointment of Chari Konerza as the Director of the Office of Rural Health, created as part of health care reform legislation (formerly HealthRight) passed by the Legislature last spring.

Konerzo, formerly director of medical practice and payment systems for the Minnesota Medical Association, said that in her role as director she plans to work to enhance the public/private partnership that is already operating in Minnesota to address rural health concerns.

The Office of Rural Health was designed by the creators of Minnesota's health care reform legislation to serve as an advocate in state government for the health needs of rural Minnesotans, and will work in conjunction with the University of Minnesoto medical schools and other organizations in the state which are addressing rural health care problems.

The office is charged with establishing a clearing house for collecting and disseminating information, research findings, and innovative approaches to the delivery of care in rural areas; coordinating state activities to avoid duplication of effort; providing technical assistance to public and nonprofit entities in rural Minnesota as they seek out existing state ond federal rural health programs; and recruiting and retaining health professionals in rural areas.

4-H building at state fair is accessible

The 4-H building located on the Minnesota State Fairgrounds in St. Paul is now fully accessible, making it the only multi-level building on the fairgrounds oble to make such o claim. 4-H clubs throughout the state helped raise funds to pay the remodeling costs.

Now in the fourth year of a five-year building renovation project, Minnesota 4-H has remodeled the 53-year-old, three-story building to allow full access to individuals who ore physicolly challenged. The $220,000 cost of the accessibility project was raised through a fund raising project entitled, "Operation Lift," kicked off at the 1991 Minnesota State Fair. The first $100,000 was matched dollar for dollar by the state fair board.

Over $50,000 of the money raised came directly from 4-H clubs, whose local fund raising efforts ranged from recycling oluminum and glass to serving lunch at community events. 4-H clubs from every county in Minnesota participated in the fund roising effort. Nineteen counties donated over $1,000 each.

"The commitment that the local communities made to raising the dollars to make this building accessible has been phenomenol," says Jim Lewis, executive director of the Minnesota 4-H Foundation.

The remaining dollars were donated by individuals, businesses, foundations and other organizations.

Significant changes made to the building during the past year include the addition of an elevator; handrails extending the full length of the stairwells; occessible restrooms and water fountains on all three floors; accessible bed spaces, showers and sinks on each side of the third floor dormitory; and new stage ramps.

A celebration of the achievement of the fund raising goal will be held four times during the fair—August 28 and 30 and September 1 and 3 at 6:30 p.m. in the Erickson Hall auditorium on the 4-H building's second floor. The building is located on the state foirgrounds on Cosgrove Avenue, between Commonwealth and Randall Avenues.

Northwest Library: card catalogs to microfiche to computers

Northwest Regional Library patrons can determine the availability of books immediately from three area libraries beginning September 1.

The system accesses the book catalogs at the Northwest Regional Library, Lake Agassiz Regional Library and Kitchigami Regional Library, members of the Northern Lights Library Network.

Using the computer, library patrons can immediately determine if a book, subject or author is available at any or all of the three libraries.

With this system, the library staff can access books in one to three weeks instead of three to eight weeks due to less paperwork, said Heidi Hoks, assistant director at the Northwest Regional Library. Hoks said the system has also cushioned the blow of library cutbacks.

The three libraries share the cost of the telephone line used to access the other libraries catalogs.

As soon as a book is barcoded at any of the three libraries, it will register on the computer, Hoks said, as opposed to the previous system of updating the microfiche catalog twice a year.

Items new to the library or items on the best seller list are the only items not available through the system, Hoks said, so it "doesn't hurt the regional patrons."

The system has special features when finding books or other library materials. Each book's description is entered in the computer. If the patron wants information on a subject, the computer will search the descriptions of all the books looking for the subject word used by the patron.

This feature is a great help to librarians, Hocks said. Hocks gave an example of a patron who requested a Hardy Boys book with the word "thieves" in the title. The computer located the book, but the book didn't have "thieves" in the title, it was the subject of the book.

The computer system also has "fuzzy matching." If the patron doesn't remember the correct name of a book, the computer searches for books with titles matching the title words the patron remembers.

Hoks said the library is currently looking at linkage to Unisys PALS, a computer system which would provide access to state college library collections. The library is also looking at processor to processor links with other databases, which would connect with other community libraries.

It would be a few years before the library could implement these programs, depending on the budget, Hoks said. "It took us ten years to get this far."

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
On School District 564 Restructuring

School District 564 is considering a major building and restructuring program in the near future. The following questions and answers are provided by the Facilities Steering Committee, a group of local citizens which has researched the local school situation and recommended the project to the board of education

QUESTION: Was renovation of our current elementary schools considered instead of a single elementary site?

ANSWER: The long range planning and advisory committee did discuss renovation of the present elementary sites. The following information was considered before recommending a new elementary school and site.

The state requires a minimum of 20 acres per elementary site. Presently, Knox has one and one-half city blocks, Northrop has 3.5 acres and Washington has five acres. Additional land would have to be purchased for these sites.

It was estimated that it would cost the district $1.5 million to bring the present elementary buildings up to ADA federal and state regulations, that is, building sprinklers and accessibility for the handicapped. This $1.5 million would not cover any additional remodeling and/or additions to the present sites.

Without a bond issue, the state will not pay a portion of the cost to install building sprinklers or make buildings handicapped accessible. That cost would be paid for by special levy against the district, similar to asbestos removal.

The $3.8 million invested by the people of District 564 will not only bring an $18 million return, it will allow renovation and remodeling of Franklin middle school and Lincoln high school in addition to a new elementary school, where all of these facilities will meet the federal ADA regulations and state fire codes.

LETTERS

To The Editor:

This letter is particularly directed to my fellow seniors:

Shortly we will be asked to consider a new elementary school facility. To obtain community input on this issue, many citizens representing a broad spectrum of our society worked long and hard in arriving at conclusions to help the rest of us make up our minds.

We senior citizens are wondering how this issue will affect us and what it has to do with us.

I was reminded of the time a few years ago when our community wrestled with the issue of building a new area vocational-technical school and a swimming pool. The seniors at that time were concerned.

Our pastor at Trinity Lutheran church, Rueben Wangberg, reminded the seniors that at least some of them were receiving their social security payments from the parents of the kids who would receive benefit from the school construction. It's just possible that some of us today may find ourselves in the same situation. Today, I find that Pastor Wangberg's insight helps me to put the whole thing in proper perspective.

Sincerely
Ed Sisler
Thief River Falls

To The Editor:

I am writing in response to calls I received this weekend.

Please allow me to praise the elementary subcommittee of parents, staff and community members that put much time and effort into the concept plan for a new elementary center for our children!

The plan you unanimously approved will result in compliance with state fire and federal building codes, equalize class size, end inequity among our current elementary schools and give our children access to adequate music rooms, unshared cafeteria and gymnasium time, and libraries that are truly the heart and soul of our schools. It will, indeed, enable our children to prepare well for their future—and ours.

Your work, combined with the work of seven other subcommittees, has resulted in a long range proposal: a community plan. Our school district has approached our facilities problems in a most comprehensive and well-researched manner. The fact that this information has been presented at so many times and places to the general public in order to answer all public queries is also commendable. The work of all these committees should not be belittled nor ignored. It has been exemplary and worth consideration September 15.

On a more personal note, I feel compelled to address one last point: Any two people gathering the same information will interpret that information in the context of their own personal experiences and how they perceive that information will impact their lives and the community's well-being. This interpretation becomes their opinion and determines how they will vote, how they should vote, how they must vote. I respect that.

Let us remember to make our own decision based on information we gather and vote accordingly. As we do so, let us also respect the feelings of others. Our neighbors will be our neighbors, after all, long after September 15. Our community is diverse—yet accepting—and one of which we can all be proud!

Sincerely,
Heidi Hoks

THESE DRUGS DON'T HAVE WARNING LABELS.

Street drugs are sold to children in a variety of containers. But whether the drugs come in plastic bags or small bottles, they don't come with warning labels.

Your children won't learn the dangerous side effects from friends either. Often it's their friends who try to sell the drugs to them.

You can't put a warning label on street drugs. But you can label the drugs as harmful by talking to your children before someone else does.

DNR river clean-up project continues

RED LAKE FALLS, Minn. — Two years ago during the summer and fall of 1990 the Minnesota Conservation Corps (MCC), a unit of the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources (DNR), removed 322 tons of abandoned junk and garbage from 55 illegal dump sites along the Red Lake River and tributary streams in northwest Minnesota.

The project was paid for by a special appropriation from the state legislature. After seven months, the money was expended but the job was only about half finished—dozens of dump sites were still in need of clean-up and others were still being discovered.

This year, on June 1, 1992, the Red Lake River clean up project resumed with new funding appropriated by the 1992 Minnesota Legislature. Project coordinator is Mark Robbins, a 1992 graduate of the University of North Dakota at Grand Forks with a BS degree in geography, and a minor in geology.

"We're continuing where the project left off two years ago," said Robbins. "At that time, the clean up started near East Grand Forks and moved up-stream toward Crookston. This year, we started near Crookston and hope to clear most of the priority sites between Crookston, Red Lake Falls and Thief River Falls."

The work is being done in conjunction with the Red Lake Watershed District, an area that includes all or large portions of seven counties including Polk, Pennington, Red Lake, Marshall, Clearwater, Koochiching and Beltrami.

Robbins has been busy since the middle of May identifying dump sites left over from 1990, and scouting out new ones in need of clean-up. So far, the project has signed agreements with 40 private landowners to have MCC crews remove debris and, in some cases, toxic or hazardous materials, from their river-bank property.

"Our biggest problem in locating and getting permission to clean up sites on private land is fear on the part of the landowner that they'll be fined or charged for clean up costs if they admit they have an old dump site on their property," said Robbins, "but that isn't how it works. This is strictly a clean-up project for the public good. We do not assess blame or bring charges against anyone. And there is no cost to the landowner."

In many, if not most cases, unauthorized dumping has occurred over a long period of time, often several decades. One of the best (or worst) examples the project tackled this summer is Polk County Ditch #1, located approximately one mile west of Crookston, where MCC crews worked off-and-on for nearly two months to remove 15 tons of trash. "It was equivalent to a small landfill," said Robbins. "The ditch was filled at for one half mile with debris up to 12-feet deep."

"Judging from license plates found near the bottom of the ditch, dumping started there about 30 or 35 years ago," said Robbins, "in the late 50's or early 60's. Back then nobody realized, or thought much about, the long-term environmental consequences of indiscriminate dumping."

The Minnesota Conservation Corps (MCC) recruits young adults, age 18 to 26, to work outdoors on projects for the conservation and rehabilitation of natural resources. MCC has been part of the DNR since the mid-1970's, and has received special legislative funding for major river clean-ups since 1987. Until 1990, most river clean-up projects were carried out in southern Minnesota.

"The crew members we have this year are mostly 1992 high school graduates from farming communities in the Red River Valley, who will be heading [illegible]" said Robbins. "These young people are working very hard for minimum wage, but most of them would tell you they are very proud of their jobs because it's more than a job. They look upon this project as giving something back to the community and an investment in the future for a cleaner environment."

The Red Lake River clean up has resumed with more than twice the personnel and equipment it had in 1990. At that time, MCC provided two crews of five to six members each. This year, additional funding has allowed the hiring of three, five-person crews, plus one smaller crew of three to four members.

Each crew is equipped with one or two pickup trucks, and two or three small dump trucks from the DNR surplus fleet (used vehicles scheduled for public auction in the fall) as well as hand tools, wheelbarrows, chain saws and protective gear to handle what most of the time is a tough and dirty job. The MCC crews have also borrowed heavy equipment and equipment operators from the DNR Section of Wildlife, at the Thief Lake and Roseau River Wildlife Management Areas, to handle some of the larger, heavier clean-up jobs.

Robbins and his MCC crews work with local solid-waste authorities in each county to properly remove and recycle glass, scrap metal, tires and plastic. The Minnesota Pollution Control Agency and state Department of Agriculture have also assisted in instances where hazardous waste or unused agricultural chemicals have been discovered.

"The State Department of Agriculture and MCC will be sponsoring a free, 'ag-chemical disposal day' in several northwest communities later this fall," Robbins said. "The state will hire a recycling contractor to visit three or four northwest Minnesota communities, and farmers can bring in their old, unused farm chemicals to have them safely recycled or disposed of, free-of-charge."

The "ag-chemical turn in" is being planned for late October or early November, after most crops have been harvested, so farmers will have time to take advantage of it. Exact dates and locations will be announced later.

In the meantime, the river clean-up project is funded through October 30, but Robbins hopes to spend the winter locating additional sites and making plans to continue the project next year, if funding can be found.

For more information, or to report potential clean-up sites along the Red Lake River or its tributaries, call the DNR/MCC office at 253-2130 or write: DNR/MCC River Clean-up, P.O. Box 125, Red Lake Falls, MN 56750.

Sparby to appear at exhibit during Minn. state fair

Rep. Wally Sparby of Thief River Falls will be among legislators who volunteered to appear at the Minnesota House of Representatives' information exhibit at the Minnesota state fair.

Rep. Sparby will be at the exhibit Friday, August 28, from 2 to 4 p.m. to greet guests and answer questions about state government and the legislative process.

The booth is located on the east side of the education building on Cosgrove street, next to the Minnesota Senate booth. Computer games at the exhibit will explain the origin of Minnesota's 87 county names and test fairgoers' knowledge of Minnesota government and history.

Wheat Growers

In a guarded response to President Bush's announcement of a North American Free Trade Agreement (NAFTA), the National Association of Wheat Growers today said it was more concerned about the items left out of the NAFTA than those which were included.

"As we see it now, the agreement is lopsided," said NAWG President Madison Angell. He said the NAWG had advised the Bush Administration for more than a year to put Canadian and U.S. grain trading practices on the same footing. "It is apparent, however, that Canada's unfair practices have not only been accepted, but they would be institutionalized" under the NAFTA, he said.

The NAWG has wanted the U.S. government to confidentially obtain the prices of wheat trades within North America to force price transparency. At issue is the assertion that Canada's monopolistic grain marketing board uses price discounts and rail subsidies in violation of the current free trade agreement.

"Our negotiators got the rules changed for Hondas but not for wheat," said Angell, a grain producer from Mocksville, NC. He referred to a change in country of origin standards which control auto imports under the U.S.-Canada Free Trade Agreement. Changes sought by wheat growers in the 1988 agreement were not taken-up in the negotiations.

Congress will have 90 calendar days to review the trade agreement and another 90 working days to act on the measure. Consequently, fast track consideration of the agreement on Capitol Hill will not occur until early 1993.

"We're anxious to see the text of the agreement, and to work with Congress on implementing legislation. Only then will growers be able to make a judgement on the trade package," he said.

Environment and finances drive school restructuring

A better educational environment and pressing financial concerns are driving forces behind the school district restructuring plan developed by a community advisory group, recommended by a school district steering committee and supported by the Thief River Falls board of education, according to Key Teeters Asp, who chairs the district steering committee.

Larry Belmont, school board chairman, says the cost of maintaining four elementary schools and the district service center is draining funds from programming and curriculum.

"The district service center is comparable in size to Lincoln high school," he said. "In effect, we're maintaining two high school size buildings, duplicating services among four elementary schools and pouring operational funds into two buildings that are more than 70 years old. A deficit of $140,000 is projected for the general fund next year. We're having to make an annual decision: Is it going to be heat and lights or programs?"

Financial pressure related to facilities also increased this year with a state fire marshall's order to install building-wide sprinkler systems throughout the district. Belmont says the district has until 1994 to complete the project at a total estimated cost of $335,000.

"Without a bond issue, that amount will have to be levied against the taxpayers of the district, similar to asbestos removal," he said. "We don't have a choice. These buildings must be brought up to code, and not only state fire code but handicapped accessibility codes as well." He was referring to a recent federal ultimatum regarding all public buildings.

Jerry Prickett, the district's building and grounds supervisor, says his department is still trying to assess the exact costs associated with handicapped accessibility.

"Multiple stories at Knox and Northrop elementary schools and the school district service center probably would make accessibility at those buildings the most costly because of the need to install elevators," he said, "although all of our classrooms will need wider doors and latches that can be used by people in wheelchairs. Everything also has to be lowered to a level that can be reached from a wheelchair, and we'll need some work in most of our bathrooms and building entrances."

Without state aid through debt service equalization, district taxpayers would be forced to pick up the full expense of compliance. Although that addresses state and federal rules, Supt. Bob Duncan says the educational benefits are slim.

"We can bring our buildings up to code, but that won't address program deficiencies which also concern us," he said. "Sprinklers won't give Mark Twain students a gym or cafeteria or a computer lab. They won't give us adequately sized classrooms or an appropriate outdoor play area at Knox school. We still have no space for music for Northrop students and we're still unloading busses on the street at Washington school. On top of our elementary problems, we're running into serious overcrowding at Franklin middle school and have failed to address music facilities which are completely inadequate at Lincoln high school.

Supt. Duncan says debt service equalization holds the key to giving the district a financial facelift and a new future. "On our own we just could not afford it," he added. "We had looked at phasing in a plan, going back to the voters over a number of years, updating our facilities and gaining control of operational espenses. What would have taken us a decade to accomplish will take only four years, with only one successful bond issue and a single building plan."

Dr. Duncan says it's like a dream come true, but Rep. Wally Sparby, who supported the debt service equalization plan in the state legislature, says that's the way it is supposed to work.

"The legislature came up with this plan after 41 school districts brought a lawsuit against the state over unconstitutional inequity in education, based on facilities," the Thief River Falls legislator said.

"We reappropriated education funding so property tax rich districts share some of their resources with districts that are property poor. Although that money doesn't come directly into district programs, it does make it easier for districts to afford building programs to make themselves more efficient, and that means more money for curriculum. The end result is a better tax investment in education statewide."

"The state share of the Thief River Falls building project is just over $14 million or more than 70 per cent of the total cost," Teeters Asp said. "The remaining tax investment, picked up by local property taxpayers, generates about the same tax increase as the bond issue to begin renovation of Lincoln high school, which voters approved in 1988."

Board chairman Belmont says this is an opportunity the district can't afford to miss—one that addresses facility needs into a new century. It's also an opportunity to pass responsible tax expenditures on to a new generation of taxpayers. "Our children will invest taxes in new school curriculum instead of old school buildings," he said. "That's a future we can all look forward to."

"Debt service equalization will provide further tax relief for local citizens," Teeters Asp noted, "because beginning this year the $4 million bond issue on the Lincoln high school project will be equalized as well as the $400,000 levy referendum which the voters approved in 1989."

Prowlers host annual 20th annual Pigskin Preview...

Football debut is Saturday

High school football will go on display Saturday during the 20th annual Thief River Falls Sports Boosters Pigskin Preview at Prowler Field.

Varsity and junior varsity football scrimmages, which begin at 12-noon, will feature teams from Minnesota (Thief River Falls, East Grand Forks, Warroad, Cass Lake), North Dakota (Grand Forks Red River, Devils Lake, Fargo Shanley) and Winnipeg, Manitoba (St. Paul's, Kelvin, Tech Voc., Sturgeon Creek).

Varsity scrimmages will be held on the main field, while junior varsity scrimmages will be conducted at the same time on the adjacent practice field.

A fund raising picnic-style dinner will be served beginning at 3 p.m. The menu will include hamburgers on the grill, corn-on-the-cob, baked beans, soft drink, and ice cream. Dinner tickets, priced at $4 for adults and $3 for students, will be available Saturday at Prowler Field.

Thief River Falls will open its 1992 regular season schedule Friday, Sept. 4, with a 7:30 p.m. Section 8A game at Detroit Lakes.

Eighteen lettermen return from the Prowlers' 1991 squad that went 6-4 and beat Staples 33-14 in the Section 8A playoff quarterfinals before losing a 25-6 semifinal decision to Fergus Falls. It was Thief River Falls' first winning football season since a 5-4 finish in 1980.

All the letter winners are seniors, including quarterback/defensive back Jason Svir (5-10, 160), halfback/defensive back Marc Haugen (5-11, 170), halfback/defensive back Carter Rogalla (5-11, 165), fullback/defensive back Nathan Knutson (5-9, 175), halfback/defensive back Wade Evenson (5-10, 160), halfback/linebacker Aaron Broten (5-11, 170), tight end/defensive end Josh Balmer (6-1, 185), fullback/defensive end Shane Skeim (6-1, 180), halfback/defensive back Kevin Johnson (5-9, 170), offensive/defensive lineman Jason Niemi (6-0, 220), offensive/defensive lineman Lee Nieland (5-10, 180), offensive lineman/linebacker Brad Kragness (5-11, 180), tight end/defensive end Adam Jacobson (6-1, 180), offensive lineman/linebacker Rick Ostby (5-11, 185), offensive/defensive lineman Darin Weleski (5-11, 225), offensive/defensive lineman Robert Nelson (6-3, 245), offensive/defensive lineman Barry Rhineberger (5-9, 230), and offensive/defensive lineman Eric Halbert (6-5, 235).

But Haugen and Kragness have been sidelined since the start of preseason work because of mononucleosis, and both Rogalla and Weleski missed playing time last year because of injuries.

There were only six seniors on last year's ball club, but the group included Matt Kaushagen and John Wallberg. A fullback/linebacker, Kaushagen rushed for 983 yards last fall, and led the Prowlers' defensive point charts. He is currently playing football at Jamestown College. Wallberg, who will be playing football at MIT this year, was the team's top lineman.

Head coach Jeff Mumm was looking to compensate for the loss of Kaushagen by utilizing the game-breaking potential of Svir and Haugen in a speedy and elusive 1-2 backfield punch that might be unmatched in Section 8A. However, Haugen is now listed on a week-to-week basis until he fully recovers. He rushed for 615 years and caught 12 passes for 245 yards as a junior. Svir rushed for 345 yards and was 25-for-66 passing for 392 yards and seven touchdowns.

Broten was No. 2 on the defensive point chart behind Kaushagen, and Kragness ranked No. 3. But like Haugen, the status of Kragness is uncertain at this point.

"If we can stay healthy and get a few breaks, we could match last year's 6-4 finish," said Mumm.

Juniors on the 1992 squad include quarterback/defensive back Jeff Twomey (5-10, 145), halfback/defensive back Rob Bakken (5-11, 150), halfback/defensive back Lee Lund (6-1, 150), halfback/defensive back Jason Engen (5-11, 150), halfback/defensive back Jeff Lundgren (5-10, 140), fullback/linebacker Eric Dahl (6-0, 170), fullback/linebacker Kyle Boman (5-9, 180), fullback/linebacker Chris Ortloff (6-2, 185), tight end/linebacker Nick Trudeau (5-11, 162), offensive/defensive lineman Corey Olson (6-1, 175), offensive lineman/linebacker Brent Kleinvachter (5-10, 155), offensive/defensive lineman Robert Bluemke (6-0, 230), offensive/defensive lineman Mark Sullivan (6-0, 255), offensive/defensive lineman Jeff Cota (5-9, 170), offensive lineman/defensive back Chris Tveitbakk (5-10, 160), tight end/defensive end Justin Kempert (5-10, 175), and tight end/defensive lineman Joby Locker (6-1, 215).

Sophomores on the rosters include halfback/defensive back Scott Danielson (5-10, 135), halfback/defensive back Steve Burslie (6-4, 165), tight end/defensive end Adam Henney (5-11, 165), quarterback/linebacker Eric Bjorgaard (6-1, 180), quarterback/halfback Nathan G Anderson (6-0, 150), halfback/defensive lineman Jason Hruby (5-10, 165), fullback/defensive end Brian Howe (5-11, 190), fullback/linebacker Tony Halsa (5-9, 175), tight end/defensive end Max Radniecki (5-8, 130), offensive/defensive lineman Jason Homme (6-3, 163), offensive lineman/linebacker John Davis (6-1, 135), offensive/defensive lineman Dan Sams (6-3, 240), offensive/defensive lineman Nathan Housey (5-11, 190), offensive/defensive lineman Ryan Wold (5-11, 225), offensive/defensive lineman Caylor Olson (6-2, 265), offensive/defensive lineman Nathan Scott (5-10, 175), offensive/defensive lineman Justin Philips (6-1, 230), offensive/defensive lineman Mark Melby (5-10, 185), offensive/defensive lineman Mark Spyhalski (6-2, 270), tight end/defensive end Phillip Nelson (5-7, 135), tight end/defensive end Joey Veitleson (5-10, 150), tight end/defensive end Lee Haugen (5-11, 135), and tight end/linebacker Shawn Martinson (5-10, 145).

Tim Olson, Glenn Chiodo, Tracey Wensloff, Gary Laidley, Glen Feters, and John Schmitz form Mumm's coaching staff.

Thief River Falls will follow the season opener at Detroit Lakes with a Friday, Sept. 11, home opener vs. Crookston before making successive trips to Wadena-Deer Creek, Staples Area and Park Rapids Area. The Prowlers will then finish the regular season schedule at home with games against Belcourt, ND, Fergus Falls and East Grand Forks. The Belcourt game is the only non-Section 8A contest on the Thief River Falls schedule.

Detroit Lakes is the two-time defending Section 8A champion. The Lakers reached the Class A state semifinals a year ago. A change in this year's Section 8A line up finds Perham moving up from Class B to replace Alexandria, who returned to Class AA football. Little Falls, a member of the Class AA Central Lakes Conference, remains a Section 8A school.

A point system will be used to determined playoff positions in Section 8A this fall, reported Mumm, replacing the coaches' seeding vote that has created some controversy in the past. Section 8A teams will now earn points for each regular season victory – picking up bonus points for a win over a Class AA-size opponent, but gaining fewer points for a win over a Class 0 foe.

Pigskin Preview football action will feature two controlled scrimmages being run simultaneously on each field. Teams will run ten offensive plays against each of their assigned Pigskin Preview foes.

Championship flight winner over Dave Geatz...

Delmore wins golf title

Tim Delmore defeated Dave Geatz Sunday to win championship flight honors in the soggy finals of the 1992 Thief River Golf Club tournament.

Day-long rains, wind and cool temperatures made it a less-than-ideal day for golfers taking part in the finals of the championship, president's and six regular flights.

Delmore, who defeated two-time defending champion Derek Larson in the championship flight quarterfinals, added a semifinal victory over Gary Laidley before stopping Geatz 6 and 5 for his first club tournament title. Geatz won the event in 1984.

Larson bounced back from the loss to Delmore with win over Larry Coltom and Wade Jorde to take consolation honors in the championship flight.

President's flight, designed for players beaten in the championship flight qualifying round, was won by Jeff Wiltse, who beat Tim Erickson in Sunday's finals. Mike Olson was the consolation champion.

Other flight winners were Gordy Peterson, first flight; Art Welter, second flight; Steve Nordhagen, third flight; Lee Rolland, fourth flight; Tom Bendickson, fifth flight; and Duane Lillevold, sixth flight.

Dave Gaatz watched the flight of his chip shot as caddy Gary Laidley looked on during Sunday's rain-soaked Thief River Golf Club tournament championship flight finals against Tim Delmore. Gaatz, who won the event in 1984, had to settle for second place this time.

Fall session of the Minnesota Youth Firearms Safety Training program in Thief River Falls will start September 1 with other sessions scheduled September 3, 8 and 10 with a field trip on Saturday, September 12. Sessions will be from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. in the basement meeting room of the Thief River Falls city auditorium.

The program consists of lectures, films, demonstrations and some student participation. A $5 registration fee is required and payable at the opening session. Anyone who will become 12 years of age during 1992 may attend and parents are welcome to attend any or all sessions with their children.

Firearms Safety Certificates are required for youths ages 12 through 15 if they wish to hunt in Minnesota.

The field trip Saturday, September 12, will be to the Pennington County Sportsmen club shooting range from 10 a.m. to approximately 1 p.m. Each student will be called on to demonstrate his or her knowledge of the operation of a firearm and the ability to handle it in a safe manner under both range and field conditions. Each student will also fire 15 rounds of ammunition using a .22 caliber rifle under controlled range conditions. Guns and ammunition will be provided.

Certified instructors in the program are Irving Swanson, coordinator; Allan Paulson, Hardy Hodge, Vern Cleven, Dana Klos, Duane Holland and Charles Jones. Additional guest speakers will also participate where available.

Sports Boosters

Thief River Falls Sports Boosters Club has officially approved a switch in meeting dates for the 1992-93 season.

Instead of the Thursday noon luncheon meetings at the Rex Cafe the club has held in the past, the group voted last week to approve a board recommendation that meetings be moved to Monday night suppers at 6:30 p.m. in the basement of Lon's Restaurant.

First Monday meeting will be held August 31, with Lincoln High School head football coach Jeff Mumm serving as guest speaker.

Sports Boosters Invitational to be staged Thursday

A six team field is scheduled to compete in the annual Thief River Falls Sports Boosters Club Invitational girls high school tennis tennis tournament Thursday.

Joining the host Prowlers will be Alexandria, Bemidji, Crookston, East Grand Forks and Moorhead.

Play gets underway at 10 a.m. on the courts at Northland Community College, Lincoln High School, Franklin Middle School, and Ingelstad Park.

Jay Forney-coached Prowlers were scheduled to open their 1992 season today (Tuesday) with a 1 p.m. dual meet at home against Roseau. Thief River Falls will be in Park Rapids Wednesday for an 11 a.m. double-dual outing against the Panthers and St. Cloud Tech.

Franklin volleyball practice schedule to start August 31

First practice session for seventh and eighth grade volleyball will be held Monday, Aug. 31, at 3:30 p.m. in the Franklin Middle School gym.

All required paperwork and physicals must be completed before a player is eligible to participate in a practice, reminded Thief River Falls Activities Director Lee Alger.

Necessary forms are on hand in Alger's office at Lincoln High School.

1992 Thief River Falls American Legion baseball...

Title highlights season

A Ninth District tournament title highlighted the 1992 Thief River Falls American Legion baseball season.

There was some disappointment associated with a pair of state tournament losses, but in time it will be a season remembered for producing Thief River Falls' first district championship in 37 years – a 29-11 campaign that also included regular season invitational tournament titles at East Grand Forks and Thief River Falls, plus a championship finish in the runner up portion of the large Duluth Invitational.

"Overall, we had a pretty good season," noted Thief River Falls coach Howard Dalager. "Our goal is to win the district. It becomes awfully tough for us to compete beyond that level."

Thief River Falls edged perennial champion Moorhead 3-2 in the Ninth District finals at Matson Field in Moorhead, then headed to the state tournament in Willmar, where Post 117 fell to Osseo 12-1 and Alexandria 4-2.

"We went from such a high in winning the district to such a low in losing the way we did at state," pointed out Dalager. "We weren't real happy with our performance at state. It's hard to talk positive after losing those games, but time heals. At least we were there. A lot of other teams would have liked to trade places with us."

The state tournament, explained Dalager, emphasized the difference between the caliber of baseball played in northern and southern Minnesota. "The teams from the Cities and from southern Minnesota were tough," he said. "Their programs are superior to ours. If we want to compete at that level, we have to upgrade our program."

Dalager said that improvement means a stronger, more challenging regular season schedule, plus additional public support that would carry through the summer youth programs and spring high school baseball. Heavy emphasis should be placed, he said, upon improving facilities that would make Lly Wilson Field a source of community pride. According to Dalager, a top-notch diamond in a more inviting setting, featuring spectator amenities like a grandstand, would go a long way in elevating baseball's status here, and ultimately put Thief River Falls on track to be competitive at a higher level.

The immediate future means replacing five players who completed their Legion baseball eligibility this summer – first baseman Pete Balmer, pitcher/outfielder Darin Wald, outfielder/shortstop Barry Dowers, pitcher/shortstop Mitch Bernstein and outfielder Chad Bjorgaard.

Catcher Jason Svir led Thief River Falls' offensive efforts this year with a .413 batting average, 36 RBI, 10 doubles, 4 triples, 3 home runs and 33 stolen bases. Outfielder David Blazek hit .361 and Bernstein finished at .359.

They were the only Thief River Falls hitters to crack the magic .300 mark, but four others hit in the solid .280 to .290 range, including Balmer at .297, catcher/outfielder Marc Haugen .292, second baseman Nathan Knutson .287, and third baseman Carter Rogalla .280.

Haugen and Blazek were both 4-0 on the mound this summer, with Jeremy Olson finishing 8-2 and Bernstein 7-4.

"We lose five seniors, and we know we'll have to work hard to replace them," said Dalager. "But we also had 10 juniors on this year's team, and that should give us a head start into 1993."

The 1992 American Legion World Series will be played Wednesday through Sunday at Jack Williams Field in Fargo. Local interest was added to the event when Fargo Post 2 won North Dakota state and Central Plains Regional titles to earn a berth in the eight-team, double-elimination event.

Lake Bronson Repairs

A Paul Bunyan-sized plumbing problem at Lake Bronson State Park in Kittson County was temporarily brought under control this spring, but completion of repairs to Lake Bronson dam, and proposed gamefish rehabilitation will have to wait at least one more season.

The problem started in the fall of 1989 when park staff noticed water leaking through cracks on the downstream side of Lake Bronson dam. The dam was a Works Progress Administration project constructed in 1936.

A preliminary inspection by dam safety engineers from the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources concluded that the [illegible] and repairs were in order. In the next 18 months, engineering studies were completed and repair plans were drawn up.

Last fall, a draw-down of the 350-acre Lake Bronson reservoir began. The spillway near the top of the dam was opened. The old under-water outlet structure at the base of the dam was opened and later removed altogether to maximize the flow of water from the reservoir. A new, more efficient control gate would be installed in its place when the lake-side water level reached its lowest point.

At the same time, DNR fisheries managers planned to take advantage of the lowered lake level to rehabilitate the gamefish population in Lake Bronson. Last September, DNR officials declared a period of unlimited fishing in anticipation of either full-scale fish removal in late-October, or a severe winterkill by early spring.

Neither plan worked out.

Precipitation in Kittson County during September and October of last year measured nearly twice the recorded monthly averages. As a result, Lake Bronson refilled itself as fast as water could run through the dam.

Underwater repairs to the concrete face of the dam were eventually completed, but a mild winter, and generous amounts of rain and runoff again this spring kept water levels high throughout the season – preventing both the planned fish rehabilitation and installation of the new control gate.

A temporary cap was slipped over the outlet and stopped the uncontrolled flow of water. The cap will remain in place this summer, so park visitors can enjoy Lake Bronson at normal lake levels.

"There are still perch, bass, northerns, and panfish in Lake Bronson that survived the draw-down and are there for anglers to catch this season," said Henry Drewes, DNR Regional Fisheries Project Coordinator. "However, the fish population continues to be dominated by bullheads, and we'd like to correct that."

DNR News

Compared to most other states in the U.S., Minnesota is blessed with a tremendous fishing resource. The fishing public can pursue trout, muskellunge, bass, bullhead, walleye, sunfish, perch, crappie, catfish—more than 140 different species inhabiting 6,000 managed fishing lakes and 15,000 miles of fishable streams. Minnesota's sportfish harvest averages 33 million pounds annually.

While the quality of fishing is often excellent, the resource is under tremendous pressure. For example, with more than 714,000 registered watercraft, Minnesota ranks first in boat ownership per-capita among all 50 states—one boat for every six residents. There are more than 1,800 retail live-bait dealers in the state, taking in more than $30 million per year in minnow sales alone.

Minnesota ranks first in sales of fishing licenses per-capita and in the number of resident anglers. One out of every two Minnesota residents go fishing at least once during the season, and about 500,000 out-of-state tourists spend time (and money) fishing in Minnesota every year.

Balancing the quality of our fishing resources against ever-increasing pressure, why do some years seem better than others? Why doesn't fishing get steadily worse, or steadily better? What determines luck for the average angler in an average year?

Very often, one reason behind good fishing is the presence of what is termed a "strong year class." A year class is defined as the group of fish hatched in any given year. For example, the 1990 year class of walleye includes all the walleye hatched in the spring of 1990.

Most species of fish in Minnesota usually spawn once a year. Northern pike, walleye, yellow perch and muskellunge spawn in the spring, not long after ice-out. Sunfish, and many minnow species, spawn later in the spring and summer. Depending on the length of the growing season, some species, particularly minnows, may spawn several times over the course of the summer. Brown trout, eisco, and whitefish spawn in the fall and the eggs don't hatch until the following spring.

What are termed "strong year classes" can provide a large number of fish to a population. "Weak year classes" provide relatively few. A population of a particular species is usually made up of several year classes, some "strong," some "weak" and some "average."

The presence of many year classes in a population is often reflected in the size distribution of fish caught by anglers, or collected in DNR lake or stream surveys. Finding fish of many different sizes in a sample usually indicates many year classes are present. This can be confirmed by collecting scales and counting the annual marks (termed annuli) to find out how old the fish is, much like a forester determines the age of a tree by counting its annual rings.

Among walleye populations in many of Minnesota's better walleye lakes, a strong year class may be produced only one year out of five. Frequently, these fish dominate a fishery. They may be caught in large numbers at young ages, leading to complaints about "cigars." As these fish are thinned out somewhat, and have an opportunity to grow into "keeper" sizes, they may provide spectacular fishing.

For example, the 1985 year class provided excellent walleye fishing on Upper Red Lake, north of Bemidji, during the winter of 1989-1990. The 1979 walleye year class in Mille Lacs Lake was very strong, and contributed to excellent fishing for many years. This spring, the 1988 year class on Mille Lacs started coming into its own and, once again, walleye fishing is said to be really "hot."

A strong year class can have a dramatic effect on the rest of the fish population. A strong year class of walleye, for example, may suppress succeeding year classes for several years through cannibalism. And prey populations of other species, such as yellow perch and minnows, may be severely reduced as well. If that occurs, anglers will likely be very successful because the walleye, on any given day, will be hungrier than usual.

Factors that determine the strength of a year class are complex and often interrelated. A severe windstorm shortly after spawning may wash up millions of eggs on beaches. A sudden drop in water level may also expose eggs during the incubation period, resulting is a sharply reduced hatch. A torrent of water coming down a stream may scour eggs from spawning beds and ruin the hatch.

Newly-hatched walleye need proper food items of microscopic size—Zooplankton (microscopic invertebrate animals) are needed a few days after hatching, when all the "built-in" nutrition has been absorbed from the yolk sac. Later on during the summer, young yellow perch are an important food source for walleye. However, if the perch grow too fast, they may be too large for small walleyes to eat. If other forage-fish of the right size are available, this problem may be less significant. Poor growth of walleye during the summer may result in poorer survival, and a "weak year class."

Some species are especially sensitive to temperature fluctuations, particularly northern pike, where a sudden cold front can result in eggs failing to hatch.

Many factors affecting year-class strength are beyond our control. In some cases, control over water levels or stream flows is possible by manipulation of dams. In recent years, the DNR and Otter Tail Power Co. have collaborated in regulating the flow of water at the power dam east of Bemidji, to help optimize spring spawning conditions downstream during the two or three weeks that walleye eggs are hatching in the river.

Most of the time, however, there is no handy-dandy adjustable dam we can use to dial-in the right spawning conditions.

Stocking a lake of stream with hatchery fish may bring in an "artificial" year class. But, if stocked as fry (very young fish), they may experience some of the same survival problems as naturally-produced fish. Even fingerlings, stocked after a full summer of growth, may experience high mortality, and contribute little to future angling success, if they are very small or in poor condition due to lack of food.

Minnesota DNR hatcheries produce more than 2.5 million walleye per year, but that is a drop in the bucket compared to the capacity for natural production in our lakes and streams.

All this may sound overly pessimistic, and some anglers may wonder how we are able to have the fishing we do. But, with reasonable fishing regulations, vigorous defense of habitat, recycling fish through catch-and-release, gathering knowledge through surveys and research, and maintaining balanced fish communities the DNR, in cooperation with the fishing public, can maintain conditions that encourage, not only the survival of fish populations, but the regular, albeit occasional, occurrence of a "strong year class."

Add to these efforts the remarkable resiliency of many fish populations, and we and our children will continue to enjoy a wonderful natural resource—perhaps the best of its kind in the country.

Hunting, fishing license sales revenues increase

Total number of fishermen and hunters who purchased licenses, stamps and other permits remained stable in 1991, but overall revenue climbed 4 percent to $813 million from $784 million because sales increased.

Money raised through license sales and other fees is used by state wildlife agencies to support wildlife conservation projects and hunting and fishing safety and education programs.

While announcing last year's totals, U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service Director John Turner hailed hunters' and anglers' long-term support of funding wildlife conservation and management efforts. "The nearly 50 million people who hunted and fished last year did more than just have a good time," Turner said. "They also contributed millions of dollars to enjoyment of the great outdoors for all Americans."

Last year the number of hunters who bought licenses dropped to 15,718,865 from 15,806,864 in 1990, while the number of fishermen who bought licenses rose to 30,742,212 from 30,731,821 in 1990.

While there were fewer hunters, those who did hunt bought more licenses and permits. Last year hunters purchased 34,089,293 licenses and associated permits, up from the 29,747,175 bought in 1990. Most states require separate stamps for many species, and hunters bought more of these stamps last year. Revenue raised from these sales was $438,523,280 compared with $421,984,404 in 1990.

Fishermen purchased 36,990,358 licenses, tags, permits, and stamps, a slight increase from the 36,891,444 bought in 1990. Revenue rose to $374,928,594 in 1991, up from $362,781,317 in 1990.

License sales figures are compiled annually by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service from information submitted by state fish and wildlife agencies. State funding through the Federal Aid in Wildlife Restoration and the Federal Aid in Sport Restoration programs, both administered by the Service, is apportioned in part by the number of paid fishing and hunting license holders in each state.

Minnesota ranks fifth in the a number of paid fishing license holders with a figure of 1,336,568. California is No. 1 with 1,922,882, followed by Texas at 1,878,279, New York 1,172,485, Michigan 1,564,494 and Minnesota.

Pennsylvania ranked No. 1 in the number of paid hunting license holders with 1,170,119. Michigan is No. 2 at 1,156,422, followed by Texas 1,105,389, Wyoming 771,553, New York 728,217, Tennessee 587,802, Missouri 547,324, and Minnesota 521,268.

The Service supports hunting and fishing as recreational activity. Controlled hunting is allowed on more than 250 of the 478 national wildlife refuges managed by the Service. Fisheries USA is a widely-successful program to promote fishing, especially on Service lands. The program ensures recreational fisheries receive full consideration as part of water resource projects, restores depleted or declining fisheries, promotes access to previously unavailable fishing, and educates anglers on fishing techniques and ethics.

Both hunting and fishing have been included as activities in Interior Secretary Manuel Lujan's "Enjoy Outdoors America" initiative to improve outdoor recreational opportunities on federal lands.

Research Aids Wildlife

Prairie chickens, boreal owls, forest songbirds, and other wildlife are being helped through research projects funded by the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources.

The DNR nongame wildlife program awarded nearly $50,000 this spring to 23 research projects now being conducted around the state. Funding for the grant came from the nongame wildlife fund (contributions received through the 'loon line' on state tax forms) and the Minnesota State Park Nature Store sales.

Researchers – private citizens, graduate students and university faculty – are gathering information on a wide variety of Minnesota wildlife, from dragonflies and river mussels to loons and cisco trout, according to Rich Baker, grants coordinator for the DNR nongame wildlife program. Baker said the grants, ranging from $400 to $5,200, were awarded to those projects that will best help conserve the state's nongame wildlife, which includes more than 490 birds, mammals, fish, reptiles and amphibians that are not hunted, fished or trapped.

Among this year's most notable research projects are:

- A search for rare lemmings and voles in remote areas of Chippewa National Forest.
- Studies of the habitat needs of breeding migrant songbirds in forests along the Mississippi, Minnesota and St. Croix rivers.
- Surveys of mussels in the St. Croix River.
- A study of rare fish in Lake Saganaga.

A science laboratory? It looks like a home economics kitchen. Actually, it was both last year at Franklin middle school. One of the two home economics rooms would double as a science room—depending on which room the home economics teacher needed each day. A number of rooms at Franklin have been altered to provide instructional spaces.

Restructuring offers food service benefits

Kitchen and cafeteria facilities included in the School District 564 restructuring plan will create more options and opportunities for school meals, according to Myrna Erickson, food service supervisor for the district.

"A hungry child isn't a learning child," Erickson said. "Our school lunch and breakfast program is so important, especially at the elementary level."

Although food service staff is working hard to overcome scheduling difficulties, Erickson says shared facilities create situations that can be challenging. Children at Mark Twain elementary school, for instance, wait until 12:25 to start their lunch period. Franklin middle school lunch period can't be extended because the elementary children need to use the cafeteria.

With the exception of Lincoln high school, all cafeteria space in the district is also used for gymnasium activities. That also limits the lunch schedule.

"The Lincoln high school kitchen is so small that personnel make daily trips, sometimes multiple trips, with frozen and canned goods," Erickson added. "Freezer storage in the district's elementary kitchens is comparable to a household freezer. I think our staff is doing an excellent job in the space available, but there is no doubt that the building plan holds advantages for students."

Erickson says the Lincoln food service plan means more choices for students and better efficiency for staff. Although there are no plans to increase cafeteria space, a new serving area is included along with a large kitchen and food storage area. The Franklin cafeteria would be expanded to accommodate more students.

Under the restructuring plan, most elementary students would arrive together at the single elementary building. Erickson says that would be a benefit for the breakfast program since food service staff would have more time to serve breakfast and children would be less rushed with their first meal of the day.

Erickson pictures elementary lunch with multi-serving lines in a sectioned cafeteria. She suggests children be excused by grade level with three half-hour lunch periods beginning at 11:05 a.m. "Children should not have to wait in a serving line more than five minutes," she said. "I've visited schools that use more than one line and it seems to work very well."

However, Erickson said, "the most important component of any lunch program is that staff that prepares and serves it. "Efficient service and a cheerful attitude make lunch a positive experience," she said. "We know that gets our children off to a good start every afternoon."

Milestones meeting

Residents of northwest Minnesota are invited to comment on "Minnesota Milestones: Public Review Draft" on Thursday, August 27, at the campus of the University of Minnesota—Crookston. The session will be from 1:30 to 3:30 p.m. at the conference center of Brown dining room.

This will be the fifth of 15 meetings across Minnesota this summer and fall to review the state's long range plan. "The more people who participate, the stronger the state's long range plan will be," states Linda Kohl, Minnesota planning director.

The long range plan was developed following 30 community meetings across the state during the summer and fall of 1991.

The draft plan contains 27 goals and 103 measurable results. They include indicators to measure the quality of our air, land and water, health of Minnesota babies, percentage of people who smoke, number of children who watch television more than 41 hours per week and the number of women and minorities elected to public office.

St. Hilaire Blood drive draws 32

Thirty-eight people volunteered to donate blood and 32 were able to give blood during St. Hilaire's "first time" July 27 blood drive. Fifteen of the donors gave blood for the first time.

Bernard Huot coordinated the drive, sponsored by the St. Hilaire Community Club, St. Hilaire Lions, St. Hilaire Activity Center, and Noon Lioness Club, which assisted with recruiting donors, publicity, providing refreshments, registering donors and helping unload and load the mobile equipment.

Others who assisted with the drive were Pearl Drees, Donna Sweet, Bea Kruse, Jeanette Walseth, Sharon Iverson, Gloria Johnson, Mary Almquist, Harry Sjulson, Jerry Hasnedl, Lila Bergeron, Diane Bulger and Roger Cota. The St. Hilaire Senior Center provided space to hold the drive.

PARENTS SHOULD HELP SCHOOLS COMBAT EVIL INFLUENCES

There was a time when getting your children ready for school simply meant clothes, shoes, eye exams and vaccinations. Today, however, it also means warning them against any attempt to induce them to use drugs, join in gang activities, or commit acts of crime or vandalism. With all the evil influences abroad, this is not an easy time to bring up children—even the very young ones—and it requires an extra effort on the part of parents and law enforcement authorities to help the schools combat these things. However, it should also be remembered that the Sunday school at your House of Worship can teach your children positive moral values, helping them to see the advantages of a clean and law-abiding life. There is no more vital part of their education.

The most important thing parents can teach their children is how to get along without them.

To The Editor:

If we wanted to we could remodel our existing school facilities to correct the safety, programmatic and disability access problems. This solution to our problems was even considered by the original facilities task force. It was rejected for a number of reasons, especially the over $20 million price tag.

But even this would not solve many of the deficiencies that currently exist. We would still have gyms and cafeterias sharing the same space; we would still have specialty teachers wasting teaching and preparation time commuting from building to building; we would still have to fund a kitchen, library and computer lab at each site; we would still have elementary students on the same campus (Mark Twain) as middle school students; we would still have to move children out of their "neighborhood" schools every year to even out class sizes.

I don't think there is a member of this community who is not proud of the school facilities (with the possible exception of the Lincoln band room). These facilities were built because of the vision of former District 564 residents. We have reaped the benefits of these people's vision for many decades. Now it is our turn to consult the best educational experts, discuss it among ourselves and, with an eye toward the future of education in Thief River falls, fund our vision for the future.

We have several advantages that they did not have in the past. Almost 200 of our fellow citizens have already met with experts and discussed the alternatives. They unanimously brought forth the plan that we will vote on in September. Also, at no time in the past has this fantastic an opportunity ever come at such a low price.

It is our turn to do our duty for the future of education in Thief River Falls. We have an opportunity to build and remodel facilities so that they meet the needs of today and beyond. Vote yes on September 15th.

Sincerely,
Bruce Felt

To The Editor:

We have lost the last three elections due to the fact that us Democrats have been fighting between ourselves. I am talking about Brown in the West and Jessie Jackson in the South. I believe the way to win is to stick together.

We are lucky to get a man like Bill Clinton to carry the banner for the Democratic party. To me he is a God send. He is young, smart and ambitious and has more education than any man I know. He has a plan that will put this country back together again to work for all the American people.

In 1980 when Reagan ran for President he promised the people no new taxes, to cut the cost of running the government and a job for every man or woman. On taxes he [illegible] the middle class and the poor he raised the taxes and the cost of running the government doubled.

I have been told we have over 100 billionaires in this country now; you can thank Reagan and Bush. The poor are sleeping on the street and hardly enough to eat. The USA is in about the same trouble now as we were in the 1930's—no jobs, no money and everybody was losing their farms, businesses and any property they owned.

Hoover was President then—a Republican—but then Roosevelt took over—a Democrat—and things started looking up. He put everybody to work—the WPA and CCC camps and many more work projects. Soon the whole country was working.

The way I see it we have to get rid of Bush and Quayle and give Bill Clinton and Al Gore full control to run our government for a four-year term. I am sure we could look up and be proud of our country again.

Sincerely,
Melvin Joppru

The Times' Editorial Opinion

The Times

We Must Aid Our Children....Today!

Following editorial commentary was written and distributed by U.S. Sen. Paul Wellstone.

Years ago, the picture of a little girl in Vietnam running down a lonely road, screaming from the effects of napalm, was burned into our conscience. Our hearts cried out for her as though she were our own.

Today, new images scar our lives. We hear stories of children huddling behind barbed wire, [illegible] their mothers in Bosnia and we cry out, "No more! No more! No more!" We read news accounts, accompanied with graphic photos, of Somalian children starving by the hundred and thousands and we say, "This must end!"

And rightly so.

These images cut through political rhetoric and speak directly to our humanity. Our deepest moral sense informs us: Violence against children is an affront against all that we hold sacred.

The vision we hold for our world does not include suffering children so our common decency poises us for action. Yet, because of the international complexity, we largely feel powerless. However, there are things we can do. We can support the United Nations' relief efforts in Bosnia and Somalia, including using military force to protect humanitarian convoys; we can urge Europe's leaders to join us in demanding immediate access to detention camps; and, perhaps most importantly, we can raise our collective voice to the regions' leaders and [illegible] natures and end the suffering of these little children. We cling to the hope that moral suasion and international public attention will end the atrocities.

Along with these images we are confronted with the tales of terrible suffering and violence among our own children. For example the following stories—and so many more—were recounted vividly in recent testimony before the Senate Subcommittee on Children, Family, Drugs and Alcoholism:

- Cesar Sandoval, a New Haven, CT kindergartner was shot in the head as he rode his bus home from school. Cesar was caught in the line of fire between an alleged drug dealer and his rivals.
- A child's drawing showed stick figures running across the street while another stick figure is throwing a bottle at them. In another drawing there is a man in a car aiming a gun with the caption: "Guy shooting at my mom."
- Thirteen-year-old Bernice Price told a similar story: "Do you know how I spent New Years Eve? I spent it lying on the floor of my bathroom with my six brothers and sisters because when the shooting began, it was the only safe place in the house."
- Closer to home, in south Minneapolis, on Tuesday, July 14, four people were shot in separate incidents and on Thursday the 16th, two 19-year-old men were charged with attempted murder.

And while the Senate was hearing these stories, a world filled with children's suffering continued. We read the story of a little boy locked in a room, in the small town of Truman, left to starve. Reports say he may suffer permanent physical and emotional damage.

When we hear these stories our moral outrage wells up and says, "No more! No more! No more!" Our children, our future, cannot be allowed to continue suffering from violence, abuse, neglect and drugs. The vision we hold for our country does not—cannot—include suffering children.

Unlike the children of Bosnia or Somalia, we do not have to feel powerless to ease the suffering of our own children because the solutions are not all that complex. We know that many of our children, through no fault of their own, lack adequate nutrition, even before they are born. They do not have adequate—or any—medical care. They live in substandard housing. Their schools are under-funded, their classrooms are overcrowded and their computer labs are nonexistent.

We should not be surprised when so many never overcome such adversity. We should not be astonished when so many seek community in [illegible] drugs and violence. We should not be surprised.

We know how to address many of these problems and ease much of the suffering. We have had tremendous success with programs such as Head Start and WIC, among others. We know how to provide adequate prenatal care and how to educate our youth. And we know how to incorporate community-based policing.

But solving these problems requires the will and commitment to make children's issues a national priority. And it takes our good and decent people—liberals, conservatives, Democrats and Republicans—to raise their collective voice and say, "No more! For all that we hold sacred, no more!"

In her testimony little Bernice Price said, "If you won't help us today, you are going to lose us forever."

She's right. We cannot afford to lose another generation of our children to violence, abuse, neglect and drugs. We must help these children.

Today.

LETTERS

To The Editor:

They're at it again. A handful of third-rate, anti-gun politicians and others now want to do away with the Second Amendment to the Constitution.

Michael Gartner, president of NBC News, advocates complete destruction of the Second Amendment so that handguns can be banned in America. He did this by broadcasting a slippery, one-sided, prime time TV attack on your rights as a gun owner and American citizen. Fortunately, thousands of National Rifle Association (NRA) members and pro-gun people called in objecting to this so NBC backed off. Some broadcasts even switched to another time.

Congressman Major Owens (D-NY) introduced a bill in Congress to repeal the Second Amendment. Mr. Owens—if the Second Amendment doesn't give us the right to bear arms, then why repeal it?

Sen. John Chafee (R-RI) is introducing a bill to buy back all handguns in America—all legally-owned handguns of American citizens (criminals, of course, won't comply).

There are Congressmen who want to go further and include any semi-auto and repeating rifles and shotguns. All this after they said the waiting period (Brady bill) was all they wanted! Vote these criminals out of office!

The L.A. riots drove home one very important point: The police simply can't protect everyone. Many people dialed 911 and either received a "busy" signal or a recorded message that said, "Sorry, we can't help you." People were told that the basic job of the police authorities is to enforce the general law and NOT protect individuals. So these people learned a quick lesson: The people who were armed and protected their property saved it; those who didn't, lost it!

Many hitherto anti-gun people have now turned pro-gun after all this, realizing there is a reason for the Second Amendment in the Constitution. Gun sales have now jumped 60 per cent in California, which is a restrictive state in regard to gun purchases.

The bottom line is this: American people have the inherent right to arm and to protect their property. Anyone, Congressman or otherwise, who infringes on this right MUST be voted out of office. Once we lose this right, others will follow, as they are all related.

When LAPD Chief Daryl Gates was asked why Reginald Denny, the badly beaten truck driver, wasn't helped, his reply was: "There are going to be situations where people are going to be without assistance. That's just the fact of life."

Write your Congressmen and let them know how you stand in regard to these violations of our rights.

Sincerely,
Ken Chruszch

To The Editor:

For the past several months I have been involved in a most gratifying process. A large number of community volunteers have met within various groups with various charges and have considered all aspects of School District 564's facilities. Through their hard work and effort they came up with several recommendations which address the educational needs for all levels of kids within our district, would resolve this district's building problems for the forseeable future and would go a long way toward resolving the budget constraints now facing the district.

The recommendation to reduce the number of facilities would, in effect reduce the duplicated services which exist in administration, secretarial, non-certified teacher aides and custodial at the elementary level; and across the district, it [illegible] maintenance dollars which are now committed to repairing and refitting the old buildings owned by the district.

For those of us within the community it would be a relief to have the question of the high school as an adequate facility finally answered. For years we have struggled with the jigsaw of the many chronological parts of Lincoln. Recent visitors have been relieved to see the addition of many needed areas of Lincoln and have been somewhat dismayed to see that the entire project has not been completed and that new music areas, an outfitted auditorium and the addition of classrooms and other spaces are left undone.

The problems and deficiencies in Lincoln high school have at least a 25-year history and the sub group which discussed and considered the question of Lincoln has given us a solution which will make this a first class building for all kids in any program area they might choose.

Franklin Middle School has always had the disadvantage of being the newest facility within the district even though it was built in 1964 and has already celebrated its 28th birthday. Since the other facilities have had so many more needs and have labored under the architectural decisions of another vintage, the requests of Franklin have not sounded nearly as loud as those of the elementary and senior high schools.

The enrollment, the addition of mandated programs and the curricular necessaries of media and technology have been increasingly felt; and within another year, the North Central Association will withdraw its accreditation unless such areas as the library are being increased in size (the library to five times its present size) in order to meet the recommendations of the NCA for schools at this level and this size.

The middle school philosophy which Franklin actively pursues is totally child centered and concentrates upon making the climate within the school one in which the student feels safe, valued and with high self esteem. The building does not fit the needs of the philosophy and the sub group which considered this level did an admirable job of not only making a recommendation which would relieve the crowded conditions but would also, in part, meet the needs of combining facility and philosophy.

The most time consuming task and the job requiring the most effort was probably at the elementary level. It is here that the emotional issues of the old school identities such as Knox, Northrop, Washington and Mark Twain had to be answered. The thought of an elementary school to replace all four took a great deal of discussion and thought to digest.

Educationally the plan they eventually decided upon had many attributes which have not been available to students and faculty in the past. Teachers at a grade level within one school would have the ability to collaboratively plan and would have the flexibility of sharing all resources available in personnel, equipment and media; and it would allow faculty to use varied grouping patterns for both remediation and enrichment within grade levels.

A friend of mine remarked the other day that he did not quite understand the idea of three separate schools within a single location which would keep students physically apart in age appropriate groups with numbers of about 300 each. The easiest way to explain it is to use an example from our present day district. The facility of Mark Twain/Franklin is an arrangement very much like the one proposed for the new elementary school. At Mark Twain we have an elementary school for kindergarten and grades one and two and they are on the same grounds as Franklin middle school. Mark Twain is connected to Franklin by a hallway and they share Franklin's gymnasium, cafeteria and sometimes rooms such as the computer room. They maintain their own identity and have been good neighbors to Franklin for the past 28 years.

The primary difference I see between the Franklin/Mark Twain complex and the new proposed elementary schools is in the age configuration. The middle school kids are, of course, older than would be any of those at the elementary site. That put the idea of what is proposed into perspective for my friend and allayed any anxieties he had. The size of Franklin and Mark Twain is roughly the size, in student numbers, to that proposed for the elementary facility.

Again, I would like to comment that the experience of working on such a project was a very positive one. When everyone had finished, there was the extremely good feeling that we could accomplish all these things at a fraction of the cost. I believe that we all felt that we could enthusiastically endorse these recommendations without feelings that we were creating undo financial burdens for the future. It was an opportunity to do a great deal for the children of the community at approximately 30 per cent of the total cost. I truly did appreciate the spirit of those with whom I worked and with whom I was able to share a feeling of community.

Sincerely,
Mil Hoff

(Editor's Note: Dr. Hoff has recently retired after many years as principal at Franklin middle school.)

St. Hilaire School Term Opens Sept. 14

"To give rural pupils additional time to help with harvest work the opening of the St. Hilaire school has been deferred until September 14 by the board of education, Supt. H. M. Rud announced this week. He added that an increased enrollment in both the grades and high school is anticipated."

Soo Locomotive and 16 Freight Cars Derailed

"In one of the most disastrous wrecks in the history of the Thief River Falls division of the Soo Line, a big locomotive and sixteen cars on an extra Soo freight train were derailed at the east outside switch at Callaway Sunday afternoon at 5:27. The locomotive remained upright, while the freight cars were piled up indiscriminately, some of them being badly wrecked and their contents damaged. No one was injured."

Price Ceilings Are C&C Topic

"After holding conferences with individual merchants during the day last Thursday, C. R. Lane and Alan Kline, field analysts with the Minnesota division of the federal Office of Price Administration, led a discussion of the price ceiling plan at an evening dinner meeting of the Civic and Commerce association.

"Mr. Lane pointed out that the program is designed to avert inflation, but not to force merchants out of business by preventing prices that will permit a legitimate profit. He added that merchants are authorized to appeal to the state OPA office for relief from situations causing hardship."

From the Editorial Page

"Horace Avenue, between Second and Third Streets, will be widened this fall and this project, made necessary by the construction of the Hartz building, revives the question of whether or not all streets in the business section should be made wider. For the time being automobile parking is not a problem but with a return to normal conditions it will be very much of a problem again and street widening is one of the reasonable solutions. Unless the streets are widened it will be necessary to extend the parallel parking zones and that in turn will greatly reduce parking space. Our sidewalks are now wider that they need to be and can be narrowed without causing inconvenience. Street widening will be a good project for the era of public work programs that will follow the war."

"Enough threshing has been done to indicate that predictions of a big crop throughout this area were well founded, but only a small portion of the crop is in the bins and until threshing is completed the big crop will not have been harvested. Wet weather is one thing we don't want more than anything we can think of right now."

"The railroad grade between here and Thief River Falls is about finished. Contractor Swank took off his crew last Monday and put them to work between here and Red Lake Falls, where he has about a mile of work to do. After that is done he will take his outfit to Red Lake Falls and work in the heavy cuts there. The steel crew will probably not be here before the 15th of September. ATTENTION:

Parents and Employees of Thief River Falls School District #564

In accordance with the requirements of the federal AHERA law relating to asbestos in school buildings, the Thief River Falls District, through Northwest ECSU of Thief River Falls, surveyed all of our buildings for asbestos. A report of the findings of that survey, along with an asbestos management plan, were submitted to the State of Minnesota.

Asbestos is commonly found in many building materials such as floor tile, ceiling tile, acoustical soundproofing, fireproofing on structural reinforcing, decorative coatings, pipe and heating equipment insulations, roof materials, carpet glue, and even concrete. Of most concern are areas of "friable" asbestos-bearing materials—those that can be easily crumbled under pressure—since such materials create a potential for release of asbestos fibers.

While asbestos in some form was found in each of our District buildings, it can be dealt with safely and responsibly. The Environmental Protection Agency has emphasized that not all materials containing friable asbestos need to be removed from schools. Once such material has been identified, a program can be implemented to ensure that the material is maintained in good condition and that appropriate precautions are followed when the material is disturbed for any reason.

As part of our asbestos management plan, the Thief River Falls School District has contracted with Northwest ECSU to write specifications and manage any removal in our buildings. The district has a separate budget set aside for the management of asbestos and removal if necessary. This will be an ongoing process from year to year. These steps will help ensure the continued safety of all building occupants.

A copy of the asbestos inspection report and management plan specific to each District 564 building is located in the appropriate principal's office and is available for review. Copies of the plans for all buildings can be reviewed at the District Buildings and Grounds Office and at the Superintendent's Office. If you have any questions concerning this matter, please feel welcome to contact me at the Buildings and Grounds Office, 681-7450.

Sincerely,

Jerry Prickett

NOTICE OF HEARING
PLANNING COMMISSION
CITY OF THIEF RIVER FALLS

Notice is hereby given, pursuant to Chapter 11 of the Thief River Falls City Code, that Eugene and Loreen Hanson, doing business as Gene's Mobil at 403 Main Avenue North, have requested an Amendment to the Zoning of their property at this location from C-4 Downtown Fringe District to C-3 Central Business District. The property is legally described as Lots 1 & in Block Twenty One (21) of the Original Town.

The petitioners propose to construct a 30' X 60' metal commercial garage facility on the property behind the existing gas station building. Commercial garages as an Accessory Use are not a Permitted Use in the C-4 District.

As proposed on the Site Sketch submitted with the Zoning Application, the location of the proposed commercial garage would also require approval of a fifteen foot (15) Variance to the minimum twenty feet (20) Rear Yard Setback requirement of the C-3 District.

Notice is further given, that the Planning Commission will hold a Hearing on the Zoning Amendment Request at approximately 4:15 P.M. (CDST) following another Hearing on Tuesday, September 8, 1992, in the Basement Meeting Room No. 1, City Auditorium. All persons wishing to comment on the Zoning Amendment Request will have the option to be heard at this time. Persons who wish to submit written comments prior to the Hearing or who have questions should address them to the Office of the Community Development Director, City Auditorium, P.O. Dehnert, Carlson, Rouland win prizes in essay contest

"My Favorite Grandparent" is topic for annual competition

Prize winners in the annual essay contest on "My Favorite Grandparent" were honored with their parents Wednesday, August 26, at a meeting of the Northland Retired Educators association.

First place winner was D. Paul Dehnert, son of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Dehnert; second was Sunny Carlson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Carlson, and third was Eric Rouland, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Rouland.

The contest is sponsored annually by the Minnesota Council on Aging for sixth grade students. Mrs. Diane Marshall coordinated the event for Thief River Falls.

Winning entries were as follows.

MY REPORT ON GRANDPA BENNIE

by D. Paul Dehnert

Bennie Johnson was born in a small town in South Dakota on January 2, 1894. He went to school there until he was 10. From there he moved to a place about six miles east of St. Hilaire where he and his family started to farm.

In 1912 grandpa bought a Ford Model T for about $500. He was the first one in the area to have a car. Everybody wanted to go for a ride with him because no one had ever seen a car before. He could get the old Ford to go about 45 mph. In all the time he had the car he never got in an accident, but he did get it stuck a few times. When he did he could get four of his neighbors and they could lift it out.

In 1918 grandpa got married to Mildred Swenson. After his parents got old he took over the farm. He was a very big farmer and he also had many friends.

Grandpa kept on farming until 1963 when he decided to become a painter. He painted houses and barns and when Calvary Lutheran church in St. Hilaire got remodeled he painted it.

In 1978 grandpa decided to retire and he and grandma moved to a home in St. Hilaire. Two years later I was born. We have been very close since the time he first held me in his arms when I was a tiny baby. He and grandma babysat me when my parents went to work. When he babysat me we had a very good time.

Even though he was 90 years old he would still run after me in the house. I would think it was so funny to see my grandpa run after me like that. We also had a good time playing card games like Grandma or Pig. We also made puzzles. Grandpa told me many good stories, he still does.

In 1986 Grandma Mildred died and Grandpa Bennie moved to Valley Home in Thief River Falls. He is still living there now and I go and see him sometimes. When I go there we still have a good time. We like to play pool and we still like to play cards.

Grandpa looks exactly like what I saw in him when I was young, a large, gray haired man with blue eyes. The only difference is that he is 98 years old.

I'm very proud of my grandpa and I love him very much.

MY GRANDMA

by Sunny Carlson

Grandma Margie is very special because she is there when I need her. She seems to know when I need to be little and all grown up. Grandma is always there to talk to, and when I need a hug she's there.

When I'm in anything grandma is there to cheer me on. When I do something really well she praises me. She is always there to help me with my problems, and she understands when no one else does. Grandma always has a smile on her face, and is always helping me with anything I need help with. Best of all, Grandma makes me feel special.

Grandma Margie is the oldest in her family. When she was five there were five children in her family. Grandma had six brothers and sisters.

Grandma is always polite to everyone. My Grandma Margie is tiny. I am now taller than she is and I like to tease her. She doesn't even get mad. When I look at Grandma I always notice her nails, because they're long, painted and always beautiful.

Grandma always takes me places. She brought me to see my great grandma and then we went to see their paindngs. My Grandma is a great artist!

When I see Grandma, I think of all the stories she tells. It's fun to hear stories about my dad and aunt, when they were growing up and all the strange things they did.

My Grandma is very different from most grandmas. She likes to spend part of her summers at the lake fishing. Grandma loves hunting and walking in the forest. She likes to take pictures and uses them to paint. Grandma is very loving and I really am glad she is mine!

GRANDPA ROY

by Eric Rouland

My Grandpa Roy was my mom's dad. He had a loud voice but he was a very gentle man. When I was a baby he would take care of me when my mom had to go somewhere. As I got older he would tell me stories about when he was a boy and he liked to spend his spare time reading books.

He liked to spend his spare time tinkering around in his shop and he liked to collect a lot of tools. When my grandpa was young, he grew up just a little ways from where I live now. When he grew up he joined the army and served two terms of duty. He was a Korean War veteran.

One thing that I will always remember about my Grandpa is that he would talk a lot. He was a very friendly person and he liked to talk to everyone, even complete strangers.

Sometimes when I would go to Grandpa's house we would go down to his basement and dig around in the junk he collected. I liked to go grocery shopping with him because he would always stop for treats on the way home.

About three years ago my Grandpa got very sick and spent a lot of time in the hospital. After a long time of being sick my Grandpa passed away. I miss him.

Tim Hasty lives to ride bulls, show off

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

"You know you're gonna get hurt," bullrider Tim Hasty drawls matter of factly about his hazardous profession, "you just don't know when or how bad."

Hasty—a Texan transplanted last year in Pleasant Hill, MO—is a 30-year old with 20 years of bullriding experience, the last 10 as a member of the Professional Rodeo Cowboys Association. He talked with me by telephone from his "place" in Pleasant Hill.

While a lot of professional cowboys go about their business quietly and shun the limelight, Hasty readily admits to a propensity for showmanship and flamboyance. He has earned that right.

"The good Lord gave me the ability to ride bulls," he said, "so that's what I do. Bullriders have the best drug in the world; we've got adrenaline. We don't need no other drugs. Adrenaline and the crowd is what keeps me goin'. I ride bulls and show off for the crowd."

It shouldn't be too hard to pick Hasty out of a group of bullriders. He goes for the loudest shirts he can get and tucks his jeans into the top of red topped boots. He will be in Thief River Falls for all three days of the TRF Stampede this Friday, Saturday and Sunday but will ride one night only. (No, I won't tell you what night.) Other than that night he will make himself useful around the bucking chutes and wherever he can lend a hand.

"Rodeo is the only professional sport where all the competitors are one big family," he said. "They help each other out, whether it's with information about how an animal bucks or a loan of $10 or help with a saddle. You might be in the number one spot (in rodeo winnings which result in ratings) but you still help out and pull for the guy who is number two when he rides."

Hasty comes into the TRF Stampede after a big win last week in the Missouri Rodeo Cowboys Association finals. He drew a bull named Tokyo Joe that had been ridden for the required eight seconds only once in the past two years and stayed on top for an 85-point ride. It earned him top prize money and a $900 saddle.

"When I hit the ground I was ecstatic!" he said. "I felt 20 feet tall and bulletproof! The first one to shake my hand was the bullfighter and the next was the second place bullrider. Then it was ropers and steer wrestlers and everybody. They all want you to do good."

Last year while living in Texas, Hasty and two other cowboys rode in 13 rodeos in 10 days in Texas, Louisiana and Oklahoma. This year Hasty will have his activity cut down to about 80 rodeos, only two thirds of the normal 120 events a season. He had a little accident May 1.

What happened was he got bucked off the wrong side of a bull and couldn't release his grip on the rigging—until the bull stepped on his free arm and pulled him loose. He spent three weeks in the hospital and had five operations on his left forearm and it wasn't until July 2—five weeks after getting out of the hospital, that he was climbing on a bull again.

"I was a little uneasy and that first one threw me," he admitted. "But then I won at Iron River, Michigan and Valparaiso, Indiana and the Missouri championship."

Hasty used to be a member of the PRCA Lone Star circuit in Texas, but since moving to Missouri last year he rides in the Great Lakes circuit which includes

Police to monitor sale of alcohol at TRF Stampede

Alcohol will be sold at the Thief River Falls Stampede this year, although under strict circumstances.

Whether the sale of alcoholic beverages at the stampede would be allowed or not, was an issue before the license committee and city council last week. Approval of the permit was given last Tuesday night.

The permit, however, sets out a number of restrictions. Strong beer will be served Friday and Saturday [illegible] The entire area will be contained within a fence and everyone will have to pass through a gate. Once inside, they will be asked if they want to consume alcohol. Patrons who want to consume alcohol will be given a red wrist band provided they are over the age of 21.

Alcohol will not be sold in the grandstands. A specific area will be set up for the purpose of selling alcohol. Only adults, age 21 and over, will be allowed to purchase alcohol. Police Chief Ken Froschheiser said the situation will be closely monitored. Minors attempting to purchase or in possession of alcohol will be prosecuted. Adults over 21 will be prosecuted if they purchase or furnish alcohol to minors.

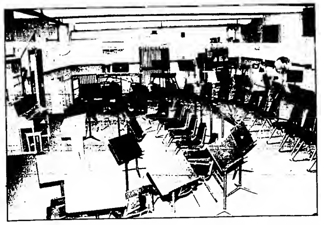
Vocal music room at Lincoln high school is in a former shop area of what was built as the vocational school addition to Lincoln a number of years ago. Exposed pipes and metal roofing are a sound problem. Music areas would be improved in the Lincoln portion of the school district restructuring to be financed with proceeds from the $18 million bond issue.



Band room at Lincoln high school is located in a lower level of the building in cramped quarters with no individual practice areas. Restructuring project proposed for School District 564 would address changes in the music areas omitted from the last Lincoln building project.

Lincoln programs to benefit from funding

"Brick and mortar do not necessarily make a good program," states Lincoln high school principal Terry Soine, "but proper facilities can mean a lot to enhance programs that are already great."

He was commenting on the School District 564 restructuring program which would include a new music instruction area for more than 290 students participating in high school band, orchestra and vocal music programs in Thief River Falls.

"Our programs are stronger and have more students than ever," Soine continued, "but our facilities have never been worse. The area constructed for music 54 years ago (in the 1938 addition to Lincoln) has deteriorated substantially. Seepage problems are incredible, storage is impossible, acoustics are terrible.

"Both choral and instrumental music are in areas unsuitable for student instruction, yet our staff has managed to pull together a vital, growing music curriculum. The restructuring proposal will give this program a new future, and it's long overdue."

Substantial additions were made to Lincoln only a few years ago in the areas of science, media center, physical education and some classroom needs. Deficiencies in the fine arts areas were recognized but were assigned a lower priority and left out of the improvement program as a cost containment measure in what was a $4 million project.

"Our building program has lacked a sense of continuity and direction," Soine said, "but this proposal has balance. Renovated art and music rooms, support areas for the theater/auditorium, events parking, parking for staff and students and a food service preparation area adequate to serve the number of students we have at Lincoln are all included."

Soine says the project also includes design improvements to protect computer hardware in the business instruction area and will move team locker rooms from the former bus garage quonset-type building to an area inside the main high school building.

"With additional space inside Lincoln, we will be able to tear down both old bus garage buildings and create a marching band, athletic practice area right on campus."

In addition to program improvements, the bond issue will include funding to meet state fire marshall requirements for a building-wide sprinkler system and to further improve handicapped accessibility."

Vocal music instructor Darcy Reese and band instructor Bruce Felt are among the most directly concerned with facilities for their departments. Both have expended great extra effort on behalf of students in their programs while dealing with sub-standard instructional areas.

"Right now we present music as an important part of a well-rounded curriculum," Reese said, "but our facilities say something else—that the fine arts are our lowest priority, shoved into any available space, whether that area is appropriate or not."

"The current space is ugly," adds band director Felt, "yet we use it to teach about art and beauty. When the new addition to Lincoln opened a couple of years ago my students were noticeably 'down' because they felt neglected, forgotten and that they deserved better.

"The band room is referred to by the students at 'the pit' or 'the hole' and they tend to treat it that way. From my own personal standpoint as a teacher, there is little enjoyment to be derived from spending eight to 10 hours a day in an environment best suited for growing mushrooms."

He notes that the band room is two flights of stairs below the stage, requiring expensive equipment to be carried up and down the stairs for concerts and marching band rehearsals. "No big problem for a flute player," he quips, "but it is for a tuba or timpani player!"

Lincoln has three bands although it lacks the instrumentation for three bands. There can't be only two bands because the band room isn't large enough for a 75-piece band. More space is needed, including a higher ceiling. The summer marching band uses an elementary gym or the Lincoln cafeteria which reduces use of these spaces for their designated purpos-

Bradshaw enters not guilty pleas

Larry Dwayne Bradshaw pled not guilt to attempted murder, kidnap and assault charges in Ninth District court Monday.

Bradshaw appeared before Ninth District Judge Dennis Murphy Monday. Charges against the 30-year-old Thief River Falls stem from two separate incidents. The first incident, in which he is charged with assault in the fifth degree occurred on August 17. The second, more recent incident, which resulted in the charges of two counts of attempted first degree murder, two counts of assault in the second degree, and kidnapping, occurred on August 23. On that date, a police complaint alleges that he threatened a local woman at knife and gunpoint and forced her to drive to his mobile home trailer.

Bradshaw declared his plea of not guilty to each of the charges as they were read to him. His attorney, Don Aandal then asked about reducing the bail.

It was stated in court Monday that the female complainant has since recanted her statement of the events that occurred that night.

In arguing for a reduction in bail, Public Defender Don Aandal added that his client does not have a prior record and also has a job in the community.

That, however, was not enough to reduce the $100,000 bond that has been set. Assistant County Attorney Al Rogalla argued that the offense was extremely serious, Bradshaw had violated a protection order, and that the charges involve statements by two officers who allege Bradshaw pointed a gun at them and pulled the trigger, but the gun failed to discharge. Rogalla then alleged that Bradshaw went into his trailer, set out and loaded two other guns and had started to barricade himself in the mobile home.

Judge Murphy continued bail at $100,000 and called for pre-trial and omnibus hearings for 10:30 a.m. September 14.

Bradshaw is being held at the law enforcement center.

August 1942: ...Germans begin offense on Stalingrad; Allies occupied Adak Island in Aleutians; Allied victory at Guadalcanal. At the age of 35 in 1941, Art Urdahl of Viking was drafted. He had already served in the U.S. Army once, as a horse-trooper in the cavalry stationed in South Dakota. There he had learned to ride and appeared in parades, advertizing to sell war bonds. He had been there from March 1940 until the summer of 1941 and had gotten out and gone home to continue farming north of Viking.

Suddenly, after Pearl Harbor was bombed, Art was called back to military duty. This time he was sent to Calcutta, spending 64 days on the boat crossing the Pacific Ocean with a number of mules. After disembarking in India, the men and the animals were sent north to the Burma border in boxcars, eight mules to a car.

Art Urdahl

From there they walked 284 miles for over twenty days over very rough terrain and slept on the ground at night. Art was part of the Mars Task Force, 124th Cavalry, a federalized Texas National Guard regiment, which moved about 10 miles a day and had their food, C-rations, dropped by planes which flew over every third day. They even got Christmas dinner delivered in this way. The mules were loaded with three 60-pound boxes each of ammunition.

The men were warned not to visit the native villages because the food and water weren't safe. So for

by
Sheron LaCoursiere

. . . Running to Represent the "Common Man"

I'm really tired of politics. Well, maybe it isn't so much the politics, but the politicking.

I've seen more of the President in the past three months than in the past three years, and seen far too much of Governor Clinton, too, even though I hardly knew who he was a year ago.

And the political rhetoric! The candidates seem to be competing as to who can make the most outlandish promises. As soon as one of them promises to do something, the other pops up with a promise to do the same thing, only bigger and better.

Those of us who have been around a few years know very well that we can't depend on political promises made in the heat of the election campaign. Too bad somebody doesn't tell the candidates that most of us don't believe a word they are saying.

The candidates compete for photo opportunities that show them mingling and consorting with some of us "common people." I suppose they are trying to make us believe this type of socializing will continue for the next four years if we elect them. Little do they know that we are perfectly aware that we won't see hide nor hair of them once they are elected, just like every other president we have ever elected.

Once we put them into office, they disappear behind that big iron fence in front of the White House and we only see them on our television sets or behind bullet-proof glass.

The great publicity powers that be must have decreed that all candidates immediately grab every child that comes within reach and kiss and nuzzle them long enough to have their picture taken. You can tell these fellows don't normally do this, can't you? Frankly, I don't think either of them even has the time to kiss and nuzzle their own children and/or grandchildren very much.

And as for kissing and nuzzling babies, anyone who has lived with or around a baby knows that this may sometimes result in dire consequences. Little, trivial accidents happen when babies are kissed and nuzzled too much. When they are kissed and nuzzled too much, babies sometimes do things like drool all over anyone and anything nearby, or get a little dampness in the diaper area that quickly develops into a full-fledged flood.

You and I know very well that there are a couple of even worse things that happen to babies who are bounced around and kissed and muzzled too much. All of that bouncing, kissing and nuzzling can cause baby to urp up all over whoever is holding them. This is not very pleasant to whomever is doing the holding, and it does not make the person doing the holding smell very good, either.

And speaking of smells, too much kissing and nuzzling can result in the emanation of a very offensive odor from baby's diaper. In a normal situation, one in which baby and/or the kissor or nuzzler are not running for office, the person holding the baby immediately gives him or her back to Mom for some repairs.

I've been waiting anxiously to see the candidates photographed with baby drool or a damp spot on their shirt, or, even better, see one of the babies urp on one of the candidates. I've also been watching the candidotes' faces very carefully, as well as people around them, just to see if any of them might be smelling something strange.

I haven't seen anything yet, but I'll keep watching. I may never see it, though, because I imagine the publicity people wouldn't allow anything like that—it wouldn't be good for the candidate's image to appear too much like the "common man," now would it.

Lincoln programs will be helped by funding

"One of the most important aspects of a quality music program is solo and small group performance," Felt states. "We are severely limited in this area because we have no usable practice rooms. What we have right now is subject to ground water seepage nine months of the year. We have had to remove carpeting because of some of the students' responses to mold growing in the wet carpet. The room has that distinctive "damp basement" smell most of the year.

And there is "other stuff" that creates problems, such as inadequate ventilation and heating controls, poor lighting, shortage of electrical outlets, clumsy traffic patterns and no secure instrument storage area, to name a few.

Reese points to the chorus room at Lincoln—a converted vocational shop without permanent risers or appropriate lighting. Open ventilation and utility pipes run across the high ceiling and create additional noise and acoustic problems.

"The instruction space needs improvement, but we're not alone," she said. "Programs that feed into ours are just as important as student music instruction at the high school."

She pointed to Washington and Knox schools where the music rooms are regular classrooms with no risers or special acoustics. At Northrop school music shares the library and was unworkable in the 1991-92 school year. No space was available at Knox or Northrop to reimplement fifth grade band. Music facilities at Franklin middle school are also small, acousticolly poor and improperly located.

Reese says renovation of middle school music rooms and creation of music facilities in a new elementary school will spark student interest at an early age.

"Students look at all the options and they find other areas more intriguing because they simply look better. We've worked hard to improve our program. This proposal opens another window of opportunity and it's very exciting."

"We have an excellent band-and orchestra program at Lincoln despite our facilities limitations," Felt adds. "What will happen when we put this program in modern, up-to-date facilities? The sky is the limit!"

Dedication for Marshall County Central Oct. 18

Sunday, October 18, has been selected as dedication date for the newly rebuilt Marshall county Central high school building in Newfolden. The dedication ceremony will be part of the community's annual Newfest celebration.

The day's events will include an ecumenical worship service in the morning, followed by a dinner sponsored by area churches. An open house and tour of the school is planned, followed by a dedication service at 1:30 p.m. in the high school gymnasium. Coffee and cake will be served after the program.

In making the decision on the dedication program at its recent meeting, the school board expressed the hope that holding the event on the weekend of the annual teachers' conventions would permit more alumni to attend.

Most of Marshall County Central high school was destroyed by fire November 7, 1991 and demolition of the building prior to reconstruction began late in December last year.

Ron Paggen, high school principal, said the construction has gone on schedule with most of the building to be ready for classes Tuesday, September 8, when approximately 210 to 215 students in grades seven through 12 will report for classes.

Desks have been placed in the classrooms, textbooks have been received and teachers are getting their rooms and materials ready for the opening. Computer lab is equipped and ready for use and the gymnasium is complete, including recently installed bleachers to seat about 1,300 people.

Lockers have arrived and are being installed this week, Paggen said. The media center will not be ready for the opening of school but furniture is expected to be received and the center completed by the open house on October 18. Clean-up, waxing and other preparations are being done at the present time.

Supt. Lowell Schwalbe of Karlstad is serving the district as superintendent on a two-fifths time basis, succeeding Eugene Busch whose contract was not renewed by the school board.

This will also be the first year of the elementary restructuring in School District 441 with all students in kindergarten through third grades attending the Viking school and all those in grades four through six attending the Newfolden elementary school. Students in grades K-3 in the Viking area will be picked up on a special bus route. Those on other rural bus routes will be picked up and taken to Newfolden where they will join students in Newfolden to be transported to Viking.

Impressions . . .

Beth Johnson

d a news item on a national this past week on televi- The news clip was about the ial Campaign. The specific was highlighting one of the fairs for Vice president. It as though this candidate was to many small rural towns America during his campaign

The news story ended by stating many words, that this candi was being limited to the small towns of past America.

I live in a small rural town. I have lived in many small rural towns. I do not like the insinuation of that news person that small rural towns, and the people living in them, are of no influence in today's fast paced society.

Rural towns are certainly but a nice memory in history books to many living in the large metropolitan areas of our nation. But, rural towns still have a place in society—even if they are only a place in the dreams of many, or the place to go home to for many others.

Rural towns represent the backbone of America. Without rural towns America would be sadly lacking the sinew that holds her together. Rural towns are places where values are still important. Even those values that are not always considered to be high values are at least given a place of thought in rural America. Values—yours, mine, and others—are held as important in rural towns.

Rural towns are relatively safe places in which to live. Safe places produce secure individuals. Secure individuals are well equipped to handle the problems of life, be they big or small. Secure individuals are not isolated from society. Opinions are expressed and formed by us living in safe rural towns. The danger of the metropolitan areas is not crucial in the forming of informed opinions.

Rural towns are not lacking in education for their children. Education may take on somewhat creative forms such as interactive television and the sharing of school districts, but education is not lacking in rural towns. What we lack in "creative, top-notch educational gimmicks" we often make up for in personal contact between teacher and students. Children are instructed in the subjects that matter, and in the subjects that interest them. Children from schools in small rural towns continue their education successfully in the colleges and universities across our land. They are valued members of society. They are taught well in small rural towns across America.

Rural towns may not have large businesses attracting many people, but that does not say that rural towns do not attract businesses. Businesses in small rural towns are by the very nature of the smallness of the town, run by a few individuals. Each of these individuals in a business in rural America accomplish many jobs in that business. And in the accomplishing of many jobs, learn their trade well, and are to be valued members of our society. These small business owners are a force to be reckoned with in America. The multitude of employees that are provided livings because of rural America's small businesses must not be overlooked in the larger scheme of our country's society.

Rural towns produce people who have been able to accomplish much for America, and the world. These people who have been nurtured and trained in small safe rural towns across America have not forgotten their beginnings in rural places. They may not live in rural America anymore, but rural America still influences how they think and live. Rural America is not of the past. Rural America is still producing lives of quality, affecting the entire world. Rural America cannot be passed off as unimportant.

this part of the country. He thinks he is third or fourth in the circuit with prize money of $2,000. Ranking is based on one point per dollar won in PRCA sanctioned events.

This is Hasty's best year as a bull rider but it won't build his retirement fund. Total winnings, including jackpot events, have been about $20,000. Former Twins pitcher Jack Morris earns almost that much an inning, and he has eight other guys helping him!

Sponsors help cowboys like Hasty out some. He is sponsored by a Kansas City night club named Guitars and Cadillacs which pays his entry fees and collects 15 percent of his winnings. It also promotes his schedule and posts his results. But it doesn't pay his doctor and hospital bills.

"You know you're gonna get hurt. You just don't know when or how bad."

For someone who rides "with the Lord on my shoulder," he has had his share of injuries. He accepts them as to be expected in his profession, although that doesn't ease the pain a whole lot, and he is thankful they haven't been worse.

In addition to the arm injury earlier this year, Hasty has had his rotator cuff replaced, broken all of his ribs at least once, broken his nose four times, his jaw three times, his ankle once (it now has two pins helping hold it together). He has hyper-extended his knee several times, endured a number of groin pulls, injured a few fingers, taken a horn in his rib cage that required 60 stitches and incurred a myriad of abrasians, contusions, bumps and bruises.

"I've been lucky," he said. "One bull kicked me in the chest with both hind feet here a while ago, but it was at the end of his kick and the arena was fairly soft."

As a member of the PRCA, Hasty has 80-20 co-insurance with a $500 deductible. He said after the arm injury he would have "lost everything I had" if it hadn't been for the Justin Cowboy Crisis Fund, established by the Justin Boot Company. The fund is make up of donations and its board includes such notables as pitcher Nolan Ryan of the Texas Rangers and country singer Charlie Daniels.

"It was just a few days after I got hurt that I got a check in the mail that helped me make the house payments and put food on the table," he said.

Hasty agreed with TRF Stampede organizer Randy Jokela that bullriders will look at who is slated to be the bullfighter when selecting what rodeo they will attend. It ranks up there with the quality of the stock available to ride.

"If it comes down to who is going to get hurt, the cowboy or the clown, the clown takes the injury," Hasty said. "The bullfighter is getting paid to protect the bullrider. On the ride where I hurt my arm this year the bullfighter took a nasty shot trying to catch the tail of my rope and get me loose. I think he caught it right when the bull stepped on my arm."

If there is a fear in Hasty's heart when he straddles a ton of bovine dynamite aching to explode, it is of the hooves and not the horns. "The horns only make a little hole," he said. "A foot makes a big spot!"

But the eagerness to please the crowd and the emotional high he gets from riding keep him coming back for more. What he can earn depends on the rodeo, how many riders are entered, how much added money there is and how he scores if he completes his ride.

"You know if you make the top four you get a check," he said. "All PRCA rodeos have to pay through fourth place and can go as far as eight."

Hasty also commented on the care of livestock by rodeo contractors. He said the animals get the best of care and feed because they represent a major investment by the contractor and because they perform their best when in the best condition.

"Bucking horses and bulls probably only work 30 minutes a year," he said, "and in between they get taken care of real good."

When he decides to quit riding bulls, Hasty—who is single—would like to be a rodeo stock contractor, supplying the animals for youth rodeos which are growing in popularity for youngsters eight to 18 years of age. He has been working with the youth rodeos and finds the challenge rewarding.

He said he is also glad to help out the the TRF Stampede to get it off on the right foot in its first year. He said the added prize money is much appreciated by the cowboys and they want to see the Stampede do well and grow.

Let's hope that Tim pulls off another ride here that leaves him whole and healthy, with the Lord still on his shoulder and a score that makes him again feel 20 feet tall and bulletproof.

LETTERS

To the Editor:

We are indeed fortunate as a community to be able to offer our children a quality education. But some of the buildings currently in use do not meet state minimum standards and some of those facilities are simply inadequate.

Perhaps the most glaring example of this is the band room at Lincoln. This windowless, basement room floods, is not handicap accessible and does not have even the least acceptable environment necessary for a music room. The band and orchestra instructors do a wonderful job with our children who do very well under very difficult conditions.

It will be very expensive to bring the buildings into compliance and in the end we will still have older buildings that will need more maintenance and restoration. At some point we will need need to build new schools.

We are being given the chance to replace the elementary buildings and update Franklin and Lincoln with help from the state. I urge you to carefully consider this from a safety, educational and financial standpoint and to vote yes in support of the school proposal on September 15.

Sincerely
Judy Dimich

TRF fireworks display set for September 7

So many turned out that someone had to be sent out there to tell them to go home. That's what happened at Centennial park in July when the Jaycees decided to hold their annual fireworks display during the rodeo instead of the annual Summerfest celebration.

Rest assured, however, there will be a fireworks display — provided there's good weather. The Jaycees have scheduled the display to begin at 9 p.m. or dusk on Monday, September 7. But residents who want to watch the fireworks should also be aware of a change in the location of the firework's display.

In the past, fireworks were launched from Chief Red Robe park. So many curious onlookers have crowded in on the launch site in the past, that it has become more than a nuisance.

Police and fire officials have agreed with a proposal to launch the fireworks from the softball field near the Technical College. Police Chief Ken Froschheiser and Fire Chief Dave Backman believe the site will be safer because the area can be controlled.

Early in August, a representative of the Jaycees came before the city council to request monetary assistance in purchasing the fireworks. The city has granted this request in the past and did so again.

Rolf Bredeson of the Jaycee's said the display will be comparable to what they have had in the past. Spectators should also be aware that the Technical College parking lot will be closed and there will be no parking along Highway 1 and the gravel road east of the softball field. Spectators can park in the Northland Community College or Centennial park parking lot and view the fireworks in the fields near the softball fields if they like.

Car forced from road

Pennington county sheriff's department officials are investigating an incident in which a vehicle was pushed off the road by another vehicle.

On August 31 at 5:15 a.m. the sheriff's department received a report of an accident in Cloverleaf township. Deputies discovered a vehicle in the ditch on Highway 1 three-quarters of a mile west of county road 22. In their investigation, they learned that the vehicle had been pushed into the ditch by another vehicle. The other vehicle was then located and Todd Alan Cameron, 25, Thief River Falls, was arrested. Officials believe individuals involved in the incident had been in an argument earlier. Both vehicles were impounded by the sheriff's department.

The case is still under investigation and charges are pending.

Hi, my name is Jerry Wigness. Marilyn and I have lived and worked in Thief River Falls since September, 1959. During the 1960's we both taught in the Vocational-Technical School. The commitment that the State of Minnesota, and, more specifically, the residents of School District No. 564 have made toward quality eduction is very impressive. Although none of our three children live here any longer, they did all attend the local public schools and they received a well-rounded education. Education can assist in making a more level playing field when it comes to competing for jobs. We need to stress quality education for future generations. The project that is being proposed is visionary. In my view the proposal being submitted to the voters has many more plusses than minuses. It's an opportunity to leverage some local dollars into a substantially larger amount of money that will ultimately result in a stronger educational system for our community and region. I urge you to study the proposal and vote on September 15th.

Supt. Duncan answers restructuring questions

(Editor's Note: In response to The Times request, Supt. Robert Duncan has provided answers to specific questions on the School District 564 restructuring project. The first series was published in the August 28 Northern Watch. The conclusion will be in the September 4 Northern Watch.)

Part 2

What exactly will be done at Lincoln high school?

New music areas will be added to the school. The band and choir programs are in inadequate rooms at the present time. A new kitchen, food storage and support area will be built as the present one is very inadequate to serve the number of students at Lincoln high school. Some additional locker room space and storage space for buildings and grounds and athletics will be developed as the two old quonsets that serve in that capacity on the south side of Lincoln and which are in poor condition will be torn down.

There will be some additional remodeling of some instructional space in Lincoln high school and a small auxiliary gymnasium for wrestling, dance, community education classes and physical education classes will also be included in the project. Completion of the grounds around the high school, the building of parking lots and planting of trees and grass, and outdoor physical education teaching stations will also be developed.

What will happen at Franklin middle school?

There will be a new library/media center built. The present library is extremely undersized to serve the number of students at Franklin middle school. There will also be music rooms added as the present music rooms are too small and their location in the building interferes with the classroom activities around them.

A multi-purpose room with a stage will also be added so that when students perform the audience [illegible] and the students can perform on a stage. This room will also be used for large group assemblies and for recreational activities.

There will be a new entrance and lobby for the pool as well as some office/storage space. Mark Twain elementary will be converted to become part of the Franklin middle school. There will be some remodeling within Franklin to accommodate the middle school philosophy.

What will happen at Washington elementary?

This building can be converted to the school district educational community center and school district offices. Part of the building will house the board of education room, the superintendent's office and business offices as well as other support offices for the district. The other portion of the building will be used for adult basic education which presently has over 150 students and the area learning center which also has over 150 students.

The gymnasium at Washington will remain open for community education and community use. The playground area presently at Washington will be maintained for neighborhood use.

What will the elementary school situation be?

When the original task force looked at all the facilities and decided that consolidating schools into one site would be the most advantageous both financially and educationally, the directive that was given to the architect on the project was to make sure that the small school atmosphere be maintained. Therefore, the school is designed as schools within a school. This is a model that currently is becoming more widely used throughout the nation.

In essence, there will be a schoolhouse that will have preschool program such as Head Start, Thief River Falls Nursery School, Early Childhood Family Education and preschool program for special needs children. There will be a schoolhouse that will have kindergarten and first grades, a schoolhouse for grades two and three and a schoolhouse for grades four and five.

These separate schoolhouses will be connected to some core spaces to include three gymnasiums, a cafeteria, a library/media center, school administrative offices and support areas, and some special rooms for science, music, art and other programs.

Where will this school be located?

This school will be located on Pennington Avenue. A citizens committee examined 10 potential sites in and around the city. This group looked at all the pros and cons of each site and unanimously decided the Pennington Avenue site was the best option for the community. There are 52 acres available [illegible].

Isn't this elementary school building too large?

If projected enrollments for the 1994-95 school year are used, the student enrollment in each schoolhouse would be as follows: Grades K and 1, 350; grades 2 and 3, 343; and grades 4 and 5, 360. These enrollments are similar to the number of students enrolled at Northrop (311) and Washington (304) this past year.

It is difficult to know what the enrollment would be in the preschool schoolhouse as that fluctuates from year to year, but it would probably be close to the number presently enrolled in all preschool programs. Class size in each of the schoolhouses would average approximately 25 students per classroom, based on projected enrollments.

Students and their teachers would stay in their particular schoolhouse for a good portion of the day and would leave in order to go to physical education classes in the gymnasium, to music in the music rooms, to the library or to the cafeteria. Each schoolhouse would have its own playground and equipment would be designed for their age level. In other words, students in K-1 would have their own playground with age appropriate equipment. Students in grades two and three would have their own playground and grades four and five would have their own playground.

If elementary enrollments increase, is the proposed building able to accommodate student growth?

The building is being designed in such a way that if there were a growth in student enrollment, additions could be built on the building. Furthermore, the pre-school schoolhouse which will be leased for ECFE, Head Start and the Thief River Falls Nursery school could be utilized for classroom spaces. Of course, alternative sites would have to be located for these programs.

It will take a rather significant increase in population for there to be a need for additions and more space at the elementary school. Present projections, which were made through the year 2010, suggest a very stable elementary-age population for the future.

Will this restructuring plan increase the cost of transportation?

Any increase in cost of transportation would be offset by additional revenue from the state. It will not require the purchase of any additional buses. Furthermore, supervised student pickup points will be established in the community. The district already buses approximately 70 per cent of the students in the district and has an outstanding transportation department that does an excellent job of transporting students in a very timely and safe way. That will not change.

The elementary school is scheduled to be opened in the fall of 1994 and all other projects to be completed by the fall of 1995.

How much will this project cost?

The cost is $17,950,000 of which the state will pay about $14,180,000 and the local taxpayers will be responsible for about $3,800,000. This amount will be paid for by property taxes over the next 20 years.

Dr. Herber retires from medical practice here

By Mark Olson
Staff Writer

A [illegible] quilt hangs outside of Dr. [illegible] Herber's office. It contains [illegible] sewn and cross stitched squares [illegible] anecdotes and thank [illegible] from patients and co-workers spanning the retiring doctor's 33 year medical career.

Herber pointed to one square portraying a lab coat and tie. "She had [illegible] her baby rather in a hurry and I got embryonic fluid all over me."

Pointing to another square "That's the Thief River Clinic," Herber explained. Herber and his partners practiced medicine at the Thief River Clinic for 26 years before he joined the Falls Clinic.

The quilt was interspersed with squares listing family members. "I delivered six of her children," Herber said, pointing to one list. Several other squares denoted children he delivered.

Before Herber quit his obstetrics practice in 1986, Herber estimates he delivered around 2,500 babies. "Before I quit delivering babies, I delivered a baby of two of my earlier deliveries who had gotten married. It's kind of an achievement."

Herber said he went into the medical field because "I guess I had some altruistic thoughts of being able to serve mankind a little better."

Herber received his medical degree from the College of Medical Evangelists in Yorba Linda, CA.

He spent the first two years of his medical career at an Army base in Little Rock, AR. "There was antagonism toward the soldiers," recalled Herber, who served at the base during the forceful desegregation of the Little Rock school. "A lot of water has gone under the bridge since that time."

Herber and his wife, Claudine, moved to Thief River Falls in 1959 and he opened the Thief River Clinic with Dr. Stanley Pollman. Herber retired from the Falls Clinic Aug. 31, 1992.

"There are few medicines we use today that we used when I came on the scene. Ninety-five per cent of the medicines we have today we did not have back then. It's like practicing in a different era," Herber said.

Pollman left the Falls Clinic in 1964. Dr. Duane Davidson came at that time. Davidson was killed in a car crash on Dec. 10, 1983 and Herber practiced solo until Feb. 1, 1985 when the Thief River Clinic merged with the Falls Clinic.

"There is only so far you can go by yourself," Herber said at that time. "It was terrible. He was working around the clock," recalled Denise Chrzanowski, who worked for Herber at the Thief River Clinic.

"That was the wisest thing I've ever done was to join the clinic. I would have self destructed a long time ago," Herber said.

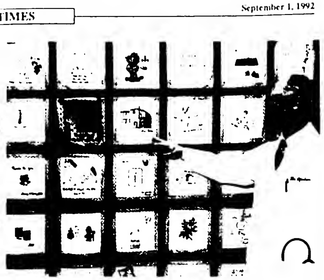
Early in his career, Herber performed house calls. As ambulance services and emergency room diagnostic machines evolved, house calls were no longer necessary, Herber said. "It was a very inefficient use of a physician's time," Herber said.

"He took very little time off. He was very dependable," said Patti Wold, Herber's nurse from 1973 to June 1992. "I began working for Dr. Herber two months after I turned 18. I grew up with the doctor."

A patient of Herber, Cecelia Stoltman, said a show of personal commitment in delivering her sister-in-law's fourth child convinced her to go to him as a doctor. "She said it was the first time she didn't feel like a cow having a calf," Stoltman said.

Since that time, Stoltman said "My life is enriched by his example and I'm enriched as a Christian."

Stoltman recommended Herber to a friend in 1977, and her friend has gone to him ever since. "I've had some really faithful patients who have been with me for 30-some years. I will miss my patients, but I'm going to have to cut it off one of these days. If not now, sooner or later," Herber said.



Dr. Leo Herber points to a picture of the Thief River Clinic, where he practiced medicine 26 years before it merged with the Falls Clinic.

Patients and co-workers gave the 8-by-10 quilt to Herber, who retired August 31 after 33 years of service in Thief River Falls.

Herber has planned his retirement for two years. "I'm looking forward to missing (the pressure)," Herber said.

"Sometimes people think of retirement as being something where you're not going to do anything, but my retirement years are going to be very active years because I have many interests and various things that I do," Herber said.

These "interests and various things" include operating a Ham radio — he talks to his daughter in Guatemala up to three times a week; a pilot with 500 hours of flight time; and golf, "that insanity of golf playing hasn't affected me too much, but I do play golf, but not that much."

"It will be a lot of adjustment having him around the house," Claudine Herber said.

Herber said he also plans on mission work in other countries. Herber has been an elder in the Seventh Day Adventist Church for 45 years. He was ordained while in medical school and is responsible for weekend services.

Herber said he will also travel, visiting his five children and his grandchildren.

His son George is a nurse in Arizona, his son Tim is a nursing home administrator in Nevada, his daughter Katie Schwinn is doing mission work in Guatemala, his daughter Susan is a nurse in Arizona and his daughter Kelly Sue Blake is an executive secretary in Arizona.

He has been to Mexico a number of times, Hawaii twice and Europe three times. Herber said he is partial to Germany. His parents came from Germany and Herber couldn't speak English when he began school. He remains fluent in German by reading it.

Herber and Claudine are traveling to Australia this spring. "We would like to smell the roses a little more before we become old," Herber said.

Jan Nyflot worked as a business manager at the Thief River Clinic and now is an administrator at the Falls Clinic. "We've been in the process of recruiting (a replacement doctor) for many months. Doctors are hard to find," Nyflot said. "It is so competitive." "They come and go. They really don't stay like the older doctors," Wold said.

"A lot of people are having problems with it (Herber leaving). They've seen him for years and years," Nyflot said.

"A lot of elderly patients were patients in their middle productive years and are now in the nursing home," Claudine Herber said. "He cared for them for 33 years. He's the only doctor they remember.

"Patients from 100 miles away have come to say goodbye to him. He feels bewildered they've taken time out at this busy time of year."

He was a friend willing to help you," Chrzanowski said. "He had genuine concern about your family."

"The patient isn't just a patient," Herber said. "The patient becomes a friend and that's why it's a little difficult to cut off that part of your life."

Hi, my name is Tim Loeffler. I urge you to support the School Bond Issue September 15th. All children in our district deserve the best education we can give them. This plan will strengthen our educational system from elementary school to middle school and through high school. And because of state assistance, the cost to local taxpayers will typically be just pennies a day. Vote "yes" for education September 15th.

MREA claims many oppose consolidation

Minnesota Rural Education Association claims a survey shows that a majority of Minnesotans oppose mandatory consolidation of schools.

A statewide survey showed that 59 per cent of Minnesotans oppose mandatory consolidation — with 36 per cent indicating a "strong" belief that consolidation should not be mandated.

When the 400 randomly chosen respondents were asked whether districts with less than 800 students should be required to consolidate with neighboring school districts, only 14 per cent said "strongly yes" and another 18 per cent said "yes."

"This response supports the MREA's position — that consolidation should be decided by local citizens, with the legislature offering those districts financial incentives to help defray the costs," stated Vernae Hasbargen, executive director of the Minnesota Rural Education Association.

Current incentive programs, like Cooperation and combination, seem to be working. Commissioner of Education Gene Mammenga announced that there are now 411 school districts in the state, 12 fewer than last year. By the 1993-94 school year, the Department of Education expects to have fewer than 400 districts if current incentive programs remain in effect.

Gov. Arne Carlson stated, "This continues a significant trend and indicates that measures designed to encourage voluntary cooperation and combination are working. Smaller school districts are taking advantage of financial incentives to cooperate, combine resources, and, in the process, strengthen education opportunities for students."

Ms. Hasbargen agreed, adding, "MREA members are planning for the future and what's best for our students." Of the MREA's 125 members, 64 per cent (79 districts) are larger than 800 students, some because they already have paired, combined or consolidated.

Fourteen MREA districts receive sparsity revenue, which helps geographically remote districts educate their secondary students. Six districts have only elementary students, having tuitioned out their high school students to other districts. Another 26 school districts have fewer than 800 students, but 70 per cent of these have inter-active TV networks and 20 per cent are working on cooperative agreements.

"What is most telling about the survey results," Ms. Hasbargen continued, "is that they were consistent statewide. Urban, suburban and rural people all believed that consolidation should not be mandated."

According to Dr. Bill Morris, who conducted the survey on behalf of the Minnesota Coalition for Public Education (MCPE), "there were no regional differences" in the response to this question. The survey, he noted, was evaluated by dividing the state into four regions: the Twin Cities, the seven-county metropolitan/suburban area and greater Minnesota south and north of Highway 12.

Even though Minnesotans do not support mandatory consolidation, Minnesota's Commissioner of Education believes, "Change must take place." At a conference in Bloomington on August 12, Commissioner Mammenga stated, "The cruelty is to do nothing and watch the agonizing cutting off programs in small districts year after year. . . The '93 legislative session will discuss (reorganization) in a rational manner. . . ."

Dr. Morris, president of Decision Resources, Ltd., released the survey results at a press conference held on August 11 at St. Cloud State University. Overall, the survey indicated that Minnesota residents feel their schools do a good job of educating students, support constructive school change and increased taxes to achieve change, and believe in local, decentralized decision-making. The researcher concluded, "One of the special components of our quality of life (in Minnesota) is our schools."

The MCPE is a consortium of 16 professional education organizations whose goal is to promote lifelong learning.

Wheat growers express mixed emotions over free trade

Details of the recently announced North American Free Trade Agreement (NAFTA) among the United States, Canada and Mexico are sketchy.

It may be September before specifics on NAFTA are fully known. Problems U.S. wheat producers have with the U.S.-Canada Free Trade Agreement which went into effect in 1989 appear to be repeated in NAFTA, which is planned to go into effect Jan. 1, 1994.

Noel Kjesbo, president of the Minnesota Association of Wheat Growers, describes NAFTA as "the good, the bad, and the ugly."

Kjesbo said that NAFTA would give the United States more access to Mexico's 4-million-ton wheat market. Mexico currently imports about one million tons of wheat annually, but that would increase as Mexico's population continues to expand and because U.S. wheat can be more efficiently produced than Mexican wheat, which is largely irrigated.

"That news is good for U.S. wheat, especially spring wheat, since many Mexican millers and bakers prefer to use a strong gluten, high protein spring wheat for their products," said Kjesbo, a Wendell wheat producer. "But Canada undercuts the U.S. wheat price in Mexico, which has resulted in a lost market share for U.S. wheat producers. This has been allowed to happen because of a bad free trade agreement between the United States and Canada. If Canada's unfair trading practices aren't addressed in NAFTA, it would be a bad agreement for U.S. wheat. This trade accord may result in a continuation of an ugly situation for U.S. wheat producers, which would make it difficult for us to support it."

The United States traditionally has held about 65 percent of the Mexican wheat import market. However, the U.S. market share in Mexico has eroded to 23 percent, while the Canadians have taken over 76 percent of the Mexican wheat market. "Given a proximity to Mexico that is less favorable compared to the United States, Canada's market gain in Mexico raises questions about Canadian Wheat Board price discounts and rail subsidies that are in violation of the U.S.-Canada Free Trade Agreement," Kjesbo said.

It will take several months for federal lawmakers, farm leaders and trade analysts to review the NAFTA text on agriculture and offer recommendations on the implementing language of the trade pact.

Because NAFTA falls under fast-track legislative authority, Congress can only accept or reject the whole trade package. Congress is not likely to vote on the trade legislation until 1993.

Stumpf named to rural health advisory group

Sen. LeRoy Stumpf of Thief River Falls has been appointed by Gov. Arne Carlson as one of 15 members of the state's newly-created rural health advisory committee. He represents the statute-required state senator from the majority party.

Also named to the committee was Rose Fagerstrom of Bemidji, consumer advocate for the developmentally disabled.

Governor Carlson said the committee "will work with the Minnesota Department of Health, Office of Rural Health, Health Care commission and with lawmakers to ensure that health care issues facing rural Minnesotans are both understood and addressed."

The committee is specifically charged with providing a systematic and cohesive approach to rural health issues and rural health planning and will develop mechanisms to encourage greater cooperation among rural communities and rural providers.

DNR plans wetland modification

The Minnesota Department of Natural Resources (DNR) had prepared an Environmental Assessment Worksheet (EAW) for habitat improvement activities proposed by the DNR Section of Wildlife.

The proposed project falls within the East Park Wildlife Management Area (WMA) in Marshall County, and is located in the Tamarac River Watershed District. The project is located in sections 21, 22, 27 and 28 in the East Park Township.

The project area is 1,200 acres, with 113.6 acres to be modified as followed:

- 100 acres, presently a cattail stand, will be disced to create a more diverse wetland plant community;
- 10 acres of level ditch construction will create open water areas;
- 3.6 acres will be converted to upland islands.

The creation of open water and edge conditions will yield a greater diversity of plants and animals, which enhances the area for marsh birds and mammals, and will result in a net increase in the habitat value of the wetland, according to the DNR.

The DNR invites public comments on the EAW. A copy of the EAW is available for public review in the Polk County Crookston Library and the Northwest Regional Development Commission in Thief River Falls at 525 Brooks Avenue.

Written comments on the EAW must be submitted no later than 4:30 p.m. on September 16, to Thomas W. Balcom, DNR Office of Planning, 500 Lafayette Road, St. Paul, MN 55155-4010. For additional information, or copies of the EAW, call (612) 296-4796.

Gov. Carlson issues warning about privacy

Governor Arne Carlson has said that information released concerning a monitored cellular telephone conversation is consistent with the facts that have been relayed to his office. The Governor made the statement in response to an ongoing investigation which determined that the taping of this telephone conversation was accomplished during the last months of the Perpich Administration by an individual acting independently, without the assistance of state equipment.

The Governor said that he knows of no evidence supporting the theory of widespread electronic surveillance by state agencies. However, the Governor said that once the investigation is concluded, he hopes that any individuals involved in illegal actions are prosecuted.

The Governor said nevertheless he is deeply concerned that this event, while apparently not done on state time or with state equipment, did touch on the perimeter of state government. The preliminary investigation has concluded the individual was a state government employee, but not acting on behalf of a state agency.

"Under no circumstance will this practice be tolerated under my administration," said Governor Carlson. To insure the security of any state equipment capable of this kind of monitoring, the Governor said he is looking into policies and procedures to limit access to this equipment.

"Minnesotans should not feel their privacy is threatened by technology," Governor Carlson said. "We should be able to enjoy the benefits of technology like cellular phones without the fear that technology can be turned against us."

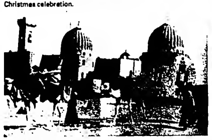
While she was living in San Diego, CA, Gladys Elfstrom says she served as a hostess at the First Baptist church fellowship center (top) which was open every evening to give servicemen a chance to have some wholesome fun. In the bottom photo, Gladys is shown with other hostesses (she is sixth from the left) at a Christmas celebration.

Crossing the border from India to Burma, Art Urdahl crossed this large pontoon bridge.

From there, the men loaded their mules with about 180 pounds of ammunition each and headed into the mountains.



On his way home from Asia at the end of World War II, Art Urdahl went east through the Middle East and took this picture of a camel train in one of the cities on his route.

Near the Burma Road, which was held by the Japanese, Art Urdahl and his [illegible] passages carrying supplies for Allied troops.

With not much to do for entertainment, the men Art Urdahl served with in Burma would sometimes find a little time for putting on a rodeo. The pack mules they had brought with them from the United States provided them with "bucking broncs." Art says he watched, but did not participate.

Stationed in India and Burma during World War II, Art Urdahl took this photo of a woman carrying two pots on her head.

amusement, the men held rodeos with the mules.

The Japanese were in control of the Burma Road and the American troops were on the coast. Art recalls that they tried to avoid each other at first, except for occasional sniper fire with machine guns. At one point the Mars Task Force went into action to capture Loi Kang and Kawnsong, both towns held by the Japanese. The Americans were helped by the Chinese 38th division and attacked the Japanese troops both in the hills and overlooking the Burma Road.

Art spent 16 to 18 months in Asia and was eventually sent home by the eastern route through the Mediterranean. He says that crossing the International Date Line in the Pacific "one way," has made him "short a day in my life. It was Tuesday, and suddenly it was Thursday." He adds that crossing the Atlantic was rougher than the Pacific but he was on a larger ship on the way home. He returned to farming after he returned to Viking.

World War II was a time of transition for many Americans. Gladys Elfstrom of Lancaster, who had graduated from Lincoln high school in Thief River Falls in 1936 and attended the Dakota Business college in Fargo, ND, was working as an accounts payable bookkeeper at the Hartz Warehouse in Thief River Falls when the war broke out in 1941. She was boarding at the Ruth Dow home, when one of her younger brothers, Paul Sjulson, who had moved to southern California to work in a defense plant, wrote to her and persuaded her to move there as well.

Gladys Elfstrom

She moved in the late fall of 1942, taking the bus through Montana and Idaho, then south through California. She recalls that there was no heat on one of the buses in Idaho and "I had to sit on my feet all night to keep warm."

Once in San Diego, her brothers, Paul and Harry, found her a sleeping room with a German family named Niermann. She later found a roommate, Erna Aamoth of Twin Valley, but Gladys says she "wore out one pair of shoes hunting for a job in a defense plant." She did find a job similar to the one she had left in Thief River Falls at a Safeway Warehouse.

During the five years she lived in southern California, she spent many evenings as a volunteer hostess at the First Baptist church in San Diego. The hostesses in the church's fellowship center welcomed servicemen and other young people, introduced them to the others who spent time there and served snacks. The center was open from 2 p.m. to midnight and featured volleyball and table tennis in a wholesome atmosphere.

One day, Gladys says she was called to the office at her job and questioned by an FBI agent. She was asked about her landlord, who was apparently suspected of being a German sympathizer. She later moved into a boarding house, owned by Lula "Mom" Scott, who housed about seven girls at a time and provided meals as well as a room.

After the war, one of the servicemen Gladys had corresponded with during the war, who had also been her childhood sweetheart, Harris Elfstrom of Lancaster, visited California and proposed there. They were married and returned to rural Kittson county, where they still live.

Efforts to address student housing needs in Thief River Falls are resulting in some successes.

Although the city's participation in a proposed project to construct student housing has stalled, some private developers are now expressing interest in constructing housing units.

A 15-unit apartment building, a portion of which will be rented to low moderate income persons and the balance as market rate rental, is under construction on Dale Street at Belleville court."

Stewart said two other developers that the Farmers Home Administration (FmHA) has approved, have expressed interest in three additional housing projects for the community. The first would be a [illegible]

"The intensity wasn't real good," he said. "I guess we finished okay, but we started real slow. We kept it simple. We just wanted to see who could block and who [illegible].

[illegible] Robert Nelson [illegible] Mark Sullivan will start at the tackles, with Josh [illegible] Looker playing the ends in the double tight end [illegible].

Jason Svir will be the quarterback. Nathan Knutson and Carter Rogalla will hold down starting positions at runningbacks, with Kevin Johnson and Wade Evenson sharing the third backfield spot.

Sullivan and Looker, both juniors, are the only underclassmen in the group.

Marc Haugen is expected to be the Prowlers' top runningback this fall, but he is just returning to practice after a bout with mononucleosis. He will be in uniform Friday but isn't expected to play.

Haugen, who doubles as a defensive back, is one of three returning senior starters who will be missing from the first-game line-up on defense, which is the reason Mumm was not sure how the Prowlers will line up on that side of the ball for the opener.

Brad Kragness, a starter a year ago at nose guard, has also been battling the effects of mono, but he is about a week ahead of Haugen in the recovery department, according to Mumm, and may see playing time this week.

In addition to the medical problems slowing Kragness and Haugen, the Prowlers lost Aaron Bruten, a starter at linebacker a year ago, when he left the team last week to play junior hockey.

"Losing three seniors on defense is going to hurt," admitted Mumm. "We're going to have to move people around, and play some kids we didn't anticipate using."

All Thief River Falls varsity games, with the exception of the 6 p.m. Oct. 9 homecoming contest against Belcourt, will have 7:30 p.m. kick-offs.

Thief River Falls junior varsity team, coached by Tracey Wenstoff and Gary Laidley, opens its 1992 season Wednesday with a 6 p.m. game at Crookston.

The Glen Peters and John Schmitz-coached Thief River Falls freshmen begin play Sept. 10 with a 5 p.m. game at Crookston.

Middle River joins Badger/Greenbush...

New football team debuts Thursday

A new high school football team will take the field Thursday when the first year Badger/Greenbush-Middle River Bulldogs take on Warren in a 7:30 p.m. game at Badger.

It's the first year of the pairing agreement between the Greenbush and Middle River school districts. Junior high-age students attend school in Middle River; high school [illegible] joins them for extracurricular programs.

A year ago the Middle River/Marshall County Central Rebels football cooperative went 2-7 in the 11-man Valley Plains Conference, while the Badger/Greenbush Bulldogs cooperative had an 0-8 finish in the Nine-Man Top of the State Conference.

The Badger/Greenbush-Middle River combination will be the Bulldogs in football and volleyball this fall, but the teams will become the Gators when the winter sports season arrives. The combination moves up to Class B football according to the Minnesota State High School League enrollment guidelines, but the Bulldogs will [illegible] Class C Valley Plains Conference.

Vern Schnathorst is the head coach of the new program. He is a Detroit Lakes native and a Moorhead State University graduate who was an assistant coach with the Lakers last year when they went 13-2 and reached the Class A state playoff semifinals. This is his first head coaching job.

Assistant coaches are Tom Skarr, Tom Neihauer and Lloyd Hietala. Eldon Sparby, long-time Middle River head coach and head coach of the Middle River/Marshall County Central cooperative, serves as athletic director of the Badger-Greenbush/Middle River combination.

Football practice takes place at [illegible] games will alternate between Badger and Middle River.

Marshall County Central is back on its own for the 1992 high school football season.

A Marshall County Central cooperative program with Middle River was dissolved this year when Middle River hooked up with Badger/Greenbush. The death of the Class C Rebels means a rebirth of the Nine-Man Top of the State Conference Nordics, who begin play Friday at Argyle.

Kent Warne is the new Marshall County Central head coach. Jim Pederson is serving as his assistant. They're currently working with a squad of 25 players in grades 9-12. [illegible] gle-school effort this year, said Warne, but the Nordics don't have a lot of playing time under their belts to start the year.

"We're pretty inexperienced," acknowledged Warne, a Badger native and a Concordia College graduate, who has been at Newfolden for three years, working as an assistant coach in the football basketball and track programs. "We have very few kids with much experience. We've going to have to feel our way through things for a while."

Warne looks for senior tri-captains Jeremy Tallum, Travas Knutson and Tal Elseth to provide leadership as the Nordics stake out on their own. All three are linebackers on defense. Tallum (6-2, 205) and Knutson (5-9, 165) double up as offensive guards; Elseth (5-10, 160) is a runningback.

Jake Rantanen, a 6-1, 160-pound junior, will start at quarterback, with 5-9, 160-pound senior Shane Borg joining Elseth as the top runningbacks.

Rest of the current roster includes seniors Galen Erickson, Chad Nelson, Tim Olson, Chad Hanson, Chris Stephenson, Andy Anderson, Jared Ranum, and Florian Schmidt; juniors Scott Zak, Aaron Skadsem, Mike Skadsem, Dean Engen, and James Deppa; sophomores Craig Ranum and Brandon Borg; along with freshmen Trever Magner, Terry Olson, Arland Nelson, and Arie [illegible]

A year ago the Middle River/Marshall County Central cooperative went 2-7 in the 11-man Valley Plains conference.

"We're going to have to rely on our quickness, because we're not very big," noted Warne, who said the Nordics have welcomed the opportunity to be on their own again this fall. "I think the kids are taking a lot of pride in that," he said. "They've got a lot of spirit. They have a very good attitude."

High School volleyball scrimmages Wednesday, Friday...

Prowlers host jamborees

Thief River Falls will host a pair of jamborees this week to initiate the 1992 high school volleyball season.

Third annual Prowler Jamboree will be held Wednesday -- an eight-team event featuring both varsity and junior varsity matches.

The Prowlers will then serve as a Class AA host to the eight Section 8A Sub Section 3 teams in a Friday jamboree for varsity teams only.

Wednesday's line-up includes Cass Lake, Argyle, Marshall County Central, East Grand Forks, Blackduck, Goodridge/Grygla, Red Lake County Central, and Thief River Falls.

Friday, the Prowlers will be joined by Crookston, Red Lake Falls, Red Lake County Central, East Grand Forks, Fisher/Climax, Valley North, Warren, and East Grand Forks Sacred Heart.

Competition will feature 15-point matches in both jamborees. Admission prices will be $2 for adults and $1 for students both nights.

Thief River Falls coach Helen Anderson is anxious for the season to start as the Prowlers try to rebound from a disappointing 5-19 finish a year ago.

Just three seniors were lost to graduation, and eight letter winners return.

"I think we'll do better than last year," offered Anderson. "I think we're a lot quicker team this year. We've got some experience with a lot of returning lettermen, but there's still a lot of polishing to be done."

Letter winners on hand include seniors Vanessa Anderson, Kristen Boughton, LuAnne Maslowski, and Allison Peterson; juniors Toni Chiodo and Jamie Martell; plus sophomores Carie Lawrence and Kelly Skeim.

Rest of the players in grades 9-through-12 in the program include juniors Keri Holthusen, Traci Lindberg, Dana McGeary, Allison Myers, and Melanie Kashian, a transfer student from Middle River; sophomores Jenny Drury, Michelle Haugen, Erika Jensen, Jana Johnson, Keri Schommer, Jaynae Stanina, and Sarah Huschle, a transfer student from Devils Lake, ND; along with freshmen Jeanene Stenseth, Kendra Dimich, Maren Thorson, Lydia Balmer, Jenny Carlson, Heather Holthusen, Sarah Koland, Shelly Koland, Lisa Odegaard, Amy Peterson, and Carrie Rud.

"I think we'll be okay, but time will tell," offered Anderson. "We'll have to work on playing as a team. We're a little taller than we have been in the past, but we're still not real big."

RLCC opens with Thursday contest

■ Mustangs football vs. Laporte

There's no shortage of backfield talent, but Red Lake County Central head coach Gary Brantl is in need of some linemen as he heads into the 1992 high school football season.

"We have lots of backs, but really very few linemen," said Brantl. "We've got some experience in the backfield. We have depth back there with three sets of good backs and an experienced quarterback who can throw the ball."

The trick will be to form an offensive line in front of them. "We'll have to find some people to play up front," noted Brantl. "If we can develop an offensive line, we should be able to move the football."

The Oklee/Plummer cooperative returns five starters on offense and four on defense from a team that went 3-5 during the 1991 regular season nine-man North Tri-County Conference schedule before being elevated to 11-man Class C for post-season play because the combined enrollment figures exceeded the Minnesota State High School League nine-man limit. The Mustangs made a successful playoff debut with an 8-7 win over Blackduck, but then fell to Fertile-Beltrami 40-0.

This year they fall under the MSHSL nine-man figures and will not have to move up a class for post-season play.

The returning starters on offense include junior Paul Melby (5-11, 150) at an end, senior Gus Vettleson (6-2, 280) at center, sophomore quarterback Scott Lorenson (5-10, 198), plus a pair of senior runningbacks -- Jamie Hruby (5-8, 175) and Jacob Melby (6-0, 175).

Melby rushed for 284 yards and Hruby netted 218 last fall to rank second and third, respectively, on the team charts that were headed by now-graduated Erik Kolstoe's 717 yards.

Lorenson was the Mustangs' starting quarterback over the five games and finished his freshman season with 42 completions in 108 pass attempts for 653 yards and six touchdowns. He was intercepted three times.

Defensively, Jacob Melby and Hruby were starters at linebacker last year, while juniors Shannon Willett (5-9, 165) and Derrin Hofstad (5-8, 130) started in the defensive backfield.

"Again, just like on offense, we have to find some kids to play in the line on defense," mentioned Brantl, who is working with a squad of 50

Goodridge/Grygla football...

Blue Devils face changes in 1992

[illegible] starters were lost to graduation off that 11-2 Section 8 championship team, including Top of the State all-conference picks Mitch Bernstein, Brandon Blaine, Shane Wilkens, Justin Lunsetter, and Jeremy Rychlock.

That will leave 180-pound runningback Jason Grandstrand and 175-pound linebacker Ben Saurdiff as the only returning starters. They're both juniors.

Even the name will be different. Under the rotation system adopted by the two schools in their cooperative agreement, the 1992 edition of the Blue Devils will be officially Goodridge/Grygla instead of the Grygla/Goodridge heading that appeared on the Metrodome scoreboard in last year's state playoffs when they beat AlBrook 25-12 and handled Cromwell 44-6 before losing a 7-6 championship game decision to Chokio-Alberta.

"We lost a lot of kids," acknowledged Blue Devils head coach Darwin Hagen. "We'll be starting all over. But I think we'll be okay. I just hope we can avoid a slow start while we pick up some experience."

Senior Jeremy Engelstad (170) is expected to quarterback this year's ball club, with Grandstrand heading a list a runningbacks that could also feature seniors Scott Rindahl (170) and Aaron Osiby (185).

The offensive line will be completely rebuilt, with junior Eldon Quam (175) being the most experienced player up front.

Saurdiff, Quam and Engelstad will likely be key players in the Blue Devils defense.

Hagen is hoping the taste of success enjoyed by the 1991 squad carries over into 1992. "The experience we enjoyed last year should have helped the younger players," he said.

Assistant coaches are Duane Kjono, Vern Johnson and Mike Gast.

Tri-County, said Hagen, ranks as the preseason favorite in the Top of the State Conference.

Latest additions to the Minnesota state park system are Glendalough, near Battle Lake, and Grand Portage.

It is a lament many an angler has heard: "There's nothing but stunted fish in that lake!"

Stunting is a condition in which the fish in a lake remain small. Most often it is a word used in reference to panfish. Bluegills in particular. However, northern pike and even walleye can sometimes be affected.

So what causes stunting? The simple answer is that there is no simple answer. Likewise, there is no simple solution to the problem.

According to Chris Kavanaugh, fisheries projects coordinator for the Department of Natural Resources at New Ulm, there are several generally accepted theories about why fish populations may become stunted. Usually, it is a combination of factors that leads to stunting.

"If there is such a thing a 'true' stunting, it is slow growth caused by intense competition for food coupled with an abundance of young fish," Kavanaugh said. "Sometimes the problem is also tied to changes in the aquatic ecosystem. For example, there could be increased vegetation because of nutrient input or a loss of predators that control population size."

Stunting might be the result of overfishing sunfish. "When anglers keep all the larger fish but throw back the smaller fish, these small sunfish just continue to proliferate in the absence of larger sunfish," Kavanaugh said. "When the population is too high, individual fish cannot grow very fast."

Although stunting most often affects panfish. Bluegills in particular, other fish species can also be affected. Northern pike, for instance, do not reach the large sizes in southern Minnesota waters that they do in bodies of water farther north.

Huon Newburg, DNR Region IV fisheries manager at New Ulm, was once involved in a research project aimed at discovering the reason for this northern pike size discrepancy.

"Although the study was not conclusive, I do believe water temperature has a lot to do with why northerns do not generally reach the size in southern Minnesota that they do farther north," Newburg said.

To reach trophy size, northern pike must have relatively clean water, adequate forage, and abundant shoreline marshes and wetlands for spawning. Even when these conditions exist, however, northern pike in the shallower, warmer waters of southern Minnesota do not reach the size they do farther north.

"Northern pike are a cool water species," Newburg said. "There is evidence to suggest that when water temperatures are warm, relatively speaking, and oxygen levels decrease, northerns stop feeding and growing."

Northern pike also need protection if they are to reach large size. Because there are so few large northern pike in southern Minnesota, they cannot easily endure heavy fishing pressure. "Catch and release and special regulations such as size restrictions may help grow larger northern pike in certain waters," Newburg said.

It is panfish that are most affected by stunting, however. "People love to catch and eat bluegill," Kavanaugh said, "and so it can be real frustrating when all you catch are little bluegill. There are many ongoing projects investigating the cause and effect of stunting and evaluating and recommending various management strategies to combat it."

[illegible] DNR fisheries biologists are experimenting with is to stock predator fish in certain lakes experiencing problems with stunted panfish. Two lakes in southern Minnesota were stocked last year with hundreds of large flathead catfish in hopes they will not only thin the stunted panfish populations, but also feast on the abundant carp and black bullhead populations.

In cooperation with area sportsmen's clubs, the DNR stocked 2,700 pounds of catfish ranging in size from 2 to 40 pounds into both Lake Volney and Lake Emily in Le Sueur County. "Water clarity is a big problem in many of our southern Minnesota lakes," said Newburg, "and part of the blame lies with the abundant populations of carp and black bullhead. We hope that the catfish will take control of those populations and, along with other land management practices, we can get the water cleaned up.

"We also think the catfish can help alleviate the stunting problem we have with panfish in those lakes," Newburg said. "Eventually we hope to stock flathead cats into 10 lakes in southwest Minnesota and then study the impact those predators have."

Largemouth bass have proven to be successful sunfish predators, but not all lakes are suitable for bass, according to Kavanaugh. "In lakes where good numbers of bass are present, you tend not to have the panfish stunting problems like you do in lakes where they are not present – which is another good reason to practice catch and release on bass," Kavanaugh noted.

It is difficult to determine why a certain lake has an over-abundance of itty-bitty fish of a particular species. Each situation is a bit different, Kavanaugh said. The real difficulty, however, is figuring out what, if anything, can be done to make them grow.

"There are no simple solutions," Kavanaugh stated. "Back in the 40s and 50s, fish managers even tried seining bluegill to thin them out, but not enough could be removed to make a real difference."

Biologists and managers realize that each lake is unique. "Ideally, we would like to be able to manage each lake individually," Newburg said. "Of course, we have neither the time nor money to do that. Instead, we have to focus on our efforts on the higher quality, more popular bodies of water."

Second annual grouse hunters Youth Day is set

State Parks

Minnesota has 66 state parks, stretching over 200,000 acres.

Oldest state park in Minnesota is Itasca, which was established April 20, 1891.

Jacob Brower, who studied, mapped and established that the Mississippi River begins in Itasca, served as the first Minnesota state park commissioner.

Nearly 8 million visitors are attracted to Minnesota state parks each year. Day use accounts for most of the visits; camping accounts for about 11 percent of park visits.

Gooseberry Falls led the Minnesota state park system in the number of visitors in 1991 with 785,333 admissions. Ft. Snelling was second on the list with 681,249, followed by Itasca 527,324 and Interstate 376,734.

Minnesota state park fees include an $18 annual sticker, $10 camping fee, and $4 day use sticker.

DNR News

said Karen Noyce, DNR Bear Research Biologist at Grand Rapids. "The crop is about 10 days behind in development compared to a normal season."

Black bears are on the increase in Minnesota as well, according to Noyce. "We've recorded a strong, steady increase in bear population the past few years," said Noyce. "We've increased the number of bear permits for the fall hunting seasons in response to that population increase, but it apparently has not had an adverse effect on the upward trend."

"An increase in bears would naturally lead to an increase in nuisance bear complaints," concluded Noyce, "but this year we've experienced a very sudden increase in early July because of environmental factors affecting the food source."

There have also been a few reports of residents and tourists feeding bears on purpose. "That's asking for trouble," said Dyrland, "because you're training bears to equate people with food, and that could be dangerous, especially if they next people they come in contact with are small children."

"The best thing to do is to keep garbage and pet food cleaned up and out of reach," said Dyrland, "even if you have to store garbage inside somewhere until you can remove it from the premises."

"Bears are almost always on the move," added Dyrland. "If they can't find a meal at your house, they'll usually just move on and not come back."

If you do encounter a bear, the DNR's best advice is to leave it alone and allow it plenty of room to escape. Don't confront it. Don't corner it or get between it and the closest escape route. And never get between a sow and her cubs.

If a bear does persist in bothering your property, contact your local DNR Conservation Officer through your county sheriff or law enforcement center. Conservation Officers can live-trap nuisance bears and transport them to more suitable habitat; or, between July 1 and September 1, officers can issue a special permit to a licensed bear [illegible] the bear and register it as their legal game animal for the season.

Controlling Aquatic Vegetation

Want to control bothersome vegetation in a Minnesota lake, stream, or other public waters? It might require a permit from the Department of Natural Resources before work begins, according to DNR aquatic biologist Steve Enger.

"The DNR monitors the use of chemical and mechanical means to remove aquatic plants in order to prevent unnecessary threats to the environment, and protect wildlife habitat and public health, Enger explained.

Any use of chemicals in public waters requires a permit, as does any removal or control of emergent vegetation – plants that extend above the water surface like cattails and bullrushes.

Aquatic nuisance control permits are issued through DNR regional fisheries offices in Bemidji, Grand Rapids, Brainerd, New Ulm, Rochester, and St. Paul.

Enger said applicants are encouraged to submit their requests several weeks before they plan to begin treatment.

A permit is not required for cutting or pulling submerged vegetation in an area of 2,500 square feet or less, Enger said. In this situation, the control site cannot extend more than 50 feet along the owner's shoreline or one-half the length of the frontage, whichever is less. A 15-foot wide boat channel may be added to the lakeward edge of the site in order to access a boat to open water, but must not increase the 50-foot width limitation on the shoreline frontage. Enger said the size of the control site is limited in order to maintain the aquatic habitat and prevent shoreline erosion.

Such work can be done using hand or power-operated cutters, rakes and the like. The use of draglines, bulldozers, hydraulic jets, suction dredges or other power-operated earthmoving equipment is not permitted, however, because they are too destructive. All cut or pulled vegetation must be removed from the water to prevent reintroduction and creating problems for neighbors.

Unlawful destruction of aquatic vegetation is a misdemeanor in the state of Minnesota, with a maximum penalty of $700 fine and/or 90 days in jail.

Sexual assault: myths & facts

by the Violence Intervention Project Staff

"Sexual assault is an attack on a person's bodily integrity and on his or her dignity, no matter what the circumstances," says a 24 year old woman from Pennington county who was a victim of incest from the age of four until nine by her brother who was ten years older than she was. The incest only ended when her brother left home. "I was scared every day of my life, and I felt like I had no control over anything. He told me that if I told, no one would believe me and that they would blame me. It's hard for me to trust people now."

The words of the above survivor illustrate perfectly the feelings of all victims of sexual assault no matter what their age, race or gender. Fear and a loss of control over one's body are the two most common feelings that victims report after having been sexually assaulted. Unfortunately these feelings are shared by many people in this country.

Statistics show that one in three women has been or will be sexually assaulted in her lifetime, one in four girls will be sexually assaulted before the age of eighteen and one in seven boys will be sexually assaulted before the age of eighteen. These are grim predictions, and the sad fact is that research is now revealing that these statistics are actually lower than the reality. In other words, there are more sexually victimized people than statistics even account for.

Violence Intervention Project, the domestic abuse and sexual assault agency serving Region 1, keeps statistics on the number of sexual assault victims served on a county by county basis. In the past three months, VIP served 67 clients, throughout the region who were victims of sexual assault. In Pennington county alone, VIP had contact with 21 victims of sexual assault, ranging in age from two to 44.

There are several myths which many people still believe when they think of sexual assault victims. The primary myth is that the victim somehow asked for it. This is probably the most damaging message that a victim can hear from anyone, whether it's from a friend, family member or from society at large. "My friends, my folks, everyone turned against me when I told them my 'boyfriend' had raped me. They said I was exaggerating. I thought about committing suicide," says an 18-year-old woman who was assaulted a year ago.

Another myth is that sexual assault perpetrators are always strangers to the victim. In fact, the exact opposite is true. Most victims know and often trust the person who assaults them. An example of this is acquaintance rape, a crime that has only been acknowledged in the past few years, and one that is widespread. Two more illustrations of this are the case of incest and marital rape. These are probably the most devastating of crimes to the victims, because the assaults are very often ongoing for a number of years, and because the victim feels love for the perpetrator or is economically dependent, and thus hesitates to report the crime to the authorities. The victim always wants the sexual assault to stop, but may not want to get the perpetrator into trouble.

Although most victims of sexual assault are women and girls, sexual assault can and does happen to anyone. VIP has received calls from men who have been sexually assaulted, most of them when they were boys. Part of the reason men do not feel comfortable revealing past sexual abuse is because of the stereotype that men shouldn't have "let" it happen to them, again feeding the myth that somehow victims have control over the assault situation. All victims would have stopped the sexual assault if they had been able to. When men do come forward, they are often met with ridicule and scorn, and this is a shame, because the only way to end the cycle of violence is for every person to get the help they need.

Because of negative societal attitudes, many victims do not report sexual assault to the authorities, and this is unfortunate because rapists generally assault more than one person in their lifetimes. If you know someone who has been sexually assaulted, the most important thing to remember is that they are not to blame. They often blame themselves already and have to be told that they are not at fault. Try to avoid questions beginning with the word "why." For example, "Why were you out so late?" "Why didn't you try to get away?" and "Why were you drinking with that person?" show the tone of questions that begin with the word "why" and are often perceived as blaming the victim. These are often questions that she has asked herself over and over already. Instead of questioning the circumstances surrounding a sexual assault, it is vital to remember that you are talking to someone who survived a violent attack and may need your help and support in recovering from it.

At VIP we try to reinforce the belief that the victim did not bring on the attack by anything that she said or did. Sexual assault is an act of violence not of sexual desire. The perpetrator's motive is not sexual gratification, but power and control over the victim.

VIP offers many services to sexual assault victims, including advocacy and individual or group counseling by a professional therapist who specializes in sexual assault issues. VIP staff is available 24 hours a day to accompany sexual assault victims to the emergency room and to law enforcement if they choose. Call 681-5557 or 1-800-660-6667.

VFW and liquor establishments to get warnings

Thief River Falls license committee will recommend to the city council that the local VFW club and all establishments that serve alcoholic beverages receive a warning letter.

The committee met Tuesday morning to discuss an alleged violation of the ordinance prohibiting the sale of an alcoholic beverage to a minor. The alleged incident took place at the VFW club on August 12. On that date the police received a report of an assault at the club. David Rodriguez Benavidez was arrested and charged with fifth degree assault. It was later determined that Benavidez was 19 years of age.

The city has a history of issuing warnings to establishments in these type of situations. Although suspension and revocation is an option, the city has not suspended a license for many years. The last warning to liquor establishments [illegible].

Police Chief Ken Froschheiser asked that a special meeting be held to consider the alleged violation. Froschheiser stated in his memo to the committee that, "I believe the meeting is not to decide punishment, but instead correct the problem and take steps to insure against it happening in the future."

John Ellison, commander of the local VFW, said it was an unfortunate situation. . . a slip up really.

As a result of this incident, Jo Walton, bar manager, said all bartenders have been asked to check everyone who looks to be under 30. "It sure opened our eyes that we can make mistakes."

How Benavidez got the liquor is still a matter of investigation. Walton stated that one patron has been barred for life from the VFW club for his participation in the incident and threats.

The committee approved a resolution of recommendation to issue a warning to all liquor establishments — the same action taken after the last incident involving a minor in a liquor establishment.

The matter will be brought before the city council on September 8.

SWCD at Grygla gets $14,064 for erosion control

Marshall-Beltrami Soil and Water Conservation district will receive $14,064 in grants from the Minnesota Board of Water and Soil Resources (BWSR) for erosion control measures and basic services for fiscal year 1993.

"It's apparent that many types of resource management are most effective when done at the local level," states Ron Harnack, executive director of the BWSR. "These grants represent the state's continuing commitment to helping communities wisely manage their soil and water resources."

Of the $14,064 which the Marshall-Beltrami SWCD will receive, $4,901 is through the cost-share program, which provides funds for SWCDs to pay up to 75 per cent of a landowner's cost of solving priority erosion, sediment control and water quality problems. The grant funding is used for projects ranging from erosion stabilization structures to build field windbreaks. Of the $4,901, there has been $637.50 encumbered for an erosion control structure.

Funding is encumbered on a first-come, first-served basis. About $9,163 is a general services grant which provides money for day-to-day activities of the SWCD, such as communications and administration.

The BWSR provides additional funding and technical assistance to counties and SWCDs through various other grant programs at other times of the year.

Landowners who are interested in applying for cost-share project funds should contact the Marshall - Beltrami SWCD at 294-6144.

Hi, my name is Connie Omdahl. My husband Don and I have lived in Thief River Falls for 34 years and own a business here. Our four children have graduated from Lincoln high school. I urge you to support the School Bond Issue September 15th. It's a project we badly need to strengthen our school system and one that can save us lots of money in the long run. And the fact that local taxpayers will pay only $1 out of every $4 of the project cost makes it easily affordable to all citizens of the district. For a cost of pennies a day, you can save the district millions of dollars. Vote "yes" for education September 15th.

Truck hits two parked vehicles, driver charged

Two parked vehicles sustained substantial damage after a truck ran into them. The driver was later arrested for driving while intoxicated.

On August 29 at 1:26 a.m. police received a report that a truck had run into two parked vehicles and a tree on Arnold avenue. According to the report, a Metz Bakery truck driven by Arnold Ryba, route 1, Newfolden, was going north on Knight, left the roadway center and struck the front end of a parked car owned by Carol Klopp, Thief River Falls. Carol's car was then pushed into her husband's vehicle which was parked behind it. The bakery truck then struck and uprooted a six-inch tree on the Klopp's property, backed up and left the scene.

Ryba was stopped by Minnesota State Patrol north on Highway 32 and arrested for driving while intoxicated.

Damages were estimated at $4,000 to the bakery truck, $3,000 to Carol Klopp's vehicle, $500 to Floyd Klopp's vehicle, and $150 to the tree.

TRF Group conducts mission work in Mexico

A group of 13 local adults and youths recently did missionary work in Mexico City.

The group left August 3 and returned August 13. They drove to McAllen, TX where they took a one and one-half hour flight into Mexico City.

They joined a mission operated by Carl Johnson, originally from Warren. The mission "births churches," said Kent Hudson, youth pastor at the Evangelical Covenant Church, which organized the trip.

The mission, Christian Fellowship Union, is responsible for building churches and training pastors around Mexico City. The mission has built 30 to 40 churches in its 20 years of operation, Hudson said. "The mission church is on its own. It's not under a denomination," Hudson said.

The mission spends two to three years in an area before moving. At this time, the mission was located in Passeos de Churubusco, a middle class suburb, or colonia, of Mexico City.

The Thief River Falls group did not help build churches in Passeos, but held kids club meetings, projected religious films, and held puppet shows for the locals. "It was like a vacation bible school," said Maren Dyrud, one of the youth missionaries.

"The children were curious and open to anything new," Dyrud said. "They weren't afraid at all."

Hudson said the audience gave a good response. "They are open to God because of the (economic) conditions," Hudson speculated.

Johnson, the host missionary, was the only person in the group who spoke fluent Spanish. Two of the TRF group knew some Spanish, including Dyrud. "It really helped out a lot. (The Mexican youth) had some English in school, so they knew as much English as I knew Spanish."

The group did very little sightseeing. Some of the sites they did see were sinking into the ground, said Ray Vigstol, one of the adult missionaries. Mexico City is located on an underground lake and the earth is slowly swallowing some of the older and larger buildings, such as museums and cathedrals.

Dyrud said her favorite site was viewing Mexico City at night from a tower. "It was overwhelming." Mexico City hosts 25 million inhabitants.

They were warned not to drink

Girl bitten by cat undergoes rabies treatment needlessly

Three-year-old Michelle Noreen, daughter of Luke and Sharon Noreen of Thief River Falls, underwent eight of a series of 10 anti-rabies shots last week before the cat that bit her was found and determined to have been vaccinated against the disease.

"We had asked through the paper and radio that anyone knowing the whereabouts or owner of the cat contact us or the law enforcement center," Sharon Noreen said, "so that [illegible] was healthy. But nobody called."

The black and white, long-haired cat had come into the Noreen yard—where it had been seen previously from a distance—about two weeks ago and when Michelle tried to pick it up, it bit her and ran away.

To guard against the possibility that it was rabid, the Noreens started Michelle on the series of 10 shots, administered on a declining scale beginning at two a day. Each time she became ill from the injections and now cries when the family drives past the hospital.

After six of the shots, the Noreens again appealed for knowledge about the cat and its health. A few days later, after two more shots had been received, they received a call acknowledging that the cat belonged to someone in the neighborhood and that it was in good health. Michelle and others who had seen the cat identified it as the one that had bitten her.

"If we had only known sooner that there was no danger of rabies we could have spared our daughter a lot of stress and discomfort that wasn't necessary," Mrs. Noreen said.

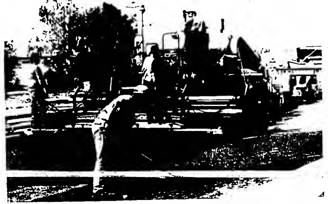
"We hope that anyone who has a pet that could be involved in a similar incident in the future will come forward immediately and acknowledge ownership. It would make everything so much better for all concerned."

Child bitten by chipmunk

Two children were bitten by animals [illegible] River Falls.

Thursday, police received a report from a woman living on Edgewood drive that a four-year-old girl had been bitten by a chipmunk. The bite did break the skin and a trap has been set for the animal. The chipmunk could have been injured by other youths before the incident.

On the same day, police received a report that an 11-year-old girl had been bitten by a cat. A stray cat was brought inside the house and while inside it bit the girl. The bite did break the skin. The animal is being held at the animal pound.



Layers of bituminous were being spread over the excavated and back-filled Highway 32 project in Thief River Falls. Black top should be all the way to Third street, possibly Fourth street by the end of next week.

the water, which Johnson told them "is only good as a laxative."

Vigstol said there were thousands of taxi cabs. "There was not enough room for everybody on the road." A subway system carries 5 million passengers each day, Vigstol said.

Day long subway tickets could be purchased for 1,000 pesos, or 30 cents. Dyrud said her only frightening experience in Mexico was trying to get on the subway without being separated from the group, because of its fast speed and quick stops.

On the Sunday before the group left Mexico City, they went to do missionary work in the village of Tolucs, otherwise they spent the entire time in Mexico City.

The group worked on the trip since last October and each member raised $400 for expenses on the trip. "They raised their support, just like a missionary," Vigstol said.

The members on this trip included Kent, Erika, Janell and Andy Hudson, Maren Dyrud, Denise Anderson, Brian Hernandez, Tracey Wensloff, Bonny Dehlen, Denae Dekkers, Mark Tengquist, Stuart Michalicek, and Ray Vigstol.

Hudson said he would like to go on another missionary trip to Mexico City next year.

THE FINEST WAY TO SPEND THIS DAY IS TO HELP SOMEONE

Now, what kindliness did you display
By the things you accomplished today?
  Did you do a good deed
  To help someone in need,
Which that person can never repay?
And whenever you feel so inclined,
There are numerous ways you can find,
  If they know you are near
  When they've lost someone dear,
To help people regain peace of mind.
Then you'll learn what these lessons convey
By attending your service, to pray.
  Let the Lord be your guide,
  For He'll walk by your side,
And His wisdom will show you the way.

A Few Words For Kids Leaving The Nest

So your child has grown up and is off to college in a far away town and you're feeling lost and helpless in being able to serve as protector and guardian angel. Be assured that your situation is shared in many thousands of homes throughout the country.

We recently ran across this list of "25 lessons for life" from Marian Wright Edelman's bestselling book "The Measure of Our Success: A Letter to My Children and Yours." Edelman says they are the "anchors, footholds and compasses" she received from her parents to guide her "over the mountains and through the valleys and deserts of life." It would make a good clipping to include in that first letter to college-bound son or daughter—or even for the child already in school or the work force.

(1) There is no free lunch. Don't feel entitled to anything you don't sweat and struggle for.

(2) Set goals and work quietly and systematically toward them.

(3) Assign yourself. Don't wait around to be told what to do.

(4) Never work just for money or for power. They won't save your soul or build a decent family or help you sleep at night.

(5) Don't be afraid of taking risks or of being criticized.

(6) Take parenting and family life seriously and insist that those you work for and who represent you do.

(7) Remember that your wife is not your [illegible] your partner and friend.

(8) Forming families is serious business.

(9) Be honest.

(10) Remember and help America remember that the fellowship of human beings is more important than the fellowship of race and class and gender in a democratic society.

(11) Sell the shadow for the substance. Struggle to keep personal, organizational and public priorities straight.

(12) Never give up.

(13) Be confident that you can make a difference.

(14) Don't ever stop learning and improving your mind.

(15) Don't be afraid of hard work or of teaching your children to work.

(16) "Slow Down and Live." A job done too hurriedly is never well done.

(17) Choose your friends carefully.

(18) Be a can-do, will-try person.

(19) Try to live in the present.

(2) Use your political and economic power for the community and others less fortunate.

(21) Listen for the "sound of the genuine" within yourself and others.

(22) You are in charge of your own attitude.

(23) Remember your roots, your history and the forebears' shoulders on which you stand.

(24) Be reliable. Be faithful.

(25) Always remember that your are never alone.

Why show your children you are concerned about the values mentioned above? The author's son, Jonah Martin Edelman, writes in the forward to the book: "When I am feeling paralyzed by a task that seems too difficult, I remember the love that lies at the core of my family and their legacy to me. The love gives strength, and I can move again."

Land Of The Free?

Writing in Philip Morris Magazine, Anita Howard of Austin, TX, tells of an experience she had while teaching communications at Austin Community College. She had invited international students in the class to compare their home countries with America in a "compare and contrast" essay.

A student from Equador raised his hand: "Why do Americans always go around bragging about living in the land of the free? You have no freedoms at all. Everywhere I've been, all I hear is 'buckle your seat belt,' 'this is a no-smoking area,' 'no parking here,' 'keep left,' 'keep right,' 'keep smiling,' 'have a nice day.' You can't even have a bad day without someone interfering."

"This was something to think about," Howard writes. "It was new to me because, as a working woman, I understand what Robert Frost meant when he wrote, 'Freedom is when you're easy in your harness.' I have all the freedom I know what to do with; thus, I feel 'easy in the harness,' although sometimes I do resent being sent to the back of a restaurant to smoke."

"When I arrived in Austin, and was driving on the highways, I saw speed limits posted every few [illegible] helmet laws for cyclists and mandatory school attendance laws. Can't this country trust its citizens to take care of their own health? It's almost as if Americans are afraid to take care of themselves, that they want some law or some regulation to tell them what to do and what not to do."

An American student joined in:

"Sometimes it looks as if we make laws instead of finding solutions to problems. Some problems can be solved without laws—some can be solved with engineering, some with common sense."

Howard said the next time the class met she read the following quote from a 1922 editorial by H. L. Mencken: "The American people, taken one with another, constitute the most timorous, sniveling, poltroonish, ignominious mob of serf and goose-steppers ever gathered under one flag in Christendom since the end of the Middle Ages."

Most Americans would react angrily to being challenged on our claim to freedom. We would point out that the Ecuadoran student's examples were rules accepted as providing order in an orderly society. They are petty compared to the larger freedoms of education (which he had come from his country to ours to get), of movement, of speech, of economics, of ownership, etc. And Ecuador, we would retort, is no shining example in the governmental exercise of freedom for the people of the nation.

"Accustomed as I am to defending America," Howard writes, "let me add one thought. At least we still have enough freedom to complain about our loss of freedom. Even this, however, must be defended every day.

To The Editor:

I have two young children. One will be in the second grade this year and one will be in pre-school. We plan that they will be a part of School District 564 through high school graduation. Their education is one of the most important things to my husband and me. This was a primary reason in our decision to move to Thief River Falls. I am excited about the possibility of upgrading some of our educational facilities. However, I have some very specific concerns about the design of the new proposed elementary school complex.

I will spend no additional time on the fact that I believe our students could be better served in several smaller elementary schools. Instead I will address several parts of the current plan with which I am comfortable.

On the plans there is a large holding area where students can wait before or after school. Dr. Duncan said at one of the public meetings that there could be no promises that this area would be supervised by an adult. I understand that currently the school administration is concerned about students in classrooms before school without supervision because of the potential for lawsuits. I see little difference between students without supervision in classrooms and in one large holding area. In fact, in a holding area there may be more students (and certainly more that a young student wouldn't know) which would seem to me to increase the potential for problems.

I am also concerned about the proposed soft seating. The attractive looking slide at the presentation shows an area that reminds me of the recently removed small (maybe three step) amphitheater seating at Columbia Mall in Grand Forks. My children loved this "seating" and would run and jump on it at every chance (no sitting for them or the other children I observed).

I asked why this popular seating was being removed and was told by several businesses this was because they were concerned someone would have an accident, and that they could not risk potential lawsuits.

In the plans for the elementary school, this soft seating was presented as a place for students to meet and talk. I believe instead it to be an invitation to run and jump. Without proper supervision I see this as an "accident waiting to happen." Also, I don't see this as handicapped accessible.

Another area of concern is the portable walls that are proposed between classrooms. We are told that these walls can be removed over the weekend to let classes participate in activities together. I imagine the walls would stay down for at least a week, and then be put up over another weekend.

First, I have had negative experiences with portable walls. They just do not sufficiently block noise between classrooms; and elementary classrooms should have many times when they are noisy. Secondly, I cannot imagine any good reason for two or more classrooms of nearly 30 students to join for a whole week. And practically, with proposed cuts in custodial staff, I am not sure how the school will handle the extra hours needed to put up and take down these walls.

Also, someone who has been involved in physical education has told us that he sees the gym areas as being inadequate. Although there are three small adjoining gyms that can be joined, he believes that the gym area per student will be less than what is currently available. I also see problems with this many students sharing the gyms, not to mention the one library/media center.

Finally, Rep. Wally Sparby said on Coffeetime that he believed class size would be better at less than the current 25 to 30 students per class, and that he would be working to get class size reduced to 20. Several recent studies have suggested that 15 is an even better number, but I believe that 20 would be a big improvement and something that we as parents could [illegible] toward accomplishing.

If this were to happen, there is no way that the proposed elementary complex could handle this without at least on additional classroom per grade. I have been told several times that this will not be considered for the new elementary complex. If at some future date reduced class size is an option, Thief River Falls would need to vote another bond issue (assumedly without debt equalization) and build on another wing.

Last year when my husband and I were concerned about class size, Glen Espe (elementary principal) said there just wasn't room anywhere in the school system for even one additional class of first graders. I am amazed we are considering an $18 million building plan without the addition of one classroom.

As I think about this problem, many things go through my mind. Since I was not on the committee, I do not know what was considered. My current idea, which may be flawed, is why not build a wonderful middle school at the proposed site? This age student could more easily handle the bussing, the site located between a busy road and a busy railroad track, and it would remove them from the proximity of shopping areas that sometimes cause them to wander. The elementary schools could be remodeled and expanded.

I look forward with intense interest to the bond issue election on September 15. How we choose to meet our educational needs will have a long lasting impact on Thief River Falls.

Sincerely,
Carol Haymond

IMAGINE

THE POWER TO CREATE

1.5 MILLION AMERICAN JOBS

IN TEN YEARS.

Well, stop imagining and start counting.

Because the power is in our hands. It's called the telecommunications industry and, given the freedom to grow, it can put tens of thousands of Americans to work every year.

A recent study estimates that allowing the regional Bell operating companies to provide new information services would create almost 1.5 million new jobs in ten years.*

In Minnesota, that would mean [illegible] new jobs. And in every state, it would mean innovative products for consumers, lower unemployment and a healthier economy.

IMAGINE

OPPOSED TO

CREATING THESE JOBS.

Unfortunately, that doesn't take much imagination either.

In fact, the House of Representatives is now considering a bill that would slow the advance of American telecommunications, and threaten all these new jobs.

Help shrink the unemployment lines and put Americans to work. Urge your Congressional Representative to vote "no" on the Brooks bill, H.R. 5096.

AMERICA'S FUTURE IS TOO IMPORTANT TO LEAVE ON HOLD.

ELECT....PAUL E. RASMUSSEN

District Court Judge (Weddel Seat)

Chambers in Clearwater County Courthouse, Bagley

Supported by the people of Clearwater County:

As Clearwater County Attorney, Paul Rasmussen has proven to be an aggressive and effective prosecutor. Rasmussen has joined me in promoting community crime watch and crime prevention programs. The law enforcement community here in Clearwater County is solidly behind Rasmussen in his candidacy for the Clearwater County chambered District Court Judgeship.
Denny Trandem, Clearwater County Sheriff

Paul Rasmussen was instrumental in initiating the effort to bring the D.A.R.E. program (Drug Abuse Resistance Education) to the Bagley School System. Rasmussen's anti-drug stand, his concern for our youth, and his pro-law enforcement history, make him the candidate of choice of the people of Clearwater County.
Greg Spaulding, Bagley, D.A.R.E. Officer

Paul Rasmussen has done an outstanding job for us as Clearwater County Attorney. He is active in our community and well-respected. We here in Clearwater County know Rasmussen, we trust him, and we want him to be "our" judge.
Warren C. Larson, Commissioner, District 1, Clearwater County Board

The judge currently chambered in Clearwater County spends most of his time handling the judicial business of Clearwater County. Voters in all 17 of the counties in the 9th judicial district will vote on the "Weddel seat" chambered here in Bagley. My staff and I have been working with Paul Rasmussen for several years. We find him to be courteous, professional and competent. We strongly support Rasmussen for this judgeship.
Vernon Lundin, Clearwater County Court Administrator

Nine candidates vie for county commissioner seat

Nine candidates have filed for three positions on the Pennington County Board of Commissions. Because there were more than two in each of the three, a primary election has been called. The top two vote getters will advance to the general election in November.

Each of the candidates was asked to prepare a personal letter to voters in the county that describes their background, experience and qualifications. In addition, the candidates were asked to address one or more issue of concern to residents in the county.

The Times believes that these letters provide voters with information necessary to make an informed decision on September 15. A picture of the candidate accompanies each article on the front page of this issue. There was no charge to the candidates.

The polling places and respective hours during which the polling places will be open for the primary election will be as follows for residents of Pennington county.

All polling places will be open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. in Thief River Falls — Ward 1 at Heritage Community Center; Ward 2 at Zion Lutheran church; Ward 3 at Skylite apartments; Ward 4 at Knox elementary school; and Ward 5 at Redeemer Lutheran church.

Fans show enthusiasm for professional rodeo

Adverse weather and arena conditions in Thief River Falls Friday through Sunday failed to dampen enthusiasm of the spectators or professional participants as the first TRF Stampede was held at the Pennington county fairgrounds.

The arena was in the best condition Friday night and that was when some of the overall winning marks were established in the six professional events held. Rain fell Friday night and early Saturday and the temperatures plummeted, but a large crowd was on hand Saturday night and no rain fell during the rodeo itself.

On Sunday the bareback riding was just completed when rain started falling and it varied from a drizzle to a downpour throughout the evening. Many fans stayed in their seats, however, and all events were held except for the calf scramble. Concluding event was the finals of the wild saddle cow race, won by Mick Brekke of Plummer and Charlie and Greg Bishop of Oklee. Each received a special silver trophy belt buckle valued at $365.

Big money winner of the rodeo, however, was David Bailey Jr. of Tahlequah, OK. He scored an 83-point ride on a bull named "Tar Baby Jr." Friday night and it turned out to be the only successful bull ride of the three-day event. He pocketed $3,344.50 for his eight seconds of work.

It was the quality of the bulls rather than lack of quality among the would-be riders that resulted in all but Bailey being thrown or disqualified during the three rodeo performances. One other rider stayed on his bull for the required eight seconds but was disqualified by the judges for touching the animal with his free hand during the ride.

On days when there were no qualifiers, $240 in "day money" was divided among the participants.

Second high money winner was saddle bronc rider Rick Carpenter of Alabama who rode "Big Timber" Saturday night for 77 points and claimed $1,164 in prize money. Second place went to Tom Meiers of Willistan, ND, who had a 71-point ride Saturday night on "Big Foot" and earned $873.

Tied for third and fourth places were Randy Johnson of Rapid City, SD, who rode "Big Foot" Friday night and Gary Tescher of Trotters, ND, who rode the same animal Sunday night. Each cowboy scored 70 points on his ride and claimed a check for $436.50.

Third high money winner was bareback rider Shawn Frey of Norman, OK, who scored 80 points on Friday night aboard "Joe Kool" and made it stand up for the weekend and a check for $942.36. Frey topped several good competitors to win the event as all six riders who placed are currently in the top 20 for the world title.

Tied for second and third places with 77-point rides were Wayne Herman of Dickinsan, ND, also aboard "Joe Kool" and Bruce Fard of Kersey, CO, riding "Red Hat." Herman, the 1991 National Finals Rodeo bareback champion and runner-up for the world championship last year, rode in the mud Sunday night. Fard, a former five-time world champion, rode Friday. Each claimed $698.65 in prize money.

Fourth place went to Brian Hawk of Euless, TX, riding "Teaser" Saturday night for 76 points and claiming $454.93. Tied for fifth and sixth place with 72 points each were Chuck Lague of Decatur, TX, who rode "War Drum" Friday night and Lance Crump of Cooper, TX, who rode "Misfit" Saturday night. Each earned $227.46 in prize money.

Weather probably played a role in the calf roping where the top times were turned in on Friday night. Brian Fulton of Miller, SD, won the first place check for $886.10 by roping and tying his calf in 10.5 seconds. Second place went to Bill Huber of Albia, IA, also on Friday night, with a time of 11.2 seconds. He earned $733.32.

Third place in 11.6 seconds went to current world champion Troy G. Pruitt of Minatare, NE, who competed in the muck Sunday night and earned $580.55.

Tied for fourth and fifth in 11.8 seconds were Shawn Hallenbeck of Pratt, KS, competing Friday and Shawn Feltan of Weatherford, TX, competing Saturday. Each earned $351.39. In sixth place was Charlie Kenney of Onawa, IA, who turned in a time of 12.0 Friday night and earned $152.75.

Troy Brown of Harrold, SD, won the steer wrestling in a time of 4.7 seconds Friday night and picked up $886.10 in prize money. Second place went to Tam Murphy of Killdeer, ND, who is the current points leader in the PRCA Badlands Circuit. He put his steer down in 4.9 seconds Sunday night and earned $733.32.

Third place was won by Steve Keith of Kansas City, MO, who turned in a time of 5.1 seconds Saturday and earned $580.55. Todd Hall of New Town, ND, placed fourth with 5.4 seconds Sunday and earned $427.77. Fifth place went to Herm Peterson of Rapid City, SD, who had a time of 6.0 seconds Sunday and earned $275. In sixth place was Ken Spangler of Tomah, WI, whose time of 7.0 seconds Saturday earned $152.76.

Women's professional barrel racing was the sixth professional event held at the TRF Stampede and 10 riders earned prize money. Only sixty-two hundredths of a second separated first through 10th place. A listing of winners, address, night performing, time and pay-off includes the following:

Mardee Hallenbeck, Pratt, KS (the first rider of the three-day rodeo Friday), 14.81 seconds, $872.52; Sandi Brandli, Mauston, WI, Friday, 14.89, $690.75; Lori Sanders, Marshall, WI, Friday, 15.09, $581.68; Renee Kenney, Onawa, IA, Friday, 15.10, $472.62; Tanja Eisinger, Afton, MN and Jamie Murphy, Rochester, MN, both Saturday, tied for fifth and sixth at 15.16 seconds, $254.49 each;

Also Marcine Young, Lyndon Station, WI, Saturday, 15.31, $181.78; Beth Berry, Tomah, WI,

Awaiting Sunday night's final TRF Stampede events, bullfighter James Pierce of Thibodaux, LA, is cool and collected, belying the action to come later. Three pages of rodeo photos are in today's issue of The Times. Feature stories on Pierce and 1991 National Final Rodeo champion Wayne Herman of Dickinson, ND, will be published in the September 15 issue of The Times.

Blanche Hovden of Thief River Falls has an extra special birthday coming up. She will be 100 years old on September 13. Blanche was one of the first residents of the Skylite Apartments in Thief River Falls.

Blanche Hovden has 100th birthday

Blanche Hovden of Thief River Falls will celebrate her 100th birthday September 13 with an open house party from 2 to 4 p.m. at the Skylite Apartments community room.

She was born Sept. 13, 1892 in Ridgeway, IA, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gust Bakken. It was also there that Blanche grew up and was married to Ralph Hovden on Apr. 23, 1913. They lived in Decorah, IA and later moved to North Dakota. While her children were still young, she and her husband moved to Thief River Falls. "I worked at Peterson Biddick and Land O'Lakes," she recalls. At first she says that her job was picking chickens and later she worked candling eggs. She retired, she says, and then went into politics, working at the Republican office during two campaigns.

She still enjoys watching and hearing television and radio news and maintains a serious interest in the politics of the nation. She says she is still active in exercise class at Skylite, which she moved into 23 years ago, and attends in the congregate meals offered there. She also does her own housekeeping in her apartment there. She is a member of the Evangelical Lutheran synod, which holds local services at Valley Home.

Although she no longer knits or crochets, she does spend a lot of time writing to her seven surviving children, George of Mesa, AZ; Ralph of Marshalltown, IA; Earl of Santa Rosa, CA; Charles of Lubbock, TX, Joel of Lubbock, TX; Alton of Lubbock, TX; Lil Thomas of San Diego, CA and Mavis Aaseby of Big Lake. Her eldest son, Morris, died last June. She also has 21 grandchildren, 23 great-grandchildren and two great-great-grandchildren.

All friends and relatives are invited to attend the open house and celebrate Blanche's 100th birthday with her.

Dear Readers,
Knowledge of what to do when there is a death away from home can be helpful to any family. Regardless of when or where the death occurs, an immediate phone call should be placed to your local funeral director. He will represent you from that moment on, and will make all the necessary arrangements to have your loved one returned home. Calling your family funeral director avoids unnecessary delay and added expense. It eliminates many problems that occur through long-distance arrangements.

Respectfully,
Belmont Funeral Home

A Snapshot of Women And Substance Abuse

A special issue of "Impact," a newsletter of chemical health in Minnesota prepared by several state agencies including the Minnesota Institute of Public Health, focuses on women and chemical health.

"While it is encouraging to see more public attention drawn to the dangers of drinking during pregnancy, that is only one of many concerns that are unique to women," the report states. Here are some of the images given in an article entitled "A Snapshot of Women and Substance Abuse."

- Although women drink less than men, the number of women who drink is significant. Estimates indicate that of the 15.1 million people who abuse alcohol or are alcohol-dependent, 4.6 million are women. That means roughly one-third of alcoholics are women.
- Women who drink heavily or are alcoholic are more likely to become victims of the alcohol-related aggression of others, such as date rape.

Drinking varies among women of different racial or ethnic backgrounds. African American women were more likely to abstain from drinking alcohol (66.9 per cent) than White women (52.6 per cent) during the month prior to their interview.

- Marital status influences drinking habits. Single, divorced or separated women are more likely to drink heavily and experience alcohol-related problems than women who are married or widowed. Unmarried women who are living with a "significant other" are most likely to develop drinking problems.
- Despite their relatively low consumption levels, women account for nearly one-half of cirrhosis deaths among American Indians.
- Abuse of prescribed tranquilizers is more frequent among women than men. In 1989, emergency room episodes resulting from Valium were 4.1 per cent for females and 2.5 per cent for males.
- Women are more susceptible to alcohol-related liver damage. They develop liver disease in a shorter period of time and at lower levels of consumption. The number of alcoholic women who develop alcohol-related liver disease is higher than among alcoholic men.
- Repeated or sustained episodes of alcohol intoxication may suppress hormonal activity in women. Studies suggest that there is a higher prevalence of menstrual dysfunction and accelerated onset of menopause among alcoholic women. Other problems such as obstetrical disorders and gynecological surgery are also more common.
- Young women between the ages of 16 and 22 are more likely to smoke cigarettes that their male counterparts.
- Over 4.8 million (eight per cent) of the 60.1 million women 15-44 years of age (the child-bearing years) have used an illicit drug in the past month. Slightly over 500,000 (0.9 per cent) used cocaine and 3.9 million (6.5 per cent) used marijuana in the past month.
- It is estimated that the number of women in the United States who drink has increased significantly over the last 40 years and that heavy drinking has increased among young, employed women. As many as 16 per cent of these women may be consuming three to five drinks per day.
- More than 80 per cent of cases of AIDS in women are associated with intravenous drug abuse. Under the influence of alcohol and other drugs, people help to spread AIDS by engaging in high risk sexual activity with people who are IV drug abusers or HIV carriers.

Cowboys Impress Rodeo Fans ...And Vice Versa

Cowboys participating in the first TRF Stampede last Friday, Saturday and Sunday made an impression on area rodeo fans for the quality of their performances and their willingness to perform under far less than ideal conditions.

Although two out of the three performances were free of rain, persistent rainfall during the three days or nights of the Stampede as well as in the days beforehand made the arena potentially treacherous, especially after a downpour during the Sunday evening final show. Despite those conditions, the professional cowboys and cowgirls ran their timed or judged events to the best of their abilities, and the crowds appreciated it.

As bad as the arena turned out to be on Sunday night, it would have been much worse but for the yeoman efforts of Don [illegible] and others to work and work and work on it prior to and during the days of the rodeo. Organizers of the event were outspoken in their praise of the people who provided equipment, time and expertise to make the best of a bad situation.

If there had been a doubt about the tenacity of northwestern Minnesota area fans for professional rodeo, it was dispelled Sunday night. A good crowd was on hand in threatening weather and only the first event was completed when the threat materialized. Rain poured down but the show went on and the crowd stayed on. Surprisingly, a large percentage of the fans stuck it out until after the final event, the wild saddle cow race.

As impressed as the fans were by the cowboys, the cowboys were impressed by the persistence and enthusiasm of the fans. They couldn't believe people would stay on in the numbers they did with conditions what they were. One amazed rodeoer's wife from Oklahoma said that "back home" the people would be long gone from a rodeo in weather like that.

It would seem that a good basis was made for professional rodeo in Thief River Falls in spite of, or perhaps because of, the adverse conditions. We would like to see the strong start this year continue to build in the future. Fans here have shown they appreciate it.

To the Editor:

In talking to commissioners of other counties, it is obvious that most people are confused about the Ninth Judicial District races.

In the primary election on September 15, voters will cast ballots for two judicial positions. One judicial primary is for the "Spooner Seat" chambered in Grand Rapids and the other judicial primary election is for the "Weddel Seat" which involves the judgeship chambered at the Clearwater County Courthouse.

The judge chambered in Clearwater County is currently handling most of the judicial business of our county and primarily serves the people of Clearwater County. Despite that fact, voters from all 17 counties in the Ninth Judicial District will vote on this position as well as the position in Grand Rapids.

Six candidates have filed for the judgeship chambered here in Clearwater County. Many people might not vote on this judgeship because they may not have enough meaningful information from which to make [illegible]

Most people I have talked to don't feel the election process for our judges is a good one and feel that the district is too large. Most voters in the district will not be served by the judge chambered here in Clearwater County and numerous persons I have spoken to don't understand why they vote for a public official that might never serve their county.

I assure you that the people of Clearwater County are very interested in the race for the District Court judgeship chambered here in Clearwater County as this is the judge that will primarily be serving the people here in Clearwater County. Paul Rasmussen is the County Attorney here in Clearwater County and has done an outstanding job for us. Myself and all of the other County Commissioners here in Clearwater County as well as the Sheriff and the Court Administrator, have seen Rasmussen's work firsthand and know him personally. We here in Clearwater County know Rasmussen, we trust him, and we want him to be "our" judge.

Sincerely,
John Brooks, Jr.
Clearwater County Commissioner

To the Editor:

Arcteo strongly endorses the educational facilities plan recommended by the Citizen's Advisor Committee and put on the September 15th ballot by the School Board.

Because of the all-encompassing nature of this proposal, the community has a unique opportunity to get its facilities in order so that educational programming can be put in place to prepare our children for the challenges of the next decade.

As a major employer in the community, we are concerned about the quality of education that all of our children receive. In order for us to survive and prosper against ever increasing international competition, our employees must be prepared by a state-of-the-art educational system which has invested in new cutting edge technologies. This can only be done if we reduce operating expenses and spend our limited resources on quality education. The proposal accomplishes this goal.

Almost anyone would be surprised to see a business today operating successfully out of facilities designed and built more than 75 years ago. We have in fact, expected our teachers to deliver a quality educational product in an environment designed for old methods and old technologies. To their credit they have done a commendable job. The proposal offers an opportunity to rectify this situation and create the proper environment for the exciting challenges ahead.

When adopted, the proposal could raise Arcteo's property taxes by more than $6,000 per year. Paying new taxes is always difficult. However, we believe that this expenditure is both wise and reasonable. Doing nothing may cost less in the short run but could be far more expensive for all of us in the future. Also, delay could result in a legislative change altering the debt equalization process giving Thief River Falls a less desirable and more costly project. Every investment should be measured against the expected return. Based on expected return, this project merits our support.

We are very impressed with the democratic nature under which the proposal was developed. Over 200 citizens worked for more than a year to study all of the possible alternatives.

Despite some healthy initial skepticism amongst the committee members, the proposal comes to the community with a consensus recommendation for support. Each of us may find one or another small aspect of the program which we find troublesome. However, this is no reason to defeat the entire proposal. The same type of intense community involvement that delivered the plan could be used to resolve these concerns even after the project has been approved.

It is now time for all of us to support the recommendations of the committee and give our teachers the type of facilities they need, at a price the community can afford, to educate our children for the next generation whether they remain in Thief River Falls or pursue opportunities elsewhere.

Sincerely,
Arcteo, Inc.
Bill Ness,
Chairman
Chris Twomey,
Chief Executive Officer

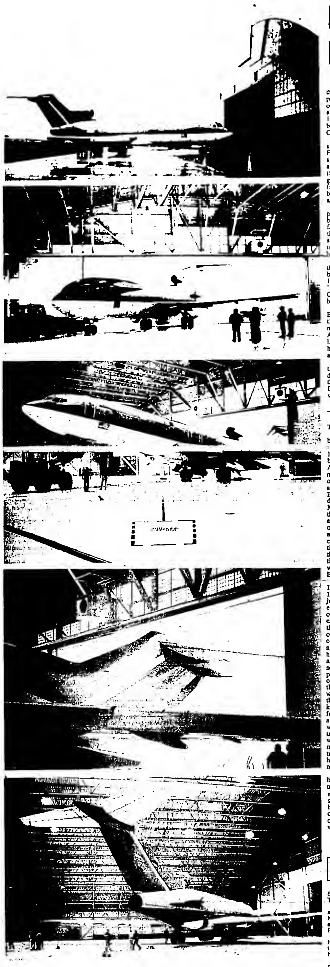
NWTC will dedicate hangar to Swensons



Cost-cutting for the $2,871,000 technical college hangar project at the Thief River Falls regional airport resulted in reducing planned size of the doors. The above sequence of photos shows how the plane was maneuvered through the opening a wing at a time and the front end lifted to allow the tail section to clear. Once inside the plane could be jockeyed into place.

Dedication of the new hangar at the Thief River Falls regional airport to Lowell and Marge Swenson of Thief River Falls will take place at ceremonies Sunday, September 13, at 1 p.m. in the new hangar built for the Northwest Technical College, Thief River Falls campus.

According to Dr. Orley Gunderson, director of the Thief River Falls campus, Mr. and Mrs. Swenson have been instrumental in assisting many students to attend the technical college through a grant to the school district. Interest from investment of the grant has been used to provide student scholarships since 1977.

Dedication of the hangar will be part of a full day of activities which begins with a fly-in, drive-in breakfast served by the Kiwanis club and the student chapter of the Professional Aviation Mechanics association (PAMA). The breakfast will be served from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Tours of the hangar will be given throughout the day and a fly-over by a B-25 bomber will be held at 12:30 and 1:30 p.m. The bomber, "Miss Mitchell," is provided by the Confederate Air Force and will also be on display throughout the day.

Also on display will be the Boeing 727-100 airplane donated to the technical college's aviation maintenance program by Northwest Airlines. The plane was received last year and was placed in the hangar Saturday where it will be available for instruction of students.

Engines had been removed from the plane by Northwest in accordance with the contract donating the plane to the technical college, Dr. Gunderson said. The engines would have had to be removed and placed on stands for student instruction, he noted, and engines with similar technology are available for teaching. Engine cowlings will be put in place to add to the appearance of the aircraft.

Placing the plane in the new hangar involved some intricate maneuvering Saturday. Because initial bids on the hangar came in too high for authorized bonding funds, the project was cut back to save approximately $400,000 in construction costs. This resulted in reducing the size of the hangar and the size of the main doorway, making it impossible to merely tow the plane into the hangar.

Personnel from the technical college, Northwest Airlines and area contractors worked from about 8 a.m. well into the afternoon Saturday to ease the plane into the hangar. It was towed in at an angle to permit part of the fuselage and one wing to enter, then maneuvered back and forth until the other wing would clear.

Once both wings were inside the door, the plane was squared with the opening in the hangar door and more than four tons of sandbags were loaded into the rear of the plane to compensate for weight lost by removal of the engines. The nose gear was then pushed into the bucket of a large front-end loader, strapped to the bucket and hoisted into the air, thereby lowering the tail section sufficiently to clear the top of the doorway as the loader pulled the plane inside.

Once inside, the plane was maneuvered into the angled position it will maintain in the hangar. Sunday's dedication program will be near the right wing of the plane.

Included in the program will be a welcome by Dr. Gunderson, background review by Bob Madson, vice chancellor of the Minnesota State Board for Community Colleges, program review by Dean Paskewitz, senior aviation instructor among the college's 26 teachers in aviation and avionics; dedication of the hangar to Lowell and Marge Swenson and unveiling of the plaque to be hung on the hangar, and response by the Swensons.

Comments will be given by Maryel Anderson, chair of the School District 564 board of education; Sen. LeRoy Stumpf and Rep. Wally Sparby of Thief River Falls, Mayor Bob Reeve, representatives of the student body and Northwest Airlines; and Dr. Ray Cross, chief executive officer for the Northwest Technical College. A ribbon-cutting by the Swensons will conclude the ceremony.

Demonstrations of ultralight aircraft and radio controlled model airplanes will be held during the day, weather permitting. Free registration will also be held for two round trip airline tickets between Minneapolis and Thief River Falls, airplane rides, lodging certificates and other items. Public attendance is invited.

To the Editor:

My name is Paul Bakke. I was born in Thief River Falls in 1939 [illegible] 1957. For the last 26 years I have been practicing law in and about Anoka, Minnesota. Since approximately 1970 I have had the privilege of knowing, both on a professional and personal basis, Edward W. Bearse. Judge Bearse is now a candidate for Associate Justice of the Minnesota Supreme Court. I know that people from Thief River Falls, as well as people from most any other part of the state, have not had an opportunity to become acquainted with or know about the qualifications of Judge Bearse to serve on the highest Court in the state. For this reason, I would like to share with you my knowledge of Mr. Bearse.

Edward Bearse has served as a 10th District Court Judge since 1984 in Anoka and when sitting as judge, has handled criminal matters, civil and family matters, and many other types of litigation and done an excellent and fair job in my estimation. He is highly respected by not only the legal community but by the community as a whole. He is a very active member in his church and, having grown up on a dairy farm and worked his way through law school, has shown himself to be a person who has taken charge of his own life and been responsible for the success he has achieved. He was also honorably discharged from the United States Army and, to my knowledge, is a person who has not forgotten his "roots." Mr. Bearse is an extremely hardworking judge who keeps his calendar clear and takes the time to listen to anyone who appears in his court and has never adopted an overbearing attitude as judge, but treats everyone in his court as equals, including attorneys that appear before him.

I know that when a client appears before Judge Bearse, he will be treated with dignity and respect by a judge who has a profound understanding of people and a comprehensive and thorough understanding of the law. In my estimation these are qualities that would suit him well as a Supreme Court Justice.

Sincerely,
Paul J. Bakke
Attorney at Law

Hi, I am Brenda Eckstein. My husband and I have three boys ages 10, 7, and 5. I ask you to support the School Bond Issue September 15th. This is a project we badly need to strengthen our school system [illegible] taxpayers money in the long run. The fact that local taxpayers will pay only $1.00 out of every $4.00 of the project's cost makes it easily affordable to all citizens of the school district. For a cost of pennies a day, you can save the district millions of dollars. Vote "Yes" for better education on September 15th.

If the bond referendum fails . . .

Superintendent Robert Duncan reviews consequences to local education

by Dr. Robert Duncan
Superintendent of Schools

Considerable effort has been made to provide the public with as much information as is possible about the school facilities project. Information has been made available through community meetings, presentations to various organizations and utilizing television, radio and the newspaper. Hopefully the public will have a reasonably good idea of the benefits of this project when they vote on September 15th.

It is difficult to develop a project where everyone is totally satisfied with all aspects of the project. Regardless of how a person views this particular project it would seem important that everyone knows what will happen if the bond issue passes or if it fails so they can weigh the pros and cons of the project when voting.

There has been much emphasis on the educational and financial benefits of this project. However, it would be unfair to the public to not provide information about what could happen should the facilities project be defeated on September 15th.

Without question if the bond issue fails the district will be faced with some very difficult decisions. The board will need to address the fire and safety code issues that the State Fire Marshall mandated to be completed by 1994. These directives are expensive and will come directly from the taxpayers without any debt equalization or a vote.

The same will hold true for the new handicapped accessibility codes with which the district will need to be in compliance. Spending this relatively large sum of money to bring old buildings up to code will do nothing at all for the larger issues the district is faced with which are: (1) inadequate facilities, (2) lack of and inefficient use of money and (3) inefficient use of staff. The district needs facilities and money to provide educational programs and services for kids now and into the 21st century.

Failure of the bond issue will mean students and staff continuing to live with inadequate space problems at Franklin Middle School to include inadequate music and science teaching areas, the lack of a performing arts area and a grossly undersized media center. Students and staff will be forced to continue the sharing of cafeteria, gymnasium and computer spaces with Mark Twain which is far from an ideal arrangement.

At Lincoln High School students and teachers will need to continue to live with the unexcusable situation for music, particularly band, and the grounds area of the high school where there is a lack of parking and outdoor physical education teaching stations. The very undersized kitchen area and poorly designed visual arts areas will also continue to negatively affect students and staff.

Of course, the many problems the district is faced with in the elementary buildings will continue such as undersized classrooms, lack of storage, inadequate outdoor playgrounds, lack of good air exchange, lack of good temperature control, poor acoustics, costly to heat and very inefficient to staff with teachers and, particularly, specialists. Furthermore, students and teachers will continue to be confronted with a lack of space for computer centers, physical education teaching stations, inadequate media/library centers and non-existent or inadequate music areas.

Financially, the district will continue to unnecessarily spend about one million dollars every four years to maintain and operate the present facilities. This is the amount of money which could be saved by approving the facilities plan. In addition there is a general fund deficit the district is beginning to encounter. For the 1992-93 school year there is a projected $141,000 general fund deficit and that's after making considerable expenditure reductions the past three years.

An additional $150,000 of revenue will be lost because of the separation of the Technical College from the school district. The two figures together are close to a $300,000 deficit. That issue will need to be dealt with by the board of Education regardless of how the bond issue is decided. However, it will be much easier to deal with it the bond issue passes.

In the past three years the board has made budget cuts without directly affecting educational programs and services. Therefore, the options to cut in areas other than educational programs and services are now extremely limited and, in fact, may be non-existent. Consequently, the next round of cuts will need to be in educational programs and services.

Failure of the bond issue will mean some painful program and service cuts. It will also mean the district will not have the money to add new programs such as the technology plan the district has developed to bring all buildings up to state-of-the-art in technology through computers and other technology. Implementation of the plan will be severely limited if the bond issue fails.

For those who are worried about potential reduction of jobs with the building of the new facilities, that will be minimal in comparison to the number of jobs that could be lost if the bond issue fails. Unfortunately, in this case it will not only be jobs but educational programs and services for students as well.

Comments have been made that people are not supporting the bond issue because they like things the way they are. The problem with that statement is that things will not stay the way they are once the board starts to deal with the $300,000 deficit and the ongoing lack of sufficient funds to simply maintain the nine buildings, thus ruling out any hope of improving them.

To say that there may be a better option is highly debatable and there is absolutely no assurance that other options would be supported by the public or the State Department of Education. The option that will be put before the public on September 15 is one that has survived considerable review, debate and public input. When people are deciding how to vote they will need to consider this and also the ramifications of the bond issue failing.

Where and when to vote on SD 564 bonding issue

School District 564 will conduct a special election in conjunction with the state's primary on September 15.

The issue before voters in school district 564 is, "Shall the School Board of Independent School District 564 (Thief River Falls), Minnesota, be authorized to issue its general obligation bonds in an amount not to exceed $17,950,000 to provide funds for the acquisition and betterment of school facilities, including constructing and equipping a new elementary school and remodeling the middle, high school and Washington buildings?"

By voting "yes" on this ballot question, voters would be voting for a property tax increase. Voters will be asked to mark a cross in the square opposite the word yes or no.

Polling places and the respective hours during which the polling places will be open for the election will be as follows:

Within the city all polling places are open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. — Ward 1 at the Heritage Community Center; Ward 2 at Zion Lutheran church; Ward 3 at Skylite apartments; Ward 4 at Knox elementary school; Ward 5 at Redeemer Lutheran church.
